MOVE FOR REPRISALS IN FRENCH CHAMBER IF OUR DUTIES STAND

PARIS, June 19.—Suppression of most-favored-nation treatment for the United States and wholesale discrimination against American imports into France was urged today on the French Government by the tariff committee of the Chamber of Deputies in the event that all efforts should fail to obtain reductions in the new American import duties on French goods.

The committee met in the morning at the same time that the French Minister of Commerce, Pierre Etienne Flandin, was laying before the Cabinet his report on the effect the Hawley-Smoot act will have on French commerce with the United States. The results of the committee's deliberations were set forth in the following communiqué:

Committee's Statement.

The Committee on Customs of the Chamber, after having attentively examined the consequences of the increase in customs duties decided upon by the United States, notes with regret:

First, that the new American tariffs, imposed on the most active branches of production, will appreciably reduce French exports to this great, friendly country.

Second, that they will seriously aggravate the difficulties which generalized economic nationalism places on international exchange.

Third, that because of the injury done to their commercial balance, those countries which have debts to pay to the United States will incur great risk to the exchange value of their national money.

The committee deems it necessary that the French duties on American goods should be adapted to the same régime as is imposed on French exports to the United States. The committee urges that the government make immediate representations to the President of the United States to obtain such decreases in the American tariffs as may be necessary for the maintenance of French exports.

In the event this intervention fails to yield results, the tariff committee would insist upon the suppression of the clause according most-favored-nation treatment to the United States, believing it illogical to accord beneficial treatment to that country without obtaining any compensation through reciprocal concessions such as are accorded by other nations.

Stand Causes a Stir.

This pronouncement by the tariff committee produced a considerable stir in the Chamber today. It was regarded, however, with general approval. Even those Frenchmen who are most anxious for a continuance of friendly relations with the United States are unwilling to accept any longer a situation in which, they say, the United States lays claim to every commercial advantage and accords none.

All the countries with which France deals, it was pointed out, accord in exchange for most-favored-nation treatment certain specific advantages to certain French products. The recent commercial treaty with Germany was cited, and it was pointed out that immediately on the signing of this treaty the United States demanded equal privileges with Germany.

It is not expected that the United States will depart from its traditional tariff policy, but the recommendation of the tariff committee to the French Government that the highest instead of the lowest scale of French tariffs be imposed on American goods if no concessions are obtained is likely to have almost unanimous support. The legal position, however, will have to be examined by the government, which is expected to act with due deliberation. Undoubtedly, however, official representations to President Hoover will be made within the next few days.

New Manhattan Phone Books Include 285,000 Changes

Delivery of 1,715,000 copies, or about 350 truckloads, of the Summer issue of the Manhattan telephone directory is under way, and 750,000 copies will be in the hands of Manhattan subscribers by tomorrow, the New York Telephone Company announced yesterday.

The new directory contains more than 285,000 changes in names, addresses and telephone numbers. The book comprises approximately 460,000 listings, and includes three new exchanges: Andrews for a part of the financial district, Tompkins Square in the Fourteenth Street district and Tillinghast for a part of Harlem.

BANK RATE TO 2½%; STOCKS RISE AGAIN

MARKET UP 3 TO 15 POINTS

The lowest rediscount rate in the history of the Federal Reserve System was established yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York when the directors voted to reduce the charge for member bank borrowings to 2½ per cent.

The announcement of the new rate was not made until after the close of the stock market, but in the meantime stocks had made a broad and vigorous rally, shaking off reactionary influences after an uninterrupted decline of three weeks. Stocks that had declined daily from 3 to 15 points went up suddenly, canceling all losses recorded in Wednesday's sweeping break, with a small margin to spare. The market's abrupt about-turn was ascribed in Wall Street, in the absence of a better explanation, to internal technical conditions. Brokers' loans decreased $211,000,000 in the last week, yesterday's report disclosed.

The new rediscount rate, which will go into effect this morning, will replace a charge of 3 per cent established on May 1 when the Bank of England and the Bank of France lowered their rates to 2 per cent and 2½ per cent respectively. The local Reserve Bank now shares with the Bank of France the distinction of having the lowest discount rate in the world. It is a distinction that banks expect to be short-lived, however, for further reductions in rates of leading European central banks are regarded as certain to follow yesterday's action here.

The cut took Wall Street by surprise. Such an action had been discussed a few weeks ago, when open market rates for bankers' bills dropped below 2½ per cent. As the reduction was not made then it was assumed that the banking authorities did not intend to send the rate below the previous low mark.

In the meantime, bill rates had fallen to an asking price of 2⅛ per cent. Following the announcement of the bank rate reduction a further slash was made effective in bill rates, making the open market quotations 2⅛ per cent bid, 2 per cent asked, for all maturities up to 90 days; 2¼ bid, 2⅛ asked for four months' bills, and 2⅜ bid, 2¼ asked for five and six months' paper.

Bill Rates Lowest in Six Years.

These rates are the lowest in six years and offer American business the opportunity to finance its projects at a cost that has been available only at rare intervals.

The reduction of the rediscount rate in New York to 2½ per cent, as in the five previous reductions that carried down the charge from 6 per cent last Fall, was primarily to stimulate business and the bond market, in the understanding of the financial community. But leading bankers said the depressed state of business was already sufficiently well known and had been rather overemphasized than minimized lately. The cut, they said, was amply justified by open market rates for credit and should ultimately have a salutary effect in stimulating trade.

Bankers have for some time held that a strong bond market was the first prerequisite of business improvement. Cheap money, they contend, offers the most powerful stimulant to the bond market available. The New York Reserve Bank's action gives assurance, it is said, that the low price of credit is to continue. Banks, faced with the difficulty of profitably employing their funds elsewhere, must ultimately turn to the bond market for an outlet.

The action was, in a measure, foreshadowed by a reduction from 2¼ to 2⅛ per cent in the rate at which the local Reserve Bank would purchase bankers' acceptances, announced earlier in the week.

One early result of the reduction

GUNMAN ELUDES SEARCHERS

KILLING RUMOR STIRS BRONX

But Search There Reveals No Body —Several Suspects Freed, Asylum Clues Fail.

While the police were searching Queens and Nassau Counties last night for the mysterious slayer of two men, Morris Horwitz, 50 years old, an insurance man, was shot and seriously wounded by "a wild-eyed, crazy-looking man," as he sat in his sedan in front of his home at 1,287 Carroll Street, Brooklyn, at 10:30 o'clock last night, talking to his wife, who was seated on the porch.

The gunman escaped on the run, disappearing into an automobile driveway between Brooklyn Avenue and Kingston Avenue. Although a strong police guard was thrown around the district, efforts by armed searchers with powerful flashlights failed to discover him.

Horwitz was taken to the Crown Heights Hospital, Lefferts and Brooklyn Avenues, suffering from a gash in the forehead, inflicted by the gunman with the butt of his pistol, and from a bullet which entered his shoulder, penetrated a lung and lodged in his abdomen.

Able to Give Description.

During an interval of consciousness at the hospital Horwitz, who is president of the Municipal Underwriters, Inc., an insurance firm at 26 Court Street, Brooklyn, and also has an insurance office of his own at 186 Joralemon Street, Brooklyn, gave Detectives Edward McNamee and William Riley of the Empire Boulevard station a description of his assailant. He said the man was about 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighed about 130 pounds, wore a dark suit but no hat, had blond hair and was "wild-eyed, as if he were crazy."

Horwitz was leaning out of the right front seat window of his machine, chatting with his wife, Rose, when the man approached. Without warning, he flourished a pistol, and said, "Move over to the steering wheel and start the car and keep going. If you don't, I'll shoot you."

The thug then entered the car and took a front seat beside Mr. Horwitz. Apparently dissatisfied at the slow actions of the insurance man, the stranger struck him on the forehead, then placed the barrel of the pistol against his victim's shoulder and fired.

Second Shot Goes Wild.

While Mrs. Horwitz screamed, the man fled, firing a second shot, which went wild. He ran east on Carroll Street to Brooklyn Avenue, turned north and ran half a block to one of the dark alleys leading to the garages in the rear yards of the neighboring houses and disappeared.

Two acquaintances of the wounded man, Al Zalb, a real estate man, and his brother, Leon, a glassware salesman, both of 377 Montgomery Street, approached in their car as the gunman fired his second shot.

They pursued on foot, but lost the trail at the alley entrance. Then they ran back to the wounded man and rushed him to the hospital.

Horwitz's son, George, 10 years old, was asleep in his bedroom on an upper floor of the three-story house in which they live. A son, Benjamin, 25 years old, a lawyer, and a daughter, Ruth, 14 years old, were away from home at the time of the shooting.

Late last night, while the police were still searching the neighborhood, officials said they had not found any clues to connect the gunman with the supposed madman who is being sought in Queens and Nassau Counties as the slayer of two men in somewhat similar circumstances.

A police alarm brought Deputy Chief Inspector Vincent J. Sweeney, in charge of the Brooklyn detective division, and a score of detectives as well as uniformed policemen and the police emergency squad, from the Empire Boulevard station.

The police sought to get into communication with the wounded man's business partner, Benjamin Herman, to see if he could give any information on whether or not Horwitz had any enemies. They did not know Herman's home address but obtained his telephone number. They were unable, however, to reach him.

Lindbergh Congratulates Byrd By Phone, Meets Him Monday

While Rear Admiral Byrd was telling the story of the expedition in an interview with newspaper men at the Biltmore yesterday afternoon an aide whispered to him: "Colonel Lindbergh is on the wire.

Admiral Byrd went to an adjoining room to talk to the flier. It was announced later that Colonel Lindbergh had congratulated Admiral Byrd on the success of his expedition and his scientific achievements. He made an appointment for a private meeting at the Biltmore at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Caraway Tells Senate He Thinks That Jameson Passed on the National Committee's Money.

DEFENDS BISHOP'S RELEASE

Reports of Concessions "Lies," He Declares—Presentation of Report Closes Incident.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Chairman Caraway of the lobby committee, in presenting to the Senate today a committee resolution on the case of Bishop James Cannon Jr., said that he thought that when E. C. Jameson, New York insurance man, gave to the Church leader $65,300 to fight the Presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith in Virginia, and an almost equal sum to other organizations, "he was passing out the money of the National Republican Committee."

"I may be mistaken," Senator Caraway said, but he emphasized his belief.

The Senator denied any special concessions had been given to Bishop Cannon, who was relieved from testifying about his financial and political affairs when he protested they were no concern of the committee and refused to answer questions. Such reports, the Senator declared, were "lies," adding that "there have been more assertions made that arose from utter ignorance of what did not occur or were prompted by malicious lying than about any other incident I know of."

"It is intimated," said the Senator, "and I am not defending it, or making the charge; I say that it was made in insinuation, at least on the floor of the House, that Bishop Cannon misappropriated the funds. That may be true, but we are not a grand jury. We uncovered several things that we did not pursue."

The reference of the intimations was to a recent speech of Representative Tinkham, who, on the floor of the House, attacked Bishop Cannon.

Walsh's Stand Is Set Forth.

The resolution as adopted at an executive session of the five lobby committee members, was reported as follows:

> Resolved, that it is the sense of the committee that it should not insist upon answers to questions propounded to Bishop James Cannon Jr. Senator Walsh of Montana dissents to this order only because of doubt raised as to the authority of the committee under the resolution pursuant to which it is acting.

Accompanying this resolution was the transcript of the Bishop's testimony, including the questions he declined to answer.

Presentation of the report was believed at the Capitol to have officially closed the incident. Vice President Curtis told newspaper men that he did not intend to present the case to the District Attorney for possible contempt action, adding that if Senator Blaine of Wisconsin, carries out

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALDONNEL AIRDROME, DUBLIN, June 19.—In order to avoid a possible fuel shortage on his westward transatlantic flight, which was again delayed today by strong westerly winds, Major Charles Kingsford-Smith intends refueling in the air off the American coast, if the necessary preparations are completed in time.

"I had provided for a start only when the adverse winds over the Atlantic averaged less than fifteen miles an hour," said Major Kingsford-Smith. "With any greater wind I should not have enough fuel to reach my destination. By refueling in the air, however, I could start against a headwind averaging as much as twenty miles an hour. Assuming we have to meet such conditions, the petrol would last to within a few hundred miles of Maine, then we could take on more fuel in the air."

To carry out the refueling operation the wireless operator will be provided with a hammer and chisel to punch a hole in the top of the main tank for the insertion of a fuel line.

"My great hope is that preparations can be made in America in time to permit refueling in the air," said the Major, "because in that case the chance of getting away without further delay will be enormously improved."

Officers of the Irish Free State Air Force learned with interest today of the report that former Squadron Leader Wynne-Eyton is contemplating using Baldonnel as the starting point for a solo flight across the Atlantic in a "Puss" Moth plane, but nothing more is known here beyond the indirect news from London.

Representatives here of the Fokker Company, builders of the Southern Cross, and other American representatives of Major Kingsford-Smith, said yesterday that no arrangements for refueling over the ocean had been made. The difficulties of such a plan were pointed out, and pilots here said that, though not impossible, it lacked all probabilities of success.

"It is hard enough to make the contacts over an airport, to say nothing of finding a plane moving at 80 or 100 miles an hour over the open ocean," one pilot said.

LEADER VOICES GRATITUDE

Acknowledges Roar of Throng as Family Looks On—Salutes Richmond Blues Battalion.

As an old hero whom New York takes repeated pleasure in welcoming because his charm and exploits remain forever new, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd was greeted by Mayor Walker at City Hall yesterday in what was the climax of the city's reception program.

About 10,000 persons in the grandstands and in and about City Hall, with another 40,000 in the immediate vicinity, joined in this tribute to the explorer. The platform from which the Mayor extended the welcome in behalf of the people of the city was crowded with distinguished guests, while the entire scene was one of bright color, joyous music and warm sentiment, marked repeatedly by tumultuous applause of the spectators and their cheers.

Paying due regard to Admiral Byrd's scientific achievements, it was as a humanitarian, as a great leader of men, as an inspiring example to the youth of the land that the Mayor welcomed the explorer and bestowed the city's medal of merit.

Standing calm and erect before the crowd in his immaculate white uniform, with his face tanned from his sojourn in the Canal Zone en route from the Antarctic, Admiral Byrd heard himself extolled by the Mayor as the man who had brought the North and South Poles together and as one who, by his courage, devotion to his calling and determination to grasp the secrets of the universe, had added glory to his country and enhanced the scope of human knowledge.

Mother and Wife Present.

Proudest of all in the audience which witnessed this eulogy were Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, the Admiral's mother, and his wife, who, each carrying a bouquet of flowers, stood with faces glowing a short distance from the spot at which the Mayor spoke.

No less proud was a group of Virginians headed by Governor Pollard, who had come to New York to participate in the welcome. They, too, occupied places close to the Mayor.

The first to greet Admiral Byrd on his arrival at City Hall, however, was his son, Richard E. Byrd Jr., and his daughters, Evelyn Bolling Byrd and Katherine Byrd. They were among the early arrivals and were taken to the Mayor's reception room to await the arrival of their father. Here they met the children of Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen, who with Mrs. McKee, were among the guests on the reviewing stand.

With "sincere and very deep gratitude" Admiral Byrd accepted the

BYRD IS PROUDEST OF ADVANCING FLAG

TELLS SCIENTIFIC FINDINGS

As objectively as an outsider, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd summed up yesterday the accomplishments and scientific discoveries of the expedition into Antarctica.

The outstanding achievements, to his mind, were the claiming of new land and mountain ranges of more than 125,000 square miles for the United States, and the discovery of carbonaceous material in the Queen Maud Mountains, including the probability of vast deposits of coal and possibly metals. He admitted, however, that these have no immediate value.

Aboard the City of New York, as he discussed the expedition informally while waiting until it was time to dress for the reception committee, the Admiral seemed, at first glance, the same slim and youthful figure. Closer inspection, however, belies the youthful appearance. There are lines of responsibility and worry in the returning Admiral's face today and threads of gray in the dark hair.

On the way up the bay, all informality was gone and he was the naval officer in crisp white uniform taking command of that monstrosity, a mass interview. Again in the afternoon at the Biltmore he submitted to the questioning of newspaper men, and again took command of the interview, steering into the channels he desired.

"A Matter of Providence."

It was the accomplishments of his associates about which he told, and it was the safe return of every man of which he was "glad above all else." Here, too, he declined the honors and said it was "a matter of Providence," although it was "surprising the number of dangerous situations which passed without mishap." This was his story:

"In the field of geology we investigated one of the most important points, geologically speaking, left in the world, the Queen Maud Mountains, about 300 miles from the South Pole. We sent out a dog sled party under Dr. [Lawrence] Gould. They discovered carbonaceous material at 5,000 feet and other material which proved that Antarctica was once tropical or semi-tropical. We investigated the newly discovered Rockefeller Mountains and found them to be granite and some of the oldest in the world.

30,000 MASS AT BATTERY

It was from the packed and sizzling sidewalks of New York that Admiral Byrd and his companions received the ovation yesterday which told them better than could the speeches of the dignitaries of the admiration of the city for their accomplishments and its joy at their safe return.

The acclaim poured out spontaneously from the throats of more than a half-million persons who lined the five-mile route over which they passed through the city. It had been matched only by the welcome to Colonel Lindbergh three years ago on his triumphant return from Paris.

Yesterday's reception was one in which all New York took part. Those who gave it ranged from the Mayor and other high officials to prisoners in the Tombs, who waved and shouted through the barred windows as Byrd sped by, and were rewarded with a cheery wave of the explorer's hand in return.

30,000 at the Battery.

Hours before the landing of Admiral Byrd and his companions the people of the city were getting ready to greet him. Long before noon the crowds were trooping to the Battery for a first glimpse of the polar heroes until some 30,000 finally had gathered there and in the streets leading to it.

The seawall was fringed with a dense mass and the windows and ledges of buildings looking down on the scene, from the Whitehall Building to the custom house, gradually became packed. The crowds had begun coming while the leaden sky showed a threat of rain, and they were still standing patiently when the clouds had melted and the sun was beating down.

The booming of a thirteen-gun salute on Governors Island was the signal which turned the reception from formality to an enthusiastic torrent of public acclaim. The eyes of the thousands along the Battery wall turned in the direction of the Statue of Liberty, and the first ticker-tape floated down from the Whitehall Building.

It was exactly 11:30 A. M. when the salute was fired. In front of the Whitehall Building waited 300 Boy Scouts in their khaki uniforms. They represented all boroughs of the city and five States, and were accompanied by a crack bugle and drum corps from Erie, Pa., home city of Scout Paul Siple, a member of the Byrd Expedition.

Crowds Pack Route to City Hall —Admiral Shares Honors With His Aides.

BUSINESS MEN HAIL HIM

He Is Guest at Two Functions —Party to Be Received by Hoover Today.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd came home from the end of the earth yesterday and New York cheered him and honored him and took him to its heart as an old friend returning from new adventures and new conquests.

It was a homecoming that would have quickened the pulse of a Nelson or a Farragut, but he insisted on sharing it with the sunbronzed men who had braved the bleak silences of Antarctica with him while he was preparing for his flight to the South Pole and back.

Nearly two years he had been gone, but New York had not forgotten him. The city's millions remembered the day he rode up Broadway, hailed as the conqueror of the North Pole. They remembered his gallant transatlantic flight, which came so near a tragic end, and they lifted up their voices as they have for no man since Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh captured their imagination by his solo flight from Roosevelt Field to Paris three years ago.

In the wild cacophony of the welcome they accorded Admiral Byrd and his gallant band were blended joy at his return with every member of his expedition safe and well, admiration for his achievement, honor and respect, and, no doubt among the boys that lined his path, more than a little hero worship.

The Byrd party left the Pennsylvania Station on a special train at 2 o'clock this morning for Washington, where they will be received at the White House as the nation's heroes.

Whole Nation Hears Welcome.

Radio carried the speeches of Mayor Walker, Grover A. Whalen and other official greeters to all the country and to foreign lands as well in the greatest hook-up ever arranged for a returning hero's reception. It carried, too, the throaty voice of the city's "Hello," but it could not convey the color and the motion of the pageant on the water, in the air and on the sidewalks of New York.

For the crowds that hailed him Admiral Byrd had a message. He had claimed for his country and theirs, he said, unexplored lands east of the British possessions in Antarctica, rich in carboniferous deposits, indicative of "enormous quantities of coal." He had added 125,000 square miles to the map of the world and added considerably, with the help of the experts with him, to the total of the world's knowledge of biological, geological and meteorological conditions at the bottom of the earth.

From the moment he stepped off the deck of his flagship, the three-masted bark City of New York, to the deck of the city's welcoming tug Macom at Quarantine amid a deafening din of sirens and steam whistles of seventy-odd craft until the day was done, Admiral Byrd was swept along at the will of the crowd with his fellow-explorers excepting one. One man, too modest to face the crowd, remained on the ice-battered old veteran of the Antarctic and smilingly waved adieu as the Macom pulled away. He was George Black, supply officer of the expedition.

Reunions Forced to Wait.

For the rest, separated from their kinsfolk for many long months, reunions had to wait, although some there were aboard who were anxious to see for the first time children born since they started on their great adventure into an almost unknown land. Admiral Byrd had no chance to greet his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, until the Macom was near her pier at the Battery, and his wife he did not meet until he reached City Hall.

Accredited representatives of Governor Roosevelt and of Secretary Adams of the navy were aboard the Macom as she steamed up the bay toward the Battery at the head of a marine parade of flag-bedecked harbor craft and fireboats shooting water aloft like whales spouting. As she passed Governors Island, siren shrieking, the dull boom of cannon was heard as a thirteen-gun salute in honor of the Admiral was fired.

From the whistling din of the harbor these men, grown accustomed to silence, stepped ashore into another bedlam of noise. It rang in their ears as they rode in triumph up Broadway through dense crowds ankle deep in ticker tape. Nice at carnival time never was more lavish with confetti than was the financial district yesterday with its ticker tape.

At City Hall before a crowd of 50,000 in specially constructed and gayly decorated grand stands and thronging the vicinity, Mayor Walker generously praised Admiral Byrd as a leader of men and as a scientist and the Admiral replied graciously, emphasizing that he could have accomplished nothing without the cooperation of his followers. Because he already has two of the city's welcome scrolls, Admiral Byrd received a portrait of himself by a noted artist and for the third time had the Medal of the City of New York pinned to the breast of his uniform.

A moment later another medal glistened in the sun beside it. It was the Public Schools Athletic League's Medal for Achievement Through Fitness, presented after a laudatory address by Dr. George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education. Then, while Admiral Byrd stood before the crowd, his white uniform covered in the somber black of an academic cap and gown, Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York University bestowed upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering.

Honored at Luncheon.

After more speeches and more cheers the procession moved on to the Advertising Club, where Admiral Byrd, the guest of honor, received still further honors. There, before a distinguished list of guests, Dr. John H. Finley, president of the American Geographical Society, presented to him the David Livingstone Gold Medal, the highest honor the society can give.

Others besides the expedition's leader stood out prominently in the reception. Russell Owen, correspondent of The New York Times with the expedition, whose daily stories from Antarctica won him the 1930 Pulitzer Prize, was seized and congratulated by fellow newspaper men who looked upon his assignment as the "perfect job." Reluctantly he allowed himself to be pushed before the microphone aboard the Macom after Admiral Byrd to say that he was "glad to be home, too."

Bernt Balchen, the hero of Admiral Byrd's transatlantic flight and the man who was at the stick when the Admiral flew over the South Pole last Winter, smilingly acknowledged the cheers which greeted him and chatted in friendly fashion with Mr. Walker and Mr. Whalen, whom he had met before.

Sharing the spotlight with Admiral Byrd, in the eyes of the unusually large number of boys and girls who took part in the display, was Paul Siple, the Boy Scout who had accompanied the expedition to the bottom of the world. He "would not have missed it," but he was "glad to be back."

While the heroes of the greatest adventure of this century were being fêted on land, the ships that carried them to Antarctica and back, the Eleanor Bolling and the City of New York, were receiving homage as they passed up the harbor and the Hudson River to their moorings at Pier 90 manned by a skeleton crew supervised by Igloo, the little fox terrier which Admiral Byrd left behind on his flagship when he came ashore to receive the city's tribute. Hundreds of ships tooted a salute to the grimy conquerors of the Antarctic ice.

Sightseers Visit Ships.

Hundreds of sightseers visited the ships. All afternoon the treasures of the expedition were being unloaded. Among them were specimens of life in the Antarctic, minerals and countless charts, records and other data, which when compiled will fill four volumes of scientific works, according to Admiral Byrd.

The tempo of the reception was not allowed to die down. At night Admiral Byrd and his followers were the guests of the Merchants' Association at the Hotel Astor. Governor John Garland Pollard of Virginia, the Admiral's native State, who came here with his staff to welcome home a man "who has helped make Virginia pre-eminent in exploration as she was in government," delivered the principal address. Other speakers were Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly, representing Mayor Walker, who was celebrating his own birthday anniversary, and Dr. Lawrence M. Gould, geologist of the expedition.

Reception Begins in Bay.

The reception began down the bay hours before the waiting crowds ashore had a chance to shout their greetings and toss ticker tape from windows to fall in yellow festoons over the cornices and doorways and complicate the lives of street cleaners.

It started when the black spars of the battered bark City of New York, which served as the Admiral's flagship, stood out against the hazy sky off Rosebank, S. I., before the eyes of watchers on the Macom, the Riverside and the Manhattan, and the craft which followed in their wake. Within hailing distance of her seagoing companion in adventure lay the rust-encrusted, grimy Eleanor Bolling, that stout little freighter which carried supplies from New Zealand to the edge of the pack ice surrounding the Barrier where the expedition camped through the long Winter night.

There were adventure and romance even in the appearance of the anchored vessels. To the stay-at-homes these two craft seemed to exemplify escape from the humdrum and the commonplace and they appeared to feel a vicarious thrill at the sight. About the scarred hulls of the two ships small craft clustered like the boats of West Indian divers begging coins from a tourist liner's passengers except for the gala bunting they were flying. It was a little like the scene at the finish line of a yacht race, but the bedraggled appearance of the Eleanor Bolling and the City of New York would have been incongruous in such a setting.

Los Angeles Gleams in Sky.

The navy dirigible Los Angeles gleamed silver in a ray of sunlight that pierced the clouds as she swam leisurely, gracefully above, flanked by two fat and stubby blimps. Like a swarm of hornets, airplanes roared overhead. Steam whistles screamed a hello, vibrantly, deafeningly. Through it all a radio broadcaster, straddling the rail of the Macom, tried to describe the scene to millions of listeners throughout the country.

Slowly, and as carefully as a motorist edging his way through Times Square at theatre time, the Macom's skipper manoeuvred his boat alongside the City of New York and lines were passed and caught. Bernt Balchen, the man who piloted Admiral Byrd to the South Pole and back, staggered out on deck, bearing a pair of skis, with a broad grin on his face, half hidden beneath a gray cap pulled over one eye. A brilliant green handkerchief protruded from his breast pocket.

Igloo, Admiral Byrd's little fox terrier pet, bounded and yipped about the deck, not so much in joy at being home perhaps as because the din of the whistles hurt his ears. Captain Frederick C. Melville, skipper of the City of New York, who had brought her home by way of New Zealand and Panama, stood on the bridge, a taciturn figure in spotless white.

The Admiral himself was not seen at first. But as Mr. Whalen jumped with the nimbleness of long experience from the Macom to the well deck of the City of New York, narrowly missing a bucket of potatoes, the leader of the expedition emerged from a group at the taffrail and shook hands with the former Police Commissioner as with an old friend. They had met before on similar occasions.

Relatives and friends shouted and cheered and asked questions across the intervening space of water. They were anxious to end the separation of two years, but they had to wait while the city sated its longing to shout, to whistle, to throw ticker tape and to see these men back from a wilderness of ice to which few men have ventured and from which fewer have returned. Some bit their lips nervously and a few wept.

Admiral Hustled to Microphone.

Admiral Byrd came aboard the Macom expecting to greet his mother, his brothers Tom and Harry Byrd, former Governor of Virginia, and his nieces and nephews, who had come along to see their illustrious uncle. It was not to be. Mr. Whalen hustled him to the top of the Macom's deck house to a microphone which Commissioner Albert Goldman of the Department of Plant and Structures had had installed as an innovation. It was from there that the hero of two polar flights and a transatlantic air crossing addressed his first words to the city that was waiting to hail him.

"Greetings to the city of New York," he said, ducking away from the instrument gingerly. Later he delivered a longer address. When that was done he was whisked below to the Macom's green-carpeted cabin for the customary interview. With sirens and whistles drowning his words every minute, he tried to explain the scientific achievements of the expedition.

"But above all," he said, "I am glad all the men are back safely, and for that we must thank Providence."

Facing a deficit of between $50,000 and $100,000, Admiral Byrd, puffing on a borrowed cigarette, the first he had permitted himself since leaving Panama, explained that he could not "talk about the future until I have settled up the present." There still remain large fields of exploration in Antarctica and South America which "people will try to find out about, for that is human nature," he said.

Among the scientific achievements of the expedition, he listed the discovery of carboniferous substances high in the Queen Maud Mountains, indicating the presence of "enormous deposits of coal," and showing that Antarctica, with its snow and ice, once basked in a tropical or semi-tropical climate. He had claimed all land east of the 150th meridian for the United States, added about 125,000 square miles to the maps of the world and disproved the existence of Carman Land, he said.

Receives Salute of Guns.

The booming guns of Governors Island cut short the interview as the Admiral hastened on deck to receive the salute. Then, as the Macom was warping into her pier, he had a moment to greet his mother, a frail woman in cream-colored satin, who had insisted upon remaining in the background. All she would say to newspaper men who talked with her on the trip down the bay was, "I never was so happy in my life."

But as she was reunited with her son she said:

"Next time you want to go on any exploration somebody's going to chloroform you."

On the deck of the Macom, above the earsplitting din of sirens, could be heard the thunderous roar of the city, deep throated and strong. Then the landing and the boarding of automobiles for the procession of triumph to City Hall.

With a squadron of mounted police leading the way under a Summer blizzard of ticker tape and tattered telephone books, the procession started a little after 12 o'clock.

Crowds Packed Along Route.

The Battery was a cheering mass of humanity. The Custom House steps made an unofficial grand stand with no limited capacity except that of the laws of physics. On Broadway Admiral Byrd, seated in the first car with Mr. Whalen, looked out on either side upon bodies and faces pressed so close together that individuality vanished.

If he looked up he saw faces, pressed against window panes, faces leaning over window ledges, faces peering at him from roof tops. It was not John Jones or Mary James who was hailing him, it was the city of New York, moved by admiration for the men who dared, witnessing a mammoth spectacle and caught up in a spontaneous burst of enthusiasm that cannot be counterfeited.

Most of the participants in the demonstration probably would have given half their lives to have lived through that hour or two of Admiral Byrd's life. It is doubtful though if many could have borne themselves with the modesty that he showed through the whole demonstration. Everywhere he concerned himself with seeing that the others who "helped put it across" received their share of attention.

The procession, as it moved slowly up Broadway between the towering skyscrapers of lower Manhattan, was an inspiring sight. The sleek horses of the mounted police, their clattering hoofs, the blaring bands, all helped to stimulate the crowd's enthusiasm.

In the parade marched the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, in their white duck trousers, blue tailed coats and shiny plumed shakoes, striding to the cadence set by the Sixteenth Infantry Band. The detachment of the Virginia regiment came to New York with Governor John Garland Pollard and Lieutenant Governor James H. Price, who participated in the city's welcome to one of their State's most famous sons.

The Seventy-first Regiment, in dress uniform, a battalion of the Sixteenth Infantry from Governors Island, in Summer khaki, detachments of sailors and marines from the navy yard in Brooklyn and a contingent of Boy Scouts, helped usher the heroes into City Hall Park where the Mayor was waiting to receive them, with members of his cabinet and distinguished citizens packed as tightly as could be into a specially erected grandstand.

Wife With Admiral.

There when the shouting died down beneath the stentorian voice of Hector Fuller, magnified by the amplifiers, Mr. Whalen presented Admiral Byrd to the Mayor. There too the Admiral was reunited with his wife, Mrs. Marie Byrd, who had journeyed down to Ambrose Lightship last night, hoping for a quiet word with him before the city took him from her.

Bad weather had prevented her boarding his flagship and she had returned to the Hotel Biltmore toward dawn disappointed and tired. She did not go down the bay with the other welcomers but she was one of the proudest auditors at City Hall as Mayor Walker extolled Admiral Byrd as a leader of men, as a scientist and as an example to the youth of the land.

Shy and retiring, she hovered inconspicuously near his side as he received a painting of himself and the city's medal and as Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, chancellor of New York University bestowed upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering.

More crowds, more speeches, more honors were in store for Admiral Byrd and his crew. When they left the City Hall amid cheers and the honking of automobile horns they rode up Centre Street, with the prisoners behind the bars of the Tombs cheering with the sidewalk throngs. Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street duplicated the scenes downtown.

Byrd Aide, Left at Battery, Tells Who He Is, but Crowds Laugh

Howard F. Mason of Seattle, a radio operator, listened to the reception in honor of the Byrd expedition which included himself, over the radio. One of the first off the Macom, with a ticket supposedly for any one of three cars in the parade, Mason tried the first and found it full of army officers who refused to make way. The second contained civilians, equally intent on staying where they were. The third held only two persons, but they assured him that the vacant seats were all reserved. He tried in vain to find another vacant car.

When the procession moved off he rode by subway to City Hall. There he could not force a way through the crowds. People laughed when he said he was a member of the Byrd expedition.

He took the subway uptown to The New York Times office and without informing any one of his plight asked for the radio room. He had frequently talked to The Times operators from Little America, and, after making a face to face acquaintance with men he felt he knew, he asked permission to listen to the reception.

When it was over he philosophically remarked: "I guess I enjoyed it better from here."

Seventy Tons of Paper Showered on Parade; Clearing of Litter to Cost the City $21,915

In addition to the $9,000 appropriated by the city to defray expenses of the Byrd reception, the Sanitation Department estimated yesterday that $21,915 would be spent in clearing away the torn paper used in Broadway's characteristic salute to the returning celebrities.

About 750 cubic yards of paper, water-soaked to make it easier to handle, were collected yesterday. It weighed seventy tons, in comparison to the 1,800 tons collected after the Lindbergh reception three years ago. Apparatus and men were drawn from six street cleaning districts. The force included twenty-seven flushing machines, twenty-three trucks, thirty-one officers, 420 sweepers and 315 drivers, most of the latter on dismounted duty, gathering up the waste. The daily estimated expense of the clean-up is $4,383 and the time required was estimated at five days.

Unfortunately for the telephone company, its new Summer directories appeared on Wednesday. Office workers along the Broadway canyon were quick to perceive that the new small books could be torn into floating fragments more readily than the old thick books, and many of the cascading bits of paper had been phone books before their reincarnation.

Members of the Sanitation Department's street cleaning division went to work in the wake of the parade. By 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon lower Broadway was reported pretty well cleared of paper and streamers, although some reluctant bits lingered on the roofs of buildings.

SCARS ON BYRD SHIP TELL OF BATTLE IN ICE

The two vessels of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, the bark City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling, completed their long voyage yesterday, tying up alongside of Pier 90 at the foot of Fiftieth Street at 1 P. M.

It was 12:30 P. M. when those at the head of the pier saw the masts and rigging of the bark loom through the haze. At the last moment feverish work had to be undertaken to move three big scows, one laden with sand and two with stone, from the north side of the pier. There was nobody, apparently, with authority to remove the obstructing craft, and a wharfinger finally shouted across to the City of New York to release one of her tugs.

A tug came to the rescue, the two Byrd ships had to manoeuvre about in order to keep steering way and nearly thirty minutes was lost. Finally the scows were taken somewhere up the river and the ships were tied up.

The sides of the City of New York showed plainly how she has been battered about. Long rents and holes have been ripped by the sharp ice and most of the paint had been scratched away. The solid planking and the steel stanchions have held perfectly, however, and aside from needed repairs the ship is evidently as fit as ever for further adventures.

The Eleanor Bolling's high bridge, which had been painted white recently, contrasted vividly with the rest of the ship from which paint has vanished. On the whole, however, the gallant little steamer seems strong and seaworthy.

As the long bowsprit of the City of New York swung in at her mooring place, it missed the tall funnel of a tugboat by inches. On the bridge stood Captain Milliken and Pilot Thomas Torgesen and in the galley opening stood the temporary cook.

Heaped on her decks and holds of the two vessels were bags and chests of the members of the expedition. Later in the afternoon many came back to get their belongings.

The unloading of the penguins was one of the first tasks. Men from the Museum of Natural History, supervised by an assistant curator, took charge of the penguin carcasses. Most of them had been on ice and were not packed. Others had been in cases, together with other species of dead Antarctic fauna. Sverre Eriksen, second mate of the City of New York, looked on while the dead animals were taken away. He shrugged his shoulders and remarked that it was a pity. Then he took a last look into the galley, where lay some meat, three big yellow onions and some bread.

"Good-by, cooky," he said to a mythical chef as he picked up his bags and went.

SEA AND SKY JOIN IN WELCOME FETE

SHORE DARK WITH PEOPLE

A gray sky with a patchwork of shredded clouds and an early morning mist which hung low above the dull water of the Narrows, softening the sharp peaks of downtown Manhattan, formed a somber background yesterday for the harbor's homecoming tribute to Admiral Byrd and his men.

From time to time, as the largest marine parade in three years made its way from Quarantine to the Battery, the sun broke through the sea haze to be reflected in veiled splendor from the oily surface of the bay. Fluttering bunting, trailing streamers of smoke from seventy vessels and plumes of steam from shrieking whistles were bright against the hazy skyline. Tugs, yachts, coast guard cutters, excursion steamers, a destroyer and dashing speed boats and launches churned the channel into foam.

Overhead a dozen planes roared and the Los Angeles floated lazily. The Navy's "Tin Bubble," the all-metal ZMC-2, frisked a few score feet above the scarred flagship, the three-master City of New York. Another blimp, the J-4, like her sister ships from Lakehurst, cruised about over the pageant below, completing the panorama of sky, sea and land.

Shores Dark With People.

The green slopes of the quarantine station just above Fort Wadsworth were dark with people, and the weather-beaten piers of Staten Island were crowded as the parade began to form. Long before the hour set for the arrival of the Macom and the Riverside and the beginning of New York's official welcome, a score of vessels were puffing about the City of New York, anchored slightly above Quarantine.

The battered sides of the bark were scraped time and again by eager tugs and speedboats. Two hundred yards downstream, bow light and her plates rusty, lay the tiny whaler Eleanor Bolling virtually ignored. Admiral Byrd seemed to be the focus of all eyes and his white uniform with its admiral's shoulder straps gleamed in vivid contrast to the shoddy deck and upperworks of his flagship.

The Vigilant, the flagship of the fleet of welcoming craft, with Captain R. Drace White, supervisor of the port, aboard, pushed alongside the bark. Captain White and Eugene F. Moran, chairman of the marine committee, called to Admiral Byrd and reaching across the gap between the two vessels, shook hands with him.

As paddle wheel excursion steamers, crowds of people black against their white superstructures, steamed down the channel toward the anchored ships, the Macom and the Riverside loomed out of the haze. As the Macom drew alongside the bark, the Riverside, listing heavily to port with the weight of her passengers, pulled out to the Vigilant. Her captain hailed Mr. Moran and explained that because too many persons had been allowed to board his ship at the Battery, he had no room for the crews of the City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling.

Takes Off Crew of Flagship.

The Macom accordingly crowded aboard both officers and crew of the sailing vessel, and the Vigilant was assigned to pick up the crew of the Bolling.

While white clouds of steam poured from the exhaust of the anchor engine of the bark and her rusty chain came up through the hawser pipe, the Macom pulled away and, accompanied by the crowded Riverside, headed up-stream. Whistles screamed as the vessels got under way and the convoying craft—gleaming yachts and snub-nosed, dingy tugs, the Tobasco, with Count von Luckner aboard, the big excursion steamer Americana and a dozen shining Coast Guard cutters—scurried after the Admiral. The Vigilant, with orders to take aboard the crew of the neglected Bolling, dropped down-stream, leaving her place in the fleet formation to a stodgy Merritt & Chapman floating crane.

The Bolling's crew, twenty-four men, with Captain Gustav L. Brown, spick and span in his uniform of an ensign in the Naval Reserve, in charge, climbed aboard the patrol boat and the Vigilant put on steam to catch up with the head of the procession. As she drew away from the rusty-sided whaler her crew gave three informal cheers: "one," Captain Brown explained, "for the ship, one for Snow Ball and one for Eleanor." Snow Ball, a native of Dunedin, is a black nondescript dog and Eleanor is a black-and-white cat, "fit to lick any dog that was on the ice," said Captain Brown. Eleanor started the long cruise to Antarctica with the ship in 1928.

Shortly after leaving Quarantine any semblance of the order that was to have been maintained in the marine parade was lost and the ships followed haphazardly in the wake of the Macom or clung to her flanks.

Thirteen-Gun Salute.

Far astern, her sails furled and puffing slowly along on her engine came the City of New York, while behind her, almost forgotten by the crowd, rode the Eleanor Bolling. Both of these vessels were taken up river by crews which relieved Admiral Byrd's men. The expedition ships dropped further and further behind and off Governors Island when a salute of thirteen guns to the Admiral roared out they were almost a half a mile astern of the procession.

As the parade neared the Battery thronged with people, eight streams of water poured suddenly in curving cascades of spray from the nozzles of a fire boat. The din of whistles which throughout the brief parade had been intermittent broke suddenly into a screaming crescendo, continuing for several minutes as the Macom pulled in alongside Pier A.

The Macom tied up about 11:40, a few minutes behind time, and soon after the Admiral was ashore.

The executive committee of the trustees of the American Museum at a meeting yesterday adopted a resolution electing Admiral Byrd an honorary fellow.

"The trustees of the American Museum of Natural History are keenly appreciative of the difficult problems in polar exploration that have been successfully accomplished by Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd and of his splendid achievements in the field of aviation," the resolution declared, "and in recognition of his contributions to the science of geography take pleasure in hereby electing him an honorary fellow of the American Museum of Natural History, the highest honor in the power of the trustees to bestow."

NATION HEARS STORY OF BYRD WELCOME

Short Wave Circuits Added to American Chains to Carry Full Description Abroad.

The most extensive and far-reaching radio network ever assembled to carry the description of a returning hero or visiting notable in New York functioned perfectly yesterday to tell the story of how Rear Admiral Byrd and his comrades came up the harbor and were received at City Hall after sixteen months in the Antarctic.

The radio networks extended from coast to coast in the United States. Associated short-wave stations, which are heard regularly in most of the countries of the world, broadcast in unison with the networks which were represented in New York by WEAF, WABC, WJZ, WOR and WNYC.

Microphones Covered Wide Area.

The microphones which picked up the program were scattered over New York's downtown area between the Battery and City Hall. A microphone on wheels was placed in service for WEAF and WJZ to carry the story of the parade as it moved along lower Broadway. Tugs in the harbor, including the new short-wave installation on the city's welcoming craft, the Macom, carried word-pictures to the land radio systems.

The transmission of the Macom was received by a specially installed short-wave receiving depot at South Ferry, carried by land wire to the Municipal Building and WNYC for broadcasting on the regular program wave of the city station. This was also carried from WNYC by wire line to WABC and the Columbia System of sixty-three stations extending from coast to coast.

The description broadcast from the lower harbor by the networks of WEAF and WJZ, which included more than seventy-five stations, was picked up from the special tug Relief, employed by the National Broadcasting Company.

The Relief sailed up the harbor with the City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling. The transmissions from the Relief were intercepted ashore on special receivers in New Jersey, Long Island and Manhattan.

Byrd in Radio Greeting.

Station WNYC began broadcasting from the Macom at 9:35 A. M., Eastern Daylight Time, and shortly after 11 A. M. the voice of Admiral Byrd, sending a brief "hello" to relatives and friends ashore, came from the loud-speakers.

"It is good to be back again—it is good to have this reception, and it's great to have Grover Whalen meet me here a third time," he said. "This is a good chance to express my appreciation for the send-off New York gave me."

His words and those which followed in rapid succession from the Macom's new station, WBCD, as the craft neared Pier A, were probably heard by more people than the words of any other visiting celebrity at New York. Thomas Cowan was the announcer on the Macom.

As the Macom approached the Battery, the increased din from the whistles and the cheers along the waterfront repeatedly drowned out the words of the announcers.

When the Macom was fastened to the pier, Graham McNamee asked Admiral Byrd to speak into a microphone which was held out to him from the pier.

"Hello, everybody, how are you?" said Admiral Byrd.

Then the parade started, with the radio car of the WEAF and WJZ systems in line, broadcasting a description of the trip up lower Broadway to City Hall. The voice of George Hicks, from the mobile transmitter, carried quite clearly to six short-wave receiving points located between the Battery and City Hall.

Broadcast at City Hall.

In addition to the entire networks of WABC, WEAF, WJZ and WNYC, WOR joined the broadcasters from City Hall, beginning at 12:30 o'clock The welcoming address by Mayor Walker, Admiral Byrd's' reply of appreciation and the other ceremonies heard over the radio from the Aldermanic Chamber.

At about 1:15 P. M. the networks and local stations signed off until 1:45, when most of them went on the air again from the New York Advertising Club luncheon, at which Admiral Byrd was guest of honor.

Russell Owen, correspondent of The New York Times, who won the Pulitzer prize for reporting the expedition, spoke briefly over the radio to say that he was "glad to be back, too."

Bernt Balchen, who piloted Rear Admiral Byrd over the South Pole, said:

"I am having a great time. I never expected anything like this today. We are looking forward to seeing friends and a little later will tell you more about the exploration. We would not have missed it for anything."

When Admiral Byrd and his men are at Washington today, where the expedition's leader is to receive the National Geographic Society's special gold medal from President Hoover, the proceedings will be broadcast over WEAF's nation-wide network between 9:30 and 10 P. M., Eastern Daylight Time. The meeting will be held in the Washington Auditorium. There Admiral Byrd will give the first detailed account of his trip.

REPRESENTS NEW ZEALAND.

J. W. Collins at Byrd Reception—Hopes Explorer Will Return.

The people of New Zealand, whose hospitality has been lauded by Rear Admiral Byrd and whose government extended courtesies which aided the expedition materially, were represented at the reception yesterday by J. W. Collins, Commissioner for New Zealand in the United States and his wife. They were present at the invitation of the expedition's commander.

"Magnificent" and "inspiring" were words used yesterday afternoon by Mr. Collins in describing the celebration. He expressed for his country the hope that Rear Admiral Byrd would continue his exploration of Antarctica and would again be welcomed in New Zealand.

50,000 AT CITY HALL SEE BYRD HONORED

Mayor's greeting in behalf of himself and his eighty companions. Recalling the two previous occasions when he had been welcomed by the city, following his flight over the North Pole and his transatlantic flight, Admiral Byrd declared that this time he and his companions were glad to take advantage of an opportunity to congratulate the Mayor, for yesterday was the Mayor's birthday.

Admiral Byrd also thanked the Mayor and Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the Mayor's committee, for remembering to honor all the men of the expedition, each of whom received the city's medal of merit, as did the Admiral himself. An additional gift for the Admiral was an oil painting of himself in a Polar setting. The Mayor expressed the hope that he would hang the painting where the people of New York might view it frequently.

Other features of the reception were the conferring upon Admiral Byrd of the degree of Doctor of Engineering by New York University through Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown and a greeting by George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, who, in welcoming Admiral Byrd in behalf of the board and the 1,200,000 school children of the city, presented to him the Achievement Through Fitness Medal.

Crowds Gather Early.

Long before the noon hour, the time set for the arrival of Admiral Byrd, the thousands eager to welcome the explorer and his men began gathering at City Hall. By 11 o'clock the grand stands, decorated with laurel and the municipal colors, were filled. From City Hall and near-by buildings floated the flags of the nation and city. Perched on the City Hall balcony was the Department of Sanitation Band.

From hundreds of windows surrounding the plaza men and women watched patiently for the arrival of the Admiral and the welcoming procession. Scores of thousands who did not have tickets to the grand stands filled the surrounding streets, eager for a glimpse of the polar hero and anxious to add their bit to the welcome. A continuous shower of paper and ticker tape descended upon the mass of humanity. The bright-tinted dresses of the women and the uniforms of the naval and military detachments were drenched in brilliant sunshine. The metal throats of a dozen loud-speakers permitted the crowd to follow the progress of the welcoming procession from the Battery, but even these rasping, thundering heralds were drowned out by the cheer that arose as the first troop of mounted police leading the procession swung from Broadway into the plaza.

The clock on City Hall showed 12:15 when the procession arrived and Hector Fuller of the Mayor's staff presented the executive and his official and military entourage. Following immediately behind the police escort was the Sixteenth Infantry Band from Governors Island, with the Brooklyn Navy Yard Band immediately behind it. A battalion of the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, which had come here from Virginia to participate in the reception, received an extra outburst of applause as it marched by in blue uniforms with white facings and shakos. The Seventy-first Regiment, New York National Guard, in dress uniforms, was next in line and took a position on the north side of the square. At the south side was the Sixteenth Infantry Battalion, marine and navy detachments from the Brooklyn Navy Yard and a contingent of Boy Scouts. Additional mounted police and the Police and Fire Department Bands completed the uniformed forces.

Admiral Acknowledges Cheers.

Promptly at 12:30 o'clock, the hour set for his arrival, the automobile bearing Admiral Byrd and Mr. Whalen rolled into the plaza, the Admiral rising in the machine to acknowledge the thunder of cheers and handclapping that greeted his appearance. His face was beaming as he bowed to the right and left, now doffing his cap and now saluting. He then again took his seat in the automobile as he prepared to alight to be presented to the Mayor.

In presenting Admiral Byrd to the Mayor, Mr. Whalen said:

"Mr. Mayor, on the first visit of Rear Admiral Byrd to this city officially, he came as the conqueror by air of the North Pole. On his second visit, he came as the conqueror by air of the South Pole and the discoverer of over 125,000 square miles of land for the United States. He brings this back as a sort of greeting to you. It is unnecessary for me to say anything further."

Greeting Admiral Byrd the Mayor said:

"Personally, Rear Admiral Byrd, the Mayor of the city of New York is convinced that the people of the city of New York on two previous occasions convinced you of the affection they had in their hearts for you. No one had ever anticipated that the enthusiasm manifested by the people of the city of New York on two previous occasions when you returned to our midst could be excelled in any city or for any reason. But today New York, in its anxiety to welcome you again to its arms, has outdone any previous effort it has made. And well might that be so.

"I suppose, for the next few weeks at least, distinguished scientists and orators will tell you what you did in and about and for the Antarctic and the South Pole. The Mayor of the city of New York is going to admit that he doesn't know, and he is going to make the further admission that he can't tell you anything that you don't know, about what you have accomplished. But he can say to you that the admiration which this, the most cosmopolitan population in all the world, had for you heretofore, the appreciation of your courage, your high intelligence, your superlative patriotism, have been enhanced by the greater glory you have now added to your country and your additional contribution to science."

Praises Leader's Foresight.

Commenting on "the intelligence, farsightedness and ingenuity" with which Admiral Byrd planned and carried out his exploration, the Mayor said that it was thanks to the meticulous care applied by him that he was able to bring back all his men safe and sound.

"Yours was a great scientific accomplishment, science will tell us," the Mayor continued, "but your humanitarianism was never overlooked. Your high regard for your fellow man and the devotion that you have in your heart for him, as evidenced by the protection with which you surrounded him, marks you, Rear Admiral Byrd, as one of the finest humans ever born into this world throughout its entire history.

"And so today New York is joyous. Everything is apparently forgotten for the moment, or the hour. For the first time in a long while, I am informed, men have stopped looking at the ticker tape to throw it at you with the love wrapped around it that everybody in this city has for you. Even at great personal sacrifice public officials have consented to stop in their activities to join in this great gathering and tell you once agan, 'Hello, Dick, we are glad you are home.' You have done so much to make us happy, you have done so much to make us proud. In the parlance of the day and in the vernacular of this old town I have heard it said that men from time to time played both ends against the middle. I don't know what it means, but I do know that if there is anything in it you went them one better, for you have played both ends and the middle by bringing the Poles together and crossing both of them, together with the Atlantic Ocean.

"So, from the bottom of our hearts, full as we have never known it before with admiration, with pride and with love, the people of the city of New York authorize me to say to you, 'Welcome home, welcome home, forever and a day.' "

Explorer Makes Reply.

Mayor Walker then pinned the gold medal of the city on Admiral Byrd, who after being presented to the audience by Mr. Whalen, made the following reply to the Mayor's greeting:

Your Honor, the Mayor, Ladies and Gentlemen: I am quite moved by the words of the Hon. James J. Walker. I want to say to you first that I stand here as the spokesman for the seventy-odd men of our expedition, and for them and for myself we want to give to the people of New York City our very sincere and very deep gratitude.

First, the people of New York helped in a very large measure to make possible our expedition, and then, when we left for Antarctica about two years ago, you wished us godspeed. And while we were down there, especially during the long Winter night, you helped us endure the monotony by your cheerful messages, in which the Chief Executive of this city, James J. Walker, took the leading part. And now, when we come back, you tell us you are glad to see us, and give us this remarkable welcome. Is it any wonder, then, that every man in this expedition feels deeply grateful to the citizens of New York? His Honor, the Mayor, has mentioned the two other expeditions that we took part in and the welcomes we received when we got back. There are twelve men here who were on the South Pole expedition who also were at the North Pole, and there are three men here who were on the North Pole, the transatlantic, and the South Pole.

We want especially to thank you and bring back to your memory today the other two occasions when you have honored us.

Congratulates the Mayor.

Perhaps there is no other man in the whole United States who could make us feel so welcome as has your Mayor today. It is because of that remarkable combination of his friendliness for us and his extraordinary eloquence. Your Honor the Mayor, this time we have something to congratulate you for, and it is a very happy occasion when we can congratulate you. The seventy-odd members of my expedition wish you many happy returns of the day on your birthday; happiness and prosperity as long as you live!

I want to tell you, Grover Whalen and James Walker and the city of New York, why I am delighted that you have seen fit to honor every member of this expedition instead of just two or three of us. When we left here we went into a kind of another world. There was the absence of most of the things that make for civilization as we know it—the green fields, the trees, the noises and the home life and the thousand and one things that make civilization what it is. Our life was a primitive one, and a simple one. Down there at the bottom of the world every man had to stand on his own feet for what he was as a man. Social position, wealth, fame, past efficiency—none of those things counted one bit. What only counted was how a man served his own manhood and the expedition. And so, values completely changed.

I want to emphasize that point, that values completely changed, and things unimportant in civilization became very important then and there. And so some of the lowliest jobs produced some of the best results for the success of the expedition, and that is the reason why I am grateful that every man has been recognized by the city of New York.

We are glad that we did what we set out to do. We are glad that the expedition has been a success; but, above all, I am glad that every man has come back safely to his people, to his friends, to his relatives, to his family.

Dons Cap and Gown.

Donning cap and gown, Admiral Byrd was thereupon presented to Chancellor Brown by Dr. George Alexander, president of the Council of New York University, to receive the honorary degree. Dr. Alexander presented the explorer as "Admiral of the Icy Seas and of the Viewless Air, who has said to the North, 'Give up,' and to the South, 'Hold not back'."

In conferring the degree, Chancellor Brown said:

"Richard Evelyn Byrd, there are countless reasons for the conferment upon you of a university degree. To enumerate them would be to tell the story of your life, and that story the world already knows by heart. But it is fitting that a few of the reasons be singled out for mention at this time. You are a poet, if creative and courageous imagination makes a poet, and your lines have gone out through all the earth, even unto the ends of the world. You are a scientist who has learned and taught the most difficult and characteristic lesson of modern research, namely, the concentration of many sciences upon one central and significant problem. You are a warrior who has employed your proficiency in the arts of war to the ends of a peaceful conquest of the world. You are a man of academic learning, and Phi Beta Kappa has gone wherever you have gone. You are a lover and master of life, in man and beast; a maker of friends in both kingdoms, and when we heard that you had brought back not only the precious personnel of the expedition intact, but all of those faithful dogs as well, we knew that something more than mere efficiency had entered into your supreme achievement.

"There are deeper sanctities in your life into which a stranger may not enter, but they light up that supreme achievement of yours as from a light within. You are a maker of the American ideal of citizenship. The student youth of our land are the less moved by the low cynicism that is now abroad, their tone is higher and more heroic, for what you and your associates have done.

"Wherefore, New York University, which has borne for ninety-nine years the name of this city and now shares in the city's welcome to you, brings you besides a welcome of its own to its immediate fellowship. We have caught from you a new vision of what the engineers of the future, using the lesser certainties of their profession for the accomplishment of vast designs, may give into the larger life of mankind."

Medals Are Presented.

Following the greeting by President Ryan, Mayor Walker presented the city's medal to all members of Admiral Byrd's crew, as the names were read off. Then came the presentation of the painting to the Admiral. The program was closed with the singing of The Star-Spangled Banner by Miss Anna Case, soprano.

Admiral Byrd left City Hall at 1:18 o'clock and another tremendous cheer went up as the car bearing the Admiral, Mayor Walker and Mr. Whalen drove off. Admiral Byrd stood up in the automobile saluting the crowd and directed a special salute toward the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, who stood at attention as he drove away to attend the luncheon in his honor by the Advertising Club.

Attending the reception at City Hall were representatives of the army, navy, Naval Militia and National Guard, consuls general, members of the Board of Estimate and of the Mayor's Cabinet and many specially invited guests. City employes acted as ushers.

Mrs. Walker and Mrs. John F. Curry, wife of the leader of Tammany Hall, occupied boxes in the grand stand and had with them several guests. In the Mayor's box were Thomas F. McAndrews, his secretary; William Walker, the Mayor's nephew, and his wife; the Rev. John Hickey, the Mayor's pastor, and the Rev. William A. Courtney, president of the Child Welfare Board. Among the prominent men on the reviewing stand was Robert Underwood Johnson, former Ambassador to Italy.

In the crowd which awaited the arrival of Admiral Byrd were two messenger boys, each bearing a telegram for Admiral Byrd, one from Governor Frank Allen of Massachusetts and the other from Mayor Curley of Boston. Each telegram bore the signatures of 5,000 persons greeting Admiral Byrd. The Governor's message mentioned the little-known fact that the Admiral had been born in Massachusetts, and said the State was proud of him. The messengers were accompanied by D. A. Sullivan, New York manager of the Postal Telegraph, and J. F. McNeil, superintendent of the Postal system in the United States.

The police arrangements at City Hall worked perfectly. Both Chief Inspector O'Brien and Inspector McAuliffe were on the scene directing operations. Police Commissioner Mulrooney also attended.

ADMIRAL MINIMIZES PERIL

Gov. Pollard Voices the Pride of Virginia—Hilly, Dr. Gould and Balchen Also Speak.

Twelve hundred of the leading business and professional men of the city acclaimed Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his associates of the Byrd Antarctic Expediiton at the dinner given in their honor by the Merchants' Association at the Hotel Astor last night.

Rarely has so distinguished a gathering met to honor an explorer. Rear Admiral Byrd was applauded when he entered with Willis H. Booth, president of the association. There was more applause for him and his associates during the references to them by the speakers and still more when the Rear Admiral rose at the end of the speaking program to acknowledge the reception.

Mr. Booth presided but the speech of welcome to the returning explorers, who left New York nearly two years ago, was made by Lincoln Cromwell, first vice president of the association. Other speakers were Governor John Garland Pollard of Admiral Byrd's home State of Virginia, Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly and Dr. Lawrence M. Gould, geologist of the expedition.

Just before the beginning of the speeches, Mr. Booth declared a recess of five minutes, during which photographs of Admiral Byrd and his associates were taken. The assemblage was called to order after the orchestra had played the "Star-Spangled Banner" and Mr. Booth first offering a toast to the President of the United States, offered a toast to Admiral Byrd's wife and mother, who were in a box opposite the dais.

Later Mr. Booth presented Rear Admiral Byrd's two brothers, Harry F. Byrd, former Governor of Virginia, and Thomas Byrd, the members of the gallant group who flew with the Rear Admiral over the South Pole and, at Admiral Byrd's request, all the members of the expedition.

In proposing the toasts Mr. Booth referred to the fact that at a recent Merchants' Association function the toast to the President-elect of Brazil was drunk in coffee out of compliment to the principal export of that country.

"Similarly, in appreciation of where you have been, and for other reasons, these toasts are drunk in ice water," Mr. Booth added.

Finds World Has Gone Ahead.

Rear Admiral Byrd in reply deprecated personal compliments to himself.

"I stand here as spokesman for my companions because they deserve equally well with me," he said. "So in their name as well as for myself I want to thank you for this wonderful welcome. This is a great contrast with the Antarctic. This is our first dinner in the United States, and it is great to be here. I find a great many changes. The world has gone on while we were away. We have got to catch up with it, but I find they are still drinking toasts with ice water.

"Now there is another member of the expedition who is a good talker. It is good to have these fellows who can go to the bat for me when I get into this kind of trouble. That is Davies, we call him 'Taffy' Davies, the physicist of the expedition, a representative of the British Empire, and strange to say, the most talkative man in the expedition. But 'Taffy' says he has to talk a lot to defend himself against the Americans. It is very gratifying—by the way, before I go on I will tell you another thing that 'Taffy' said. I asked him one day what he missed most in civilization and 'Taffy' answered, 'Temptation.'

Gives Thanks for Help.

"It is extraordinarily gratifying that this very old and very distinguished association has seen fit to recognize the scientific aspects of our expedition. It was the merchants and business men of this city who did a very great deal indeed to make the expedition possible by their generous donations. In fact, without them and their help the expedition would have been absolutely impossible, and after making it possible you give us this wonderful reception and welcome and have said 'Well done' to us on our return, and we do appreciate it.

"We used the equipment, most of which came from New York, to the best advantage we could, and I will say that we did not suffer hardships unduly down there. I believe with ordinary organization any one who would go into such an expedition could accomplish what we did. Due to the good equipment we got here, there was not the slightest bit of scurvy. Thousands of men have died in the Arctic from scurvy. In fact, most of the men down there gained weight. It was a kind of a discovery in itself to find we could go down there to the bottom of the world, cut off for many months from civilization by an impenetrable field of ice that all the world could not have reached us if we had gotten into trouble; down there, in a country that is in the clutches of an ice age such as existed up north here twenty-five thousand years ago—I say, it was a kind of a discovery to find that we could endure it without undue hardships."

Refers to Unique Feats.

It was the second time the Merchants' Association had extended a welcome home to Rear Admiral Byrd, whose explorations have put him in the unique position of having flown over both poles of the earth, and Mr. Cromwell made reference to this at the beginning of his address.

"New Yorkers come naturally by a love for those who dare," Mr. Cromwell said. "The merchant has always been the pioneer, and New York was founded by men called merchant adventurers, who sailed across the unknown seas in the search of commerce. We have in our veins the blood of those who sent Hendrik Hudson to Manhattan, Captain John Smith to Jamestown to plant the colonies which became the States of New York and Virginia, which join in this welcome tonight.

"We greet Admiral Byrd for a daring exploit. He thrilled us by his flight around the South Pole and by telling the world about it while his plane was circling in the air. It was great matter for the papers and will be wonderful in the movies. Admiral Byrd did not need another blue ribbon on the air. He had already flown over the North Pole with Floyd Bennett, and he had captained the only transatlantic flight in a plane carrying four passengers. Glory enough for any one man.

Expedition for Science.

"This last expedition was made in the service of science. I need not remind you that scientific research is the mother of invention and of economic progress. Within a lifetime scientific research has created many of our largest industries. It has given us electric power, the telephone and the radio. It has created the gas engine and with it the automobile and the airplane. It has given new employment to millions and created untold wealth. It has remodeled our homes, our cities and our businesses.

"In its cause the Byrd Antarctic expedition was sent out to explore the only unexplored continent on earth, a continent half again as large as the United States; to study its geology and geography, its unique conditions of magnetism, of electricity and weather. A fund of information has been brought back to us. While we wait for the future to decide its economic value, let us remember that Europe took over a hundred years to find any value in America after Columbus had discovered it.

"But we have a third and better reason for welcoming Admiral Byrd with enthusiasm. He has given us a new inspiration of courage. He has exemplified the ideal of education which is to know ourselves and to know our environment so that we can climb on top of our environment and never let it ride us.

"Courage, determination and the other qualities which lift men up are contagious. There is not a man worth his salt who has not gained courage and confidence in himself by the success of Admiral Byrd. When we are depressed by market conditions, when we begin to doubt our ability to carry on, let us remember the hazards met and overcome by Byrd and his comrades in that plane, Balchen, June and McKinley, as they hovered over the pole."

Mr. Cromwell ended with a paraphrase of Henley's poem, "The Unconquered," as follows:

It mattered not that the task was great,
That charged with danger was the scroll.
Byrd was the master of his fate,
He was the captain of his soul.
He dared the power of air and sea
To bar his flight to pole and pole.
With such example God grant we

Extends City's Greetings.

"It is a splendid thing to contemplate the picture of the achievement and the deeds that have been accomplished by this valiant leader and the splendid crew that accompanied him, the work that has been done for science," said Mr. Hilly.

"But while he has been away, there has been something different by reason of the advance and progress of science in connection with his expedition.

"We have endeavored during the time of his absence to communicate with him and many of us have sat up until the late hours listening to the broadcasts to the expedition. We have read daily of the activities that were going on and we feel that we have been with you all the time, but we did not have to endure the toil and the suffering that these men endured.

"It is indeed a pleasure and an honor to be a part of this splendid group gathered here tonight to extend this welcome. In the name of the city of New York, I echo again the welcome that has been extended from this morning to this evening. You are indeed welcome, as you always have been and always will be, in the city of New York."

Pollard Voices Pride of State.

Governor Pollard voiced the pride that Virginia feels in the achievements of Rear Admiral Byrd.

"It is recorded of Alexander the Great that after he had conquered the world he sat down and wept that there were no more world's to conquer," Governor Pollard said, addressing Rear Admiral Byrd. "You have conquered both the North Pole and the South Pole. I pray you not to sit down and weep that there are no more poles to conquer.

"Nature still has locked up within her bosom many secrets which may be unlocked by the key of exploration. You have proven yourself a master locksmith and my wish for you is that you may continue to ply your handicraft and open wide the door of knowledge.

"In conclusion, let me say that history is replete with accounts of celebrations of the return home of the conquering heroes of war. Celebrations in honor of explorers are of comparatively recent origin.

"Let us hope that this is an indication of a greater appreciation of the heroes of peace. I would not if I could detract from the glory of those heroes of war who in the course of history have received the homage of mankind. But I rejoice, Admiral Byrd, with you in the thought that your conquests have inflicted no suffering on others. You have shed no blood. You have taken no lives. You have made no widows and orphans. So may it always be with the heroes of the future."

Gould Named Dog Al Smith.

Dr. Gould, second in command of the expedition, praised the dogs that made possible his 1,500-mile sledge expedition for geological data.

"I have not time to tell you of the personality and charm of the husky dogs, but I can't help tell you about my own personal dog," Dr. Gould said. "He was a remarkable dog and when only eight months old we took him on this long 1,500-mile trip. Ordinarily a dog should not be worked until he is a year and a half old.

"My dog was a great dog and developed great qualities of leadership. It has been the custom in times past to name dogs after great explorers and we had Peary, Amundsen, Shackleton, Wilkins and a great many others. Wishing to be more original, I ventured into realms far removed from polar exploration for the name of my dog. I am not sufficiently familiar with the political complexion of my audience to say that it was because or in spite of his name that my dog made a distinguished record. I do not think, however, that his name did him any harm. His name is Al Smith."

Laughter followed Dr. Gould's statement. Mr. Booth then introduced Bernt Balchen, pilot of the polar flight. Mr. Balchen, obviously embarrassed, was received with enthusiastic applause.

"This is a great surprise to be asked to make a speech," he said. "I am absolutely unprepared. I want to take this opportunity to thank the Admiral for the opportunity he bestowed upon me to fly the plane over the Pole with him. I want to take the opportunity to thank my shipmates for the good fellowship down there. I am sorry the expedition is over. Thank you."

The introduction of Mr. Balchen ended the speaking program, which was broadcast over the WJZ network of the Radio Corporation and the network of the Columbia Broadcasting Company.

Those on the dais in addition to the speakers included former Governor Harry F. Byrd and Thomas Byrd, brothers of the Rear Admiral, and Dean Smith, Captain H. H. Railey, Bernt Balchen, Captain Ashley C. McKinley, Captain Alton U. Parker and Harold I. June of the Byrd expedition, Lieutenant Governor James H. Price of Virginia, J. Byrd Ships Send Out Final Radio Messages; Admiral and His Crews Thank The Times

A message from Admiral Byrd aboard the City of New York and one from the personnel of the Eleanor Bolling, both expressing appreciation for the cooperation given by THE NEW YORK TIMES radio Station WHD, were the final wireless communications sent yesterday from the Byrd ships. When these messages had been sent, Station WFBT on the City of New York and Station WFAT on the Eleanor Bolling ceased functioning forever as units of the Byrd expedition.

The message from the Eleanor Bolling, received at 10:07 A. M., was as follows:

S. S. Eleanor Bolling, June 19, 1930. Radio Staff, NEW YORK TIMES Radio Station WHD:

It is with sincere regret that we file this, our final message upon the return of the Eleanor Bolling to her home port and the disbanding of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition after nearly two years' absence on a scientific expedition in the Antarctic. During this time your station has provided excellent daily communication with our relatives and friends. The personnel of your station has shown at all times the utmost courtesy and consideration, sometimes under most trying conditions. We deeply appreciate this and take this opportunity of expressing our heartfelt thanks. May your every endeavor reap continued success evermore.

Bolling Boys of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition aboard the Eleanor Bolling.

The Eleanor Bolling's wireless operator then added, "G. B. [meaning good-bye]; will see you at City Hall."

The message from Admiral Byrd was received at 10:17 A. M. and read as follows:

Bark City of New York, June 19, 1930. TIMES Radio WHD, TIMES, New York:

In closing down our radio communications with this final contact I once more wish to express our deep appreciation of the splendid radio contact which Station WHD has given us and which has made possible the efficient functioning of all units, besides contributing enormously to the morale of all the personnel. We are deeply grateful to all your efficient staff and you have the best wishes of us all.

R. E. BYRD.

When the wireless operator on the City of New York had finished sending this message, he radioed, "This is finis for WFBT," then added the signal letters, "S. K.," meaning "end of transmission."

5 MILES OF CROWDS CHEER EXPLORERS

The procession was led by the U. S. destroyer 234. As her gray, rakish bulk neared Pier A and the gay colors of the flags and bunting which bedecked her followers became discernible, the uproar reached its peak. Sirens on harbor craft were tied down. Bells clanged. Hundreds of automobile horns honked. The crowd which had massed along the Battery wall poured north in Battery Park and policemen shouted through the din as they labored to hold back the bulging curbstone lines. A cheer which swept through the pressing masses was drowned out as several airplanes dipped low, their engines roaring deafeningly.

Elevated Station a Grandstand.

By this time faces had appeared at every window of the Whitehall Building and torn paper was falling thick and fast. The elevated station over Battery Place was jammed and from Pier A to Broadway crowds filled the sidewalks from curbstone to building line on one side of Battery Place and from curbstone to park railings on the other.

For twenty minutes the hundreds of persons who had made the trip to Quarantine trickled through the long corridor of Pier A. They carried topcoats and cameras and were laughing, excited. Police directed them to the official cars. A score of camera men gathered in front of the exit and at 11:55 the Rear Admiral appeared, side by side with Grover A. Whalen. Both were smiling. In a single sweep the explorer's keen eyes took in the spectacle which awaited him. The crowd applauded as he posed for the camera men. With Mr. Whalen he walked quietly to the leading car and stood in the rear, head bared, while the crowd again shouted its approval and cameras clicked.

To one of the photographers Rear Admiral Byrd said, an amused smile playing across his lips, "It's a long time since I've seen you." The surprised camera man said he was from Richmond, Va. As one unit of the parade after another fell into line and marched away, Mr. Whalen and the explorer chatted, surveying the scene. Chief Inspector John O'Brien talked for a moment with the former Police Commissioner and Rear Admiral Byrd signed a number of autographs, one of them on an automobile license belonging to a mechanic who had somehow slipped through the police lines.

From the time Rear Admiral Byrd and Mr. Whalen entered their car until the Richmond Blues received their order to march, the troops stood rigid at present arms. The explorer nodded his approval as they shouldered their rifles and wheeled into column.

As the car bearing the hero of the day rolled slowly toward Broadway tiny flags waved above the heads of the throngs and there were spontaneous outbursts of cheering and handclapping. At Bowling Green the seated bronze figure of Abraham De Peyster, honored in life more than two centuries ago, gazed solemnly down from his stone pedestal upon the passing procession, the crowds and falling paper, seeming to meditate upon the triumphs of another generation.

Perch on Window Ledges.

Lower Broadway was packed from curb to building line with men, women and children. Every window was filled with faces. Even the precarious perches provided by window ledges high above the street were occupied by office girls in their bright Summer dresses.

The crowds had been quiet and hushed while awaiting the explorers. They stirred with expectancy as the mounted police escort swept around Bowling Green into view. They applauded the troops swinging by in trim lines. And then as they picked out Admiral Byrd in his glistening white uniform they burst into a welcoming roar and Admiral Byrd smiled back.

Here and there along the route, as Admiral Byrd's car passed, groups of spectators broke through the police lines, but they were almost immediately driven back. In front of 39 Broadway a knee-high pile of ticker tape and confetti caught fire from a dropped match and added to the excitement. An alarm was turned in and fire apparatus came screeching down past the line of march, but meanwhile the fire was put out by an extinguisher from a neighboring building.

On up Broadway the explorers traveled, pleased and seemingly a little dazed by the magnitude of the welcome. Admiral Byrd stood up from time to time and waved his cap. He was smiling his quiet smile all the while, and sometimes laughing at some particularly ingenious form of greeting.

At Broadway and Wall Streets the procession passed a building under construction, with a sidewalk coving sheathed waist-high with sheetiron. Workers hung on the girders and cheered and other spectators with canes and sticks beat out a deafening tattoo on the sheetiron. Admiral Byrd laughed and waved them a special greeting. A bunch of fire-crackers thrown from an office building went off with sputtering reports.

Now and then, through the roar of the crowd, some personal friend of the Admiral would shout his name appealingly and Byrd, recognizing a familiar voice, would turn and search for the face, and flip a friend a cheery salute.

Great Throng at City Hall.

The climax of the crowd's ovation came as the Admiral and his party turned into City Hall Square to receive the official welcome of Mayor Walker. Thousands of persons, provided with special tickets, filled the grandstands which had been erected in front of the City Hall and thousands more stood in the open spaces of the park or looked down on the scene from the windows and ramparts of surrounding buildings.

At 1:20 P. M., at the conclusion of the ceremonies at the City Hall, the party sped to the Advertising Club at Thirty-fifth Street and Park Avenue and was cheered continuously along the route. A great crowd had gathered in Foley Square and from there on up Lafayette Street it was one steady ovation. School children and their teachers lined the curb at various points and cried out their welcome as the explorers hastened uptown. Prisoners on the Lafayette Street side of the Tombs thrust their hands through the barred windows in greeting and one man waved a towel. Their cheers seemed to touch Admiral Byrd particularly. He waved back and did not turn his gaze from the gray walls of the prison until he had passed it. Firemen gathered with their apparatus at the doors of Engine Companies 31 and 20 and gave the Admiral a rousing reception with their sirens.

The route turned west on Wanamaker Place, past the department store where another army of greeters was massed, on to East Ninth Street and into Fifth Avenue. The crowds were thinner on the Avenue, but the curb was lined with spectators all the way up, and when Twenty-first Street was passed there were more flurries of confetti from the building windows. A great crowd which had been waiting in Madison Square sent up a shout as Admiral Byrd's party raced by and there was another large gathering at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

As Admiral Byrd reached the Advertising Club there was a final burst of applause from a crowd which had gathered there for a glimpse of him, and then, his journey ended, he stepped inside, still smiling, for the luncheon in his honor.

FAMILY MUST WAIT FOR BYRD GREETING

Wife and Mother of Explorer Stay in Background as City Honors Its Hero.

SON, 10, HAS TO BE PATIENT

Wave and Formal Handshake Is All That Is Permitted Before Host Whisks Admiral Away.

While New York took Rear Admiral Byrd to its heart yesterday, his mother, his wife and his 10-year-old son wistfully waited for their chance to embrace him after his long absence in far-away Antarctica.

The ones dearest to the explorer had to wait their turn because the city would not be denied its right to hero worship. Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, the Rear Admiral's mother, who went out on the Macom, had to be satisfied with a wave and a handshake before he was whisked away.

Mrs. Evelyn Byrd, who had spent the night trying to get alongside her husband's ship off Quarantine only to be turned back by rough waters, was forced to wait patiently on Pier A until the Macom glided in. And Richard Byrd Jr., wide-eyed and eager to meet his long-absent dad, stood beside her, trembling with excitement.

When the Macon came alongside the dock Admiral Byrd waved a greeting to Mrs. Byrd and Richard, who then withdrew while the explorer received officials. It was some time before she was conducted up the gangplank and into the upper forward cabin, where she was finally face to face with her distinguished husband and could appropriately welcome him.

The Admiral had been on the Macom for more than an hour before he was again in his mother's arms. He had taken the salute, met the members of the reception committee and been interviewed by the press, when he finally begged to be excused so that he might see the members of his family. Awaiting him in a lower cabin with his mother were Mrs. Harry Byrd; Westwood Byrd, her daughter; Margaret Byrd, daughter of Tom Byrd, and his brothers, Tom and Harry.

Mother Embraces Him.

When Byrd entered the cabin his mother rushed to him and embraced him warmly. He then shook hands with his sister-in-law and nieces, and after he had greeted his brothers he kissed the women of the party in another greeting. "I've never been so happy in my life!" exclaimed Mrs. Byrd as she greeted Grover Whalen, who accompanied the Admiral. He presented to Mrs. Byrd a corsage of orchids from the Mayor's committee. The Macom was nearing the pier by the time the greetings were over, so the party hurried to the upper cabin, where they waved to friends as they reached the dock.

When the parade started up Broadway the families were again separated. The Admiral was in the car with Grover Whalen and members of the Mayor's committee and Mrs. Byrd and her mother-in-law rode in the third car. When they reached the reviewing stand at City Hall the women withdrew to the left of the platform and remained there throughout the ceremony. When it was over Mayor Walker presented to Mrs. Byrd a large bouquet of red roses. During the ceremony Mrs. Walker, wife of the Mayor, sat in a box opposite the grand stand with Mrs. Jules Mastbaum, Mrs. John F. Curry, wife of the Tammany chieftain; Mrs. C. Frank Imhoff, president of the Woman's Democratic Club, Mrs. Jesse Harold Mastbaum and Miss Evelyn Wagner.

After the ceremany Mrs. Richard Byrd and her son returned to the Biltmore and lunched in their rooms with the other two children, Evelyn and Katherine. Helen, the baby, remained in Boston. The Admiral's mother returned to the Vanderbilt Hotel, where she was joined by other members of her party.

All the Wives Overjoyed.

While the members of the Byrd family were patiently awaiting for events to unfold, happy in the knowledge that the family would soon be united, other wives were less sanguine at the developments. Never before has a reception committee faced the problem of looking after such a large number of wives and relatives. With the expedition, as it returned yesterday, numbering sixty-seven and with almost as many more on the honor list, the female contingent was certain to reach overwhelming proportions. The boats were filled long before the hour of departure.

Arrangements had been made for the men of the expedition to join their wives on the Riverside and the Manhattan, but when they set sail those boats were so crowded that no one else was allowed aboard. So, after journeying down the bay, they had to sail back again and join their husbands at the pier.

Mrs. Kennard Bubier, wife of the aviation mechanic, was in tears when she learned of the change in plans, and others voiced their impatience. "My husband is as dear and precious to me as he ever was," said Mrs. Bubier. When they were finally united she expressed displeasure at the new mustache he was wearing. He explained that it would soon be shaven off.

Another who suffered disappointment was Mrs. Elizabeth Braathen, 62 years old, who went down on the Riverside to meet her eldest son, Christoffer, having come all the way from Ljan, near Oslo, Norway. In her room at the Biltmore, while her son, who was a ski specialist of the expedition, listened smilingly, she excitedly related her delight at being with her boy and being in America for the first time. She told of having planned the adventure months ago and of having omitted to tell her five other children in Norway until the eve of sailing.

"I was nervous about Christoffer," she said, "especially because of Captain Amundsen's tragic death. But I knew what a fine lad he is and I trusted him. In Norway we have a proverb which says: 'God helps him who looks after himself,' and my boy always has done that ever since he was a small fellow. And then I knew that with such a splendid man as Admiral Byrd my boy would be in the best of hands, and I never had any fears."

Bernt Balchen was a solitary figure. He was asked on the Macom if he would be met by any women friends, but he blushed and declared that he knew none here. There was a rumor, however, that he would be met by Miss Esther Edwardsen of New York, who had applied at the Byrd Headquarters for a pass as a "very close friend."

world climate more than the Arctic.

"Our physicist took readings of the lines of the earth's magnetic force, both for intensity and direction, at a time when there were active sunspots and found variations. He took temperature gradients of the snow. I believe that his findings are important, but you must realize that it takes weeks and months to tabulate the data."

Admiral Byrd explained that there will be at least four volumes printed on the work of the expedition, of which he will write a section on geography and the running story.

The Most Important Discovery.

"The most important was the discovery and photographing of new land," he continued. "We found three hitherto unknown mountains and disproved the existence of Carman Land. Every inch of new land, and that is no exaggeration, was photographed. We have a complete picture record of every flight.

"The biologist made studies of the only sojourners on the continent. Beyond the edge of the continent we find only primitive lichen plants.

"In oceanography we used the sonic depth finder and got the contour of the ocean where it was not formerly known. We found some very deep spots and we found that the Barrier rests on peaks of land. This is a conclusion; we can't prove it.

"There was extensive research in radio. At 60 degrees below zero [Malcolm P.] Hanson succeeded in getting out six or seven miles for observations and he also conducted experiments on the Heaviside layer.

"We went into glaciology and, to some extent, zoology. The Barrier is a very mysterious formation. There is snow to the water line from 60 to 200 feet down—we dug to find out—and from there it is ice. Nearly the whole area is water borne, but is anchored to land. The Bay of Whales is cut out of snow and yet it keeps its contours. Our camp was over 1,500 feet of water on a potential ice floe.

"Of course, we made progress in the science of aviation in that climate, but I needn't go into that." That was Admiral Byrd's own specialty, and he glossed over it, although paying tribute to Captain Ashley C. McKinley, the aerial survey officer.

Admiral Byrd said he could not discuss his next expedition until the debts of the present one are settled. There is a deficit of between $50,000 and $100,000. He said much additional work remains to be done on the South Pole region and that his base is still available with the aerials of the Adolph S. Ochs Radio Station standing for bearings.

12 Offered to Stay in Antarctic.

He disclosed that twelve men had volunteered to remain at Little America to operate a weather station, but that he refused to continue the responsibility for their safety and so did not leave them.

The men felt the monotony at times, but on the whole the morale was very high, Admiral Byrd said.

Admiral Byrd will complete his public engagements on July 12 with the St. Louis reception. After that he hopes to get time for a much needed rest. There were lines of weariness and fatigue in his face and he admitted that he was very tired.

Captain H. H. Railey, New York representative of the expedition, who introduced Admiral Byrd at the Biltmore interview, explained that despite the deficit there will be no public solicitation of funds. The amount will be made up from assets of the organization. Although final figures are not available, he estimates the cost at $800,000.

Byrd Gets Medal at Advertising Club Ovation

ADVERTISING CLUB IN TRIBUTE TO BYRD

LINDBERGH SENDS GREETING

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and a group of his comrades of the Antarctic expedition were honored yesterday at a luncheon given by the Advertising Club of New York, 23 Park Avenue—an organization that on six previous occasions had arranged similar functions to bid Godspeed to Byrd or welcome him home. More than 300 members of the club packed the room and cheered when Byrd was lauded, and applauded again and again when he gave the credit for the expedition to his comrades and his backers.

The members filled all the tables and packed every available corner of the main dining hall on the third floor of the clubhouse. The guests were clustered along the stairs and stair rails, and filled additional tables and standing room on the second floor, where they listened to the proceedings by means of amplifiers.

Get Ovation on Arrival.

The arrival of Admiral Byrd and his companions was the signal for another popular outburst of welcome. Thousands of men, women and children, awaiting the arrival of the South Polar heroes, lined the curbs and the iron fences enclosing the park strips in the middle of Park Avenue.

They were kept in order by 200 policemen under Inspector Joseph Loonan. The crowd waited until the departure of the honored guests to cheer them a second time.

Announcement of Rear Admiral Byrd's election as an honorary member of the Advertising Club of New York, on whose records his name appears alongside those of President Hoover and former President Coolidge was made by Charles C. Green, past president of the club.

The David Livingstone Gold Medal for scientific achievement in the field of geography in the Southern Hemisphere, awarded to Rear Admiral Byrd last Winter by the American Geographical Society, was presented to Admiral Byrd by the society's president, Dr. John H. Finley. Dr. Finley also presented to Admiral Byrd an autographed photograph of the late Dr. Fritdjof Nansen, together with personal letters from the great Norwegian explorer to Dr. Finley, expressing a high estimate of Byrd's "splendid achievement" in flying over the South Pole. It was one of the last letters written by Dr. Nansen.

An oil painting depicting the return of the Byrd Antarctic expedition to New York, by Frank M. Seamans, which was hung on the wall back of the speakers' table during the luncheon, was presented to Rear Admiral Byrd as the gift of the club.

Lindbergh Greeting Read.

Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Welcome of Distinguished Visitors, acting as toastmaster, told the members of the club that the welcome to Byrd and his companions down the bay and on land was equal to that of Lindbergh. He read the following greeting from Colonel Lindbergh:

June 16, 1930.

Mr. Charles E. Murphy, President,
Advertising Club of New York,
23 Park Avenue,
New York City.

My Dear Mr. Murphy:

I want to thank you for your invitation to attend the luncheon given by the Advertising Club in honor of Admiral Byrd. I regret very much that it is not possible for me to accept your kind invitation and take part in honoring Admiral Byrd for his last great achievement.

Sincerely,
CHARLES A. LINDBERGH.

A message of greeting from Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who is in Europe, was read by Dr. Finley. It follows:

Paris, June 18, 1930.

For Rear Admiral Byrd:

I regret I cannot be among the millions welcoming you home and acclaiming you our national hero of world-wide fame who conquered the elements and added a continent to American territory. You have won imperishable fame while adding luster and renown to American manhood. Greetings and salutations to your gallant crew of brave and noble men. Theirs is the honor to be sharers in an historic achievement. THE NEW YORK TIMES rejoices and takes pride in its belief in you and the assistance it was privileged to give in the success of your expedition. Hope to see you soon. With affectionate regards to you and all my friends.

ADOLPH S. OCHS.

After listening to felicitations by Charles E. Murphy, President of the Advertising Club, Mr. Whalen, Mr. Green and Dr. Finley, Rear Admiral Byrd, wearing his white duck naval uniform set off by his service stripes, holding a lighted cigarette in his right hand and thrusting his left hand into his trousers pocket, replied, saying in part:

"Mr. President, Grover Whalen, distinguished guests and fellow-members of the Advertising Club: I must say that I liked that welcome in which you made use of 'Dick' Byrd. For a long time I've been where they had to call me 'Admiral' in public, but some called me 'Dick' on the side.

"Now I haven't prepared anything, and I haven't any idea what to say. You all know from experience that it is impossible for me to make a speech. I'm glad you all do, because you won't expect anything from me."

Byrd Recalls Other Tributes.

Rear Admiral Byrd spoke of his gratitude to the Advertising Club for the functions it had arranged on six different occasions to bid him godspeed or welcome in connection with his expeditions. The first time was on Dec. 16, 1925, when he returned as air pilot on the MacMillan Arctic Expedition. He paid tribute to his companions on that adventure, the late Lieutenant John Rodgers and Lieut. Commander Charles D. Rosendahl, commandant at the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, who was present at the luncheon. He mentioned the send-off the Advertising Club gave him on April 1, 1926, when he started on his North Pole expedition, and the welcome it gave him when he returned from that expedition on June 23, 1926.

He referred to the affair arranged by the Advertising Club in 1927 to wish him and his companions good luck on their transatlantic flight, and the luncheon in his honor on July 21, 1927, upon his return. On Aug. 8, 1928, the Advertising Club gave him a memorable farewell before he left for the South Pole.

"So is there any wonder that I wanted to come back here the first thing upon my arrival in New York," continued Rear Admiral Byrd. "It's good to see here today so many stanch friends of myself and the expedition.

"First I want to thank Mr. Ochs for his message. He has been a friend through all this expedition." He went on to enumerate other friends on THE NEW YORK TIMES and proceeded:

"I see Charlie Bob. He was responsible for the personnel of the expedition, and I hate to tell you how much it cost. Charlie has been stanch through thick and thin, and so has Paul Block.

"Now Dr. Finley has spoken here today and has presented me with one of the highest medals any man can receive in the world, and I want to thank him.

"I see my old friend, Jim Corbett, looking as young as ever. I'd have liked to see him matched against Bernt Balchen in our gymnasium in Little America.

"Grover Whalen has had a lot to say here today. It's gratifying to be received here a third time by Grover. We heard a whole lot about him down in the Antarctic, 10,000 miles away, but we couldn't make out what was going on. I thank God we had no traffic problems there in the Antarctic."

Admiral Extols His Aides.

Rear Admiral Byrd then requested the members of his expedition who were guests at the luncheon to rise, and he paid tributes to them individually, including Dr. Francis D. Coman, medical officer; Larry M. Gould, second in command and geologist "without whom," he said, "we couldn't have accomplished what we did;" Captain Gustav L. Brown of the Eleanor Bolling, Byrd's supply ship, whom he praised as the first skipper to ever take a steel ship through the ice pack; Bernt Balchen, pilot, of whom he said, "In all the world, I don't believe I have found a better pilot, shipmate and comrade," and Charles J. McGuinness, Chief Officer of the Eleanor Bolling, who made a witty address toward the close of the luncheon.

Admiral Byrd also requested Frank E. Meinholtz, chief of the radio staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES to rise for recognition as the man who had made it possible for the expedition to maintain communication with the rest of the world.

Murphy Opens Luncheon.

In opening the function, Mr. Murphy, as president of the Advertising Club, said: My first line should read, I believe like a good advertisement. Only New York can stage such a reception as this. I am going to be perfectly frank and say I repressed more than one tear coming up New York Bay when by every voice on water, in the air and on land, this great hero was welcomed in the heart of New York. A very sincere welcome to our fellow-member, Dick Byrd! I am sure that all those in this dining room either in person or by representation through the distinguished guests who sit at this head table express that sentiment."

Mr. Murphy named and asked to rise distinguished guests and prominent members of the Advertising Club. Then he presented Mr. Whalen.

Mr. Whalen said in part:

"This is to me again a great occasion. It's almost becoming a habit to say to Dick Byrd, 'Welcome home.' I feel almost as proud as he must have felt today when he received a welcome, not only down the bay, but all along Broadway, that equaled Lindbergh's. I was tremendously pleased when New York City in that spontaneous outburst showed its recognition of all the sacrifices made by Admiral Byrd. They received him in the way that only New York can receive."

After paying tribute to Admiral Byrd for his contribution to science by his discoveries in the Antarctic, Mr. Whalen continued:

"Dick, we're awfully glad to welcome you back to your own which you have so signally honored. Those of us who said good-bye to you have been saying for the past eighteen months a silent prayer that you and your comrades might come safely back to us."

Mr. Green said that Admiral Byrd had promised to return to the Advertising Club on July 10, adding:

"And here he is, twenty-one days ahead of time. On June 5, 1929, we placed his name on the rolls of the Advertising Club of New York alongside those of President Hoover and Calvin Coolidge. Hearty congratulations, and greetings and thankfulness for your return to us from one of the greatest adventures of all time."

Dr. Finley in Tribute.

After reading the letter from Colonel Lindbergh, Mr. Whalen presented Dr. Finley, who at the conclusion of his address read the message of greeting from Mr. Ochs. Dr. Finley, aiming his opening remarks at Toastmaster Whalen, said:

"May you continue permanently as a city welcomer till St. Peter sends out the Macom to receive you." Then turning to Admiral Byrd, he continued:

"John Fiske, the historian, tells of a dinner in Paris after the Civil War at which an exuberant American proposed the following toast:

"'I give you the United States, bounded on the north by the Aurora Borealis, on the south by the precession of the Equinoxes, on the east by Primeval Chaos, and on the west by the Day of Judgment.'

"You have done as much as any other American to make this a real definition of America today, for not only have you and Floyd Bennett helped Peary and Ellsworth to hold and extend our boundary to the north, but with these, your gallant companions, more than any other to extend it to the south, and your fame must already have reached the gates of the Day of Judgment and have been placed to your credit and that of your companions in the Book of Great Deeds done upon earth. Certainly no such deed in the history of man has evoked so many words in communication and commendation.

"When you went away I expressed the wish that old Ulysses, the first great wanderer, might have joined you, for he wanted to push off again, sail as you 'beyond the sunset and the baths of all the Western stars, where gleams no untraveled world whose margin fades forever and forever when you move.' He would have rejoiced with you to see the last white margins of the earth. Like him, you have 'become a name,' but a name for reaching your goal instead of ever roaming with a hungry heart.

"In further contrast, though Ulysses wandered for years and was never more than a few hundred miles from his loved Ithaca, so imperfect were the means of communication that he never had a word from his homeland. Moreover he lost all his companions at sea and when he reached land on a raft naked was welcomed by only three persons, Nausicaa and her maids.

"There was no Grover Whalen there to meet him. But during your voyage in which you traversed 12,000 miles of sea and land, 3,000,000 words were exchanged, according to Mr. Meinholz, ten words for every waking minute, not to mention other millions upon millions printed about you. And you have brought your whole company back with you, thanks to Dr. Coman—all except Chinook, whose voice we shall miss in the New Hampshire hills. And you had your Homer with you, Russell Owen, who would have given old Homer himself a run for the Pulitzer Prize. If all those whose thoughts visited Little America during the past months remained there it would be the most thickly populated spot of earth.

"I said at our last meeting here that I coveted the honor of conferring upon you another honorary degree. You have so many degrees that you will not care for another, but it awaits you. The first one which I conferred upon you was a doctorate of longitude and latitude for northern latitudes (doctoris in longitudine et latitudine septentrionale pro honoris causa). I should like to add another for southern latitudes: doctoris in longitudine et latitudine meridiana pro summae honoris causa."

Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commanding the Second Corps Area, with headquarters on Governors Island, in greeting Rear Admiral Byrd said that the army claimed him as one of those divisions of the national defense "that put aside all thought of self in doing those things that are for the country's good."

"We have discovered in the Antarctic that an admiral can be human," said Chief Officer McGuinness in the most humorous speech of the luncheon. "If Admiral Byrd had been very tough, he'd have fired all of us. If Admiral Byrd wants to go away on another expedition that would take five years, I'd be the first to volunteer."

Baby Sees Father, Home With Byrd, First Time; Girl, 6, Also Renews Acquaintance With Hers

If the homecoming yesterday of the Byrd expedition was the biggest day in the lives of the men who returned from the Antarctic after nearly two years' absence, it was equally a big day for at least two other persons, whose ideas concerning the Antarctic are quite sketchy. These two were Charmaine Peterson and Malcolm P. Hanson Jr. They went down the harbor on the steamer Riverside.

Charmaine is 6 years old, the daughter of Carl O. Peterson, radio operator of the expedition, and Malcolm is the son of Malcolm P. Hanson, the expedition's chief operator. Malcolm Jr. is 19 months old, and was born several months after his father left for the bottom of the world. He missed his nap yesterday morning in order to be aboard the Riverside when it left Pier A at the Battery at 9 o'clock to take relatives of expedition members down the harbor.

Mrs. Hanson explained that he knew all about his father and could recognize pictures of him. All went well until the ear-splitting burst of whistles made him cry and he had to be taken to a cabin.

He, along with his mother and the hundred other relatives and friends of expedition members, expected certain of the explorers to be transferred from the bark City of New York to the Riverside, but the Riverside was so crowded that plans were changed. None was taken aboard. So the wives, children, mothers and others lined the port rail and shouted to their loved ones across the water.

Many of those on the Riverside were keenly disappointed. Most laughed, shouted and gesticulated, but a few could not restrain their tears.

On the Riverside was Patrick O'Brien of 129 East 180th Street, the Bronx, father of Esmond O'Brien, first assistant engineer on the City of New York. He declared he was worried about two things: how to get his son reinstated in the Fire Department and how to explain his own unauthorized absence from duty as telegraph dispatcher in the same department, of which he has been a member for twenty-seven years.

POLAR REPORTER TELLS OF HARDSHIP

But Russell Owen Says He Would Not Take Anything for the Experience.

Russell Owen, whose stories giving the day by day history of the Byrd exploration to THE NEW YORK TIMES won for him the Pulitzer prize this year, returned from his second polar expedition yesterday. In 1926 he covered Admiral Byrd's North Pole flight. Of the two he found the South Pole assignment the more difficult. The reporter who dramatized the daily happenings for hundreds of thousands of readers retained little of the drama for himself yesterday. To him it had been a long, hard task.

"I would not take anything for the experience," he said, "but I would not care to repeat it. At Spitsbergen, on the North Pole story, we were in a mining settlement. There were houses and comfort. Down there," he added, "there were hardship and discomfort."

The isolation gave a sense of unreality, of aloofness from the world, Mr. Owen said.

"It was hard to realize," he continued, "that there was another world. We seemed to live apart in our own world. Our affairs seemed all that counted. We were detached and separated. Even the radio could not break that down. I had to force myself at times to realize that people back home were interested in what we were doing and to get their viewpoint so that I could write of it intelligently."

But there was another side of the life and Mr. Owen's enthusiasm reawakened as he told of it.

"You can't comprehend the beauty of that region," he said. "The colors were marvelous. The snow down there is never white. It glows with all sorts of colors, beautifully tinted pastels shifting from day to day. Just imagine going out and finding an orchid snow, the whole landscape tinted orchid.

"You could not escape the novelty. There was something different every day and the time passed rapidly until at the very last when we were packing up. Then it began to drag."

FOG DELAY IN HARBOR IRKED ANTARCTIC CREW

City of New York Waited Hours for Pilot in Murky Night—None Slept Till 4 A. M.

Ship weary and longing for a sight of their homeland after nearly two years' absence, members of the Byrd expedition spent a restless and nerve-wearing last night on the bark City of New York. It was as though the elements, stood off for so long, were giving a parting fillip. The Eleanor Bolling got through and took a pilot aboard before the fog closed down, reaching Quarantine Wednesday night. The slower City of New York, the "good old tub," as the men affectionately call her, did not reach Quarantine until yesterday morning.

She was caught by the fog, collided with a scow, and spent anxious hours at the entrance to the ship lane waiting to make contact with the harbor pilot.

Because of the danger of a collision, boxes and gear were cleared away from the large life boats on deck. But this was not the concern of the men; it was the maddening thought of being so close to their goal and baffled by the white clutch of the fog.

Not until 2:15 o'clock did the pilot come over the side. Neither Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd nor his men slept until the anchor chain rattled out about 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

As the hour approached for the arrival of the Macom the ring of visiting ships grew more and more dense and the crew on the City of New York more and more restless. They had no perspective to discuss their experiences at Little America and no desire to talk about them. They were, of course, "glad to be back," but frankly apprehensive of the round of public entertainment.

2,400 POLICE KEEP ORDER.

No Accidents in Big Crowd Marred the Reception to Byrd.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney said last night that 2,400 policemen had been assigned to duty yesterday at Pier A and the Battery, City Hall and along the line of march of the Rear Admiral Byrd reception parade. He expressed satisfaction that there had been no accidents and no interruptions to the program.

About 300 men were assigned to Pier A and along Battery Place. From Bowling Green to City Hall Park a policeman was stationed every ten feet on both sides of Broadway. Three hundred more were assigned to City Hall Park, where Deputy Chief Inspector William Coleman was in command. Deputy Chief Inspector David J. McAulliffe was in command at Battery Park. Nearly 100 mounted police took part in the parade. The motorcycle escort to the Advertising Club was commanded by Inspector Anthony Howe.

PENNSYLVANIA'S GREETINGS

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 19 (AP).—Greetings to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Paul A. Siple, Erie (Pa.) Boy Scout accompanying the Byrd expedition, on their return to the United States were dispatched to New York today by Governor Fisher.

The Byrd telegram read: "All Pennsylvania joins in extending you greetings upon your return from your history-making expedition to the South Pole."

To Siple, the Governor said: "I rejoice with your family and with your associates in the Boy Scout movement upon your safe return from the hazardous and history-making Antarctic expedition under the leadership of the intrepid explorer, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd. Pennsylvania is proud of its representative of the young manhood of the Keystone State."

FIRST WELCOMER FINDS BYRD AT WORK

Pilots' Association Delegate Wins Race to Greet Admiral—Dog Left on Bolling.

GRASS AMAZES SKIPPER

Negro Mascot of Richmond Blues Sleeps on Steps of City Hall Throughout Exercises.

The first message to Admiral Byrd, other than those sent by radio, was handed to him early yesterday morning when he appeared on deck in working clothes. T. Torgeson Jr., the pilot, handed him a letter—the message of welcome and greeting from the Pilots' Association.

When it became light enough to see ashore from the City of New York yesterday morning Captain Frederick C. Melville, the skipper, looked across to Staten Island and remarked softly to himself:

"Is that green grass? Land, and no palm trees!"

Then he called the attention of others to the fact that there was land without palm trees.

S. Edward Roos, a seaman on the City of New York, leaned over the rail while waiting for the Macon, and said in heartfelt tones:

"It certainly is a pleasure to look out over the rail and not have some mate behind you to yell, 'Get away from there and get to work.'"

"Pap" the 67-year-old Negro mascot of the Richmond Blues, who attached himself to the regiment as a water boy when 14 years old, started out stepping high, wide and handsome from the Battery but was dragging weary feet by the time he reached City Hall. He waited till Admiral Byrd arrived and then weary nature asserted itself. Stretched out on City Hall steps he dozed unobserved by all but a smiling few near him.

The parade up Broadway met competition after the head of the procession had reached Park Place. First a battalion chief of the Fire Department came clanging down the street, then a police emergency truck halted the tail end of the procession, and as the cars passed on an ambulance swinging into Park Place drew a private audience which had seen members of the expedition pass and was not interested in the string of automobiles filled with the "also presents."

When the Manhattan pulled away from Pier A with every available inch occupied, Christy Bohnsack shook his head and remarked:

"Look at that boat," and patting his brief case added, "Here are tickets for 100 more supposed to be aboard her."

The Rev. Christian F. Reisner of the Broadway Temple, who attended the luncheon at the Advertising Club, was so impressed by what he described as the "dry wit" of Charles J. McGuinness, who was introduced by Admiral Byrd, that he immediately engaged that member of the expedition to address his congregation Sunday night.

As the marine procession left the rusty-sided Eleanor Bolling far astern at quarantine yesterday, a coal black dog barked furiously at the churning wake of the Vigilant, the patrol boat that took to the Battery the crew of the Bolling. The dog Snow Ball, has been a mascot of the ship since he was picked up at Dunedin months ago. He made several trips down into the ice with the little whaler and has become a favorite of the crew.

Another mascot, one which was aboard the Bolling when she pulled out of New York harbor almost two years ago, was less evident yesterday, but was very much on the whaler, the crew said. This was a black and white cat, "Eleanor, fit to lick any dog on the ice," as Captain Gustav L. Brown, master of the Bolling, said.

In honor of the arrival of Rear Admiral Byrd, several oil paintings, photographs and souvenirs of the Antarctic expedition were placed on exhibition in the show windows of THE TIMES Building in Times Square and the Times Annex in West Forty-third Street.

A scale model of the City of New York, Rear Admiral Byrd's flagship, made by William Granger, attracted considerable attention. The oil paintings were done by David Paige and Charles Rosner. Enlarged photographs of the members of the expedition also are being displayed.

BYRD MEN EAGER FOR MAIL.

Get Letters After Reception—Several Stay at Seamen's Institute.

The first thing the members of the expedition who were not at the Advertising Club luncheon with Admiral Byrd did after the City Hall reception was to look over the mail which had been accumulating for them since the departure of the ship from Panama.

They were taken to the Admiral's headquarters at the Biltmore in the same automobiles that had carried them up Broadway from the Battery. There they waited until their names were called and they received their letters, cards and parcels.

Except for those who reside here, practically all the members of the expedition are stopping at the Biltmore, although some reserved rooms at the Seamen's Church Institute, 25 South Street. Charles V. Gould, the expedition's carpenter, who joined Admiral Byrd through the institute's employment department, is one of these. Others who have been in the habit of going there for years, a representative of the institute said yesterday, include John Jacobson, sail maker for the City of New York, and George Tennant, the cook.

The institute also announced that it had supplied to all the officers of the ships copies of its manual on Ship's Sanitation and First Aid, published in collaboration with the United States Public Health Service, and had furnished to each member of the expedition a ditty bag with sewing supplies.

Wreaths to Be Laid on Graves of Peary, Bennett and Wilkes in Arlington Cemetery.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The program of arrangements made for Rear Admiral Byrd and members of his full command while in Washington tomorrow was announced this afternoon by the National Geograpic Society.

The demand for seats for the reception and medal presentation to Rear Admiral Byrd tomorrow exceeds that of any similar event in the history of the National Geographic Society, it was said at the society's headquarters today. More than 15,000 written applications for seats have been refused. Telephone calls have been received from Boston, New York, Pittsburgh and other cities, from members of the society who said they would "take a chance" on getting seats. One member is coming from Michigan. Even some of the members of the families of men on the expedition, who unexpectedly arrived in Washington, could not obtain seats.

When Rear Admiral Byrd arrives in Washington tomorrow morning he will be met at Union Station by George Akerson, secretary to President Hoover, Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, Rear Admiral Moffett, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president, and Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, vice president, respectively, of the National Geographic Society.

The schedule for tomorrow follows:

9 A. M.—Arrive Washington. Automobiles for executive party and buses for command will be waiting to take party to Willard Hotel. Motorcycle police escort. Breakfast at the Willard.

12:15 P. M.—Entire party will leave Willard and proceed to White House to be received by President.

12:30 P. M.—The President will receive party at White House. At this time photographs will be taken. Return to Willard Hotel.

1:30 P. M.—Luncheon given by trustees of the National Geographic Society to entire command and special guests at the Willard.

3:15 P. M.—Proceed to Navy Department to call on Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke.

3:30 P. M.—Acting Secretary Jahncke will receive party or representatives. Party goes to Arlington National Cemetery, where Admiral Byrd will place wreaths on tombs of Admiral Peary, Floyd Bennett and Admiral Wilkes. Return to Willard Hotel.

8 P. M.—Proceed to Washington Auditorium for ceremonies of presentation of special gold medal. Entire party will be on platform during presentation ceremonies, after which they will take their places in the orchestra seats to view the motion pictures.

ONE OF DRESSIEST IS SIPLE, BOY SCOUT

One of the dressiest of the returning members of the Byrd expedition yesterday was its youngest member, Paul A. Siple, the 21-year-old Boy Scout, who landed in a spotless uniform of navy blue and much gold braid of a first mate of Sea Scouts. He had expected to land in his old khaki Scout uniform, but the new apparel, sent to him by fellow Sea Scouts of the Scout Ship Niagara, arrived in time for him to don it just before going ashore.

More than six feet tall, broad-shouldered, erect, the young Scout was an impressive figure when he came down the gangplank. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Siple of Erie, Pa., and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kettering of Canton, Ohio, were the first to greet him. Their greeting was augmented by a rousing reception given by seventy-five Boy Scouts who came to New York from Erie to welcome him home.

Wherever he went, after he landed, young Siple attracted widespread interest. Though still as shy as when he left twenty-one months ago, he was tanned by exposure and appeared in splendid physical condition. Most of the time, while on the Barrier, he said, he worked in the biological department under Dr. Francis Coman, and he added that he did not experience a dull moment during the trip.

Mrs. Siple thought her son had grown during his absence, but he told her laughingly that, if anything, he had "grown shorter from ducking beams." She thought, too, that his voice had a bass quality that was lacking when he went away. But later she guessed that she had just "imagined that" and confided that she was "overjoyed to have him with me again."

Asked about his plans for the future, the returning Scout said that he expected to return to Alleghany College at Meadville, Pa., where he had already completed one year when he joined the Byrd expedition. He plans to work for a doctor's degree in biology. His immediate interest, he admitted, was in good things to eat.

From Panama, he said, he sent to his mother a list of his favorite dishes and he expected to make a diet of them for some time. The list, he said, is headed by sweet corn and includes all green vegetables, which he especially craves. But other items, he confided, are milk, pie and several kinds of cake.

Asked why he had omitted ice cream, he explained in a matter-of-fact way that the members of the expedition had had ice cream twice while they were away.

The entire scout field in the United States had an opportunity to nominate aspirants for the post of orderly to the commander of the Byrd Expedition. Eighty-eight scouts were recommended at first and from these a group of scout officials chose seventeen. Later, another committee reduced the number to six, from which group Siple was chosen.

Scout Siple has earned fifty-nine scout merit badges out of a possible eighty-eight. He wore yesterday the eagle badge, the highest a scout can receive. He joined the scouts nine years ago.

BYRD'S FLIGHT TOLD IN GRAPHIC FILM

HAS A GRIPPING CLIMAX

By MORDAUNT HALL.

WITH BYRD AT THE SOUTH POLE, pictured by Willard Vander Veer and Joseph T. Rucker, with explanatory subtitles by Julian Johnson and an audible narrative of the Polar Flight delivered by the voice of Floyd Gibbons. At the Rialto Theatre.

As an added feature of the city's welcome to that intrepid American naval officer Rear Admiral Byrd and his gallant comrades, the Paramount-Publix Corporation presented last evening at the Rialto Theatre the animated pictorial record of Admiral Byrd's flight over the South Pole and scenes of the life of the expedition in Little America and at the base of the Queen Maude range. It is called "With Byrd at the South Pole," all the camera work, with the exception of that on the actual flight over the Pole, having been done by Willard Vander Veer and Joseph T. Rucker.

It is a great picture, one that captures the eye from beginning to end, with a gripping climax of the great airship soaring out on its 1,600-mile flight over the South Pole. All the scenes have been photographed in a most effective fashion, with a remarkable degree of artistry and a full appreciation of lighting and shadows. It is a film that gives an extraordinary conception of the courage and high spirits displayed during the hardships endured by the little group. Nothing is overstressed and frequent glimpses of good humor enlighten the vivid and graphic episodes.

Constantly Feeds the Imagination.

Considering that this mile and a half of film has been assembled from something like thirty miles of negative, the final result is all the more impressive. It strikes one as being a wonderfully complete record and all the scenes seem to have been filmed just as the incidents happened. It would be a most interesting picture even without the knowledge that it represents a memorable achievement, but, as it stands, it is an absorbing piece of work, which reveals the enormous strides made in motion picture photography.

Furthermore it is done in an original manner, even to the departure of the polar ships, for these scenes bring to mind the realization that Admiral Byrd and his comrades are going forth on a tremendously hazardous journey that will take them nearly two years. It is more than a motion picture, for it constantly feeds the imagination and causes one to think of the desolate tract of ice and snow on which the members of the party were first permitted to stretch their legs and then one is moved by the way in which the men go about the work of erecting radio towers, safeguarding the airplanes by covering them with snow and living in literal dugouts of snow.

It is not a scientific picture, but a human narrative of the expedition that recalls some of Russell Owen's written accounts in THE NEW YORK TIMES. It serves to illustrate some of the past articles of that competent reporter, who is seen for a brief flash at his typewriter after the message has been received at Little America that Byrd's flight has been successful.

This picture also gives one an excellent idea of the awful cold and the wicked blizzards. There are men with ice on their mustaches and beards, and dogs that are covered with snow. After the days of continual light there comes the dreaded and dreary long night, which is beautifully pictured in a few scenes.

A good deal of fun is occasioned by the introduction of the penguins, who are alluded to as "old inhabitants." These birds stand like temperance lecturers or waddle like drunkards across the snow. Igloo, Admiral Byrd's faithful terrier, shows no great liking for the penguins. This dog comes in for a good share of the great adventures, for he is seen investigating the crevasses, being fitted for Arctic clothes and footwear and in a closing scene looking like a tatterdemalion, for his suit has barely lasted the duration of the expedition.

During one stretch an airplane is virtually demolished by a blizzard and one feels that the camera men were on the spot to picture this. Then one man is caught through the sudden widening of a crevasse and his plight and rescue are effectively shown.

Mournful End of Spy.

One of the mournful bits that brings to mind a graphic and sympathetic story of Mr. Owen's is concerned with Spy, the dog leader, who, like a good soldier, wants to carry on even in his ailing condition. He limps to the head of the team, his place, which is filled by another dog. The team goes on and on through the great white wastes, but Spy will not give up, and finally it is a question of putting an abrupt end to Spy's misery or leaving him to suffer and die in the cold. It is plain that the men are loath to shoot Spy, but it is something that has to be done, and finally one man takes the dog by the collar, away from the others, and the sick dog has a merciful exit from the world. The other dogs look in a strange manner at what happens, and more than one woman in the audience last evening felt very sympathetic for poor old Spy.

This film begins with a modest talk by Admiral Byrd, after which one sails away on the ship of great adventure. The first glimpse of the Antarctic is an iceberg standing like a white sentinel in the calm sea. A little later there follows the relative joy of the members of the party when they are able to disembark from the vessel that has brought them on the long voyage.

The flight over the Pole is all the more dramatic through its being described by the voice of Floyd Gibbons. The other sections of the film are explained by captions, competently written by Julian Johnson. These stretches are accompanied by a well-chosen synchronized music score, which serves its purpose in a fine fashion.

Prior to the taking off for the flight Admiral Byrd receives an American flag, which is weighted with a stone from Floyd Bennett's grave. It is the emblem which the Admiral afterward drops over the Polar plateau. The motion picture work on the flight, which was done for the most part by June, is just as effective as that of other portions of the film. There are scenes showing the mountains, plateaus and monster ridges and others giving an idea of what goes on inside the airplane.

Bag of Food Seen Going Down.

One appreciates to the full the great danger of the flight, particularly when the airplane has to be lightened. It is a question of dropping food or gasoline. The latter cannot be spared, so a bag of food is perceived going down to the ice and snow below. The precision with which the flight was directed by Admiral Byrd is most impressive and one senses the joy of the other members of the expedition in Little America when word finally comes from the Queen Maude range base that the flight has been accomplished. The message is dotted and dashed off by the radio operator while anxious ones around him are eagerly waiting for the words to be written. Then Mr. Owen is seen writing his story of the flight for THE NEW YORK TIMES. It is something that is tremendously exciting although one knows that Byrd was successful.

Even in the theatre one feels like throwing one's hat in the air. The gallant Admiral once again has met with success, and one enjoys knowing of the glory to which he is entitled.

As the picture progresses one notices the difference in the appearance of some of the men, particularly Admiral Byrd. He changes a good deal during the film, showing the results of the life and his anxiety over the eventual flight.

The good ship that is to bear them off comes along with the information that all must make haste to get away or it will mean another six months in the Arctic. Will they hurry? They will. Things are packed up like a blue streak. Never were men so glad to get away from a spot and return to civilization, a place where there is grass to tread on and trees to shelter them. The New York is sheathed in ice and soon she moves away, leaving the airplanes that the men could not wait to prepare for shipment, a sled and a few other things. And then comes to the screen a glimpse of a penguin, which will prbably be ostracized by the other birds, for somebody has tied a black bow tie around his neck.

And then a silhouette of a happy man and a dog, aboard a ship starting on the long journey homeward.

MUSIC PRIZES PRESENTED.

Nearly 1,500 Contestants Rewarded for Their Season's Work.

Prizes were presented at Carnegie Hall last night to nearly 1,500 young men and women who participated recently in music contests sponsored by the New York Music Week Association. Gold medals were given to forty-four winners, silver cups went to groups of several classes and certificates and merit cards were awarded to contestants of high rank. The names of the winners were published in The Times several days ago.

A program of music given by winners of gold medals and silver cups included numbers by the Madison Septet, the Boys' Glee Club of James Monroe High School and the Byzantine Choir of the Greek Orthodox Church. Soloists included Ruth Schaub and Kalman Bloch at the piano, and Billy Masellow, winner of the gold medal in the elementary pianoforte class. Several selections were sung by Rose Tentoni, dramatic soprano, and a violin number was played by Bernard Kundel.

To C. Stanley Mitchel, chairman of the board of directors of the association, was presented a gold medal for distinguished service. The donors were members of the association.

PHOTORADIO SENDS BYRD STORY TO LINER

New York Times Account of the Welcome Plans Reproduced on the America Off Ireland.

By means of a photoradio service, operated for the first time yesterday, between the United States and the America of the United States Lines, at sea off Cobh, Ireland, passengers on the vessel were able to read the first-page story printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday morning regarding the welcome planned by New York City for Rear Admiral Byrd and the men of his Antarctic expedition.

The transmission of messages began at 5 A. M. from the station of the Radio Corporation of America at New Brunswick, N. J., and the transmitter was in action for eight hours, sending out on a twenty-one-meter wave length eight pages of printed news matter, half-tones and script messages. The pages measured eight by ten inches.

One of the script messages flashed out to sea was a greeting from President Hoover in his own handwriting to Captain George Fried, the crew and the passengers on board the America. A half-tone of President Hoover was transmitted, as well as a picture of David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America; a picture of P. W. Chapman, president of the United States Lines, and one of Captain Fried.

The America is equipped with photo-receiving apparatus only. The system is the development of Captain Ranger of the Radio Corporation.

"The general rule of operation of the photoradio system at the present time is two to four square inches a minute," said Captain Ranger. "As twelve typewritten words may be put in a square inch, this corresponds to a word speed of twenty-four to forty-eight words a minute. If newspaper print is being transmitted, twice this speed of words per minute is possible."

YOUNG HITS TARIFF AS HARMING NATION

No Way to Solve Our Big Surplus Problem, He Says, if We Alienate Foreign Good-Will.

TRADE BARRIERS HELD EVIL

In Finance Also He Insists America Must Change Its Attitude or Lose World Market.

LOANS ABROAD A NECESSITY

General Electric Chairman Makes Outstanding Address at San Francisco Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—Four thousand electrical leaders heard their industry dissected, criticized, warned and complimented today at the third day's session of the convention of the National Electric Light Association. The delegates received all the messages with applause and apparently agreed with all the "harsh things" said.

An outstanding address tonight was by Owen D. Young, who insisted that if the nation was to retain its world markets it must change its economic and political views concerning trade with other countries. He was urgent in declaring that tariff measures that aim to exclude foreign goods create ill-will abroad and make it difficult to dispose of our large and growing surpluses of agricultural and manufactured products.

In part, Mr. Young said:

"The problem of our American surplus is my subject. It is our most vital and immediate economic question. I shall speak of the principles involved, rather than of specific measures, and so endeavor to keep myself in the field of economic discussion and out of the area of immediate political controversy.

"What surpluses have we to deal with?

"First, and most conspicuous of all, is our agricultural surplus. The proper handling of that problem has a direct bearing on, and one may say is the key to farm relief.

"Second, we have our raw material surplus outside the field of agriculture, such as our minerals.

"Third, we have our industrial surplus, which means more manufactured goods than our people can consume. This surplus is not so large or so uncontrollable as our agricultural surplus. It is more readily financed and lends itself to more orderly marketing. Nevertheless, it is a factor of growing importance in American industry and has a substantial relationship to unemployment.

"Fourth, we have an exportable surplus of services, such as technical information, managerial and manufacturing experience, banking, insurance and other services, which can be rendered to other nations without diminishing our usable supply at home.

"Fifth, we have our surplus of earnings over expenditures. They are our savings, which have been constantly increasing, and which we wish to enlarge. Now I am not prepared to say that this surplus of savings is more than we can use at home. The question which we have to ask ourselves with reference to savings is whether some part of them at least can be more usefully employed in the general interest of America outside of the United States than they can be at home.

"All of the above questions are not unrelated to the tariff. Again, I mean a tariff policy as distinguished from a tariff bill.

"You may well ask why speak about such questions here. Because no industry so quickly reflects the general prosperity of the country as the power and light industry of the United States.

Surpluses as One Problem.

"Returning to the problem of the American surplus and what to do with it. Let me first say that it is one problem and not a series of problems. Whether the surplus is in wheat, cotton, copper, oil, automobiles, or unemployed plants and men. It is one problem from the standpoint of large principle and general policy. We must first of all decide what our national policy is to be with regard to our surplus, and not until that is done can we hope to establish measures of effective relief for our surpluses in any particular field.

"Our agricultural problem arises from the fact that in many of our important lines we produce more than we can consume. Consumption cannot be materially increased. Thin figures require not more wheat but less. Short skirts require not more textiles but less.

"No intelligence of human beings is large enough to adjust our agricultural production to consumption in our domestic markets. Well, what shall we do with our surplus of wheat or cotton, or what you please? We must get rid of it. There are only two ways. Either we must burn it at home or sell it abroad. If America starts to burn surplus wheat when people are hungry elsewhere in the world, that fire will start a conflagration which we cannot stop. If America burns surplus cotton, when men are underclothed elsewhere in the world, that fire will start a conflagration which we cannot stop. There is no way out except to market this surplus where men are hungry and where men are underclothed."

He here discussed the steadily increasing output per worker in this country and added:

"It is therefore clear that as our production per man increases in our factories, and goes beyond the power of our consumption, we must export that surplus or have corresponding unemployment in those industries. As I have said before, that surplus is more easily controlled in so far as it is stated in terms of goods. We may reduce that surplus to nothing, and if it cannot be marketed outside of the United States, it will be reduced.

"The method, however, of reducing the surplus of our mines and factories is to let some part of them lie idle, and worst of all to let the men who have been employed in that production remain idle. In a word, we have merely translated this surplus into other terms, a surplus of mining and manufacturing facilities which are idle on our hands and a surplus of labor which is likewise idle. The idleness of men who wish to work is the most dangerous surplus which can exist in any country. Its paralyzing blight reaches not into our economics alone but goes much further. We must learn how to deal with this kind of surplus.

Calls Unemployment a "Blot."

"It is ridiculous to speak of unemployment as a necessary condition of human society. It is nothing more than a malajustment of its machinery. It is a blot on our intelligence. It is a drain on our sympathy. It is a promoter of charity which affects disadvantageously both those who give and those who receive. Some day we shall learn to do better, but we must learn it soon.

"How can we market these surpluses, both agricultural and industrial? The method is well known. Those who need our goods are the potential buyers. One cultivates his potential buyers. He does not debuff them. He seeks their friendship and their good-will. If they need credit, he extends it. If they have goods which he can take in exchange without curtailing the business of his own country, he makes it a point to take them.

"Is that the attitude of America today toward her potential customers? Are we creating good-will or bad-will in the countries where they live? Are we interesting ourselves in their welfare? Are we concerned about their living standards? Are we extending them credits through our financial machinery? Are we cooperating with them politically in order that they may improve their condition? Are we making friends, and so creating an attitude of mind, a spirit of relationship which will convert potential customers into actual ones? I ventture the prediction that we must do so if we are to conserve our own economic structure, not as a matter of charity but of self-interest.

"The enemies of the rapid realization of that desired end in America are suspicion, a narrowness of sympathy and point of view, both political and economic, a tendency to treat other peoples as our economic enemies rather than our friends, a threatening nationalism which in its extremes is dangerous to peace and good-will. All of these things are too often played upon for selfish ends by racketeers both in economics and in politics. This country and the world has no use for them.

"How can we market either our agricultural or industrial surplus to the world so long as we act on the principle that we are not interested in the welfare of any one but ourselves? I had hoped that that old doctrine of narrow and self-destroying selfishness was being supplanted in this new day by a consciousness that men helped themselves the most by helping others, too. Isolation in our politics, exclusion in our tariff, means that we will retain as a just penalty to our own littleness the surpluses which we might otherwise market to the peoples of the world and which, so long as they stay with us, destroy our own prosperity."

Loans Abroad As a Help at Home.

Mr. Young went on to discuss the reasons for making loans abroad as a help to business at home.

"It has become a habit in certain quarters to malign the so-called international bankers. They are charged with selling the financial resources of America abroad to make a profit for themselves. A moment's reflection will prove that the attacks made on them are either ignorant or malicious.

"I venture the statement that these much-maligned international bankers have done more in the last ten years, and will do more in the next ten, for the relief of our farmer and our industry than all the government agencies which have been or can be employed.

"An improvement in international credit machinery will be of the greatest benefit to the United States as a creditor nation having surpluses to sell. In fact, either international finance and credit must be developed to a much greater degree than now or our tariff will have to go if we wish to sell our agricultural and industrial surplus abroad. Something must come in if wheat and cotton and meat are to go out."

He coined a new phrase, "the racketeers in politics, in finance, in economics" and was loudly applauded.

He then said:

"My final word on this subject is this. When our political policy in international affairs becomes cooperative in spirit, which need not involve us in entanglements or alliances; when our economic policy looks to the economic development of the world as a whole and the improvement of living standards everywhere; when our tariffs and our treaties are made to evidence this spirit (because we are under suspicion now); then we may hope for effective plans for farm relief, for reduction of our surplus of raw materials and manufactured goods, for relief of unemployment, and for—what is most important of all—a better spirit of all nations toward us and toward each other. That means peace, and peace thrives in a world of contentment and mutual welfare. It cannot live in a world or in a nation where there are great inequalities and injustices caused by man-made barriers."

Much interest attached to an address of William A. Prendergast, former chairman of the Public Service Commission of New York. He defended the State regulation of utilities, declaring it protected the public interest and that there is no apparent intention of the people to abandon the system. He said that in regulating capital issues, the State commissions have performed a substantial public service, not only to the public but to the utilities themselves.

"Commission approval of an issue of securities is regarded as the equivalent of a guarantee of the basic value of the issue," he declared.

Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities Company of Chicago, discussed "holding companies and their relation to regulation."

He declared that had it not been for the holding companies the operating companies could never have carried on and that the industry "could not have been built to its present standard at all."

"Regulation of the operating company with freedom of the holding company is to the best interest of the public," he said. "The public is thus protected against monopoly and has the advantage of the initiative and enterprise that financially strong private business brings to institutions where money is invested."

Commends Sound Regulation.

"Performance of Utilities Under Regulation" was the subject of William J. Hagenah, vice president of the Byllesby Corporation of Chicago. He said that the history of the industry shows "that the interests of the people are best served by economically sound legislation as presented by the regulation of utilities.

Cohan to Take Vacation.

George M. Cohan's revival season at the Fulton Theatre, in the course of which "The Tavern" and "The Song and Dance Man" have been presented, will close next week. Mr. Cohan, who is now appearing in "The Song and Dance Man," has abandoned his project of going to London with the foregoing plays and "Gambling." He will take a vacation until late in July, by which time he hopes to complete a new play, "True to Form."

SEES AID TO RUSSIA IN OUR HIGH TARIFF

INDUSTRY THERE GAINING

By WALTER DURANTY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 19.—The Russo-German conference is proceeding quietly with its discussions, which are apparently confined to the consideration of certain points put forward by Germany—freight rates and tariff duties on German goods in transit through Russia to eastern neighbors, the redefinition of the rights and general status of German citizens on Soviet soil, and the question of procedure when a German citizen is arrested or accused of an offense.

The Soviet Government is said to have similar questions for discussion, but your correspondent understands the majority of the alleged grievances requiring consideration are to be advanced by Germany and the result will be determined by Germany's attitude on broader questions behind the scenes.

The Soviet press today features cable reports of an editorial in an Italian newspaper discussing the United States tariff and its probable effects upon European industry. The editorial suggests Germany is renewing friendly relations with the Soviet, out of a desire to find a market in Russia for manufactures barred from the United States, and continues:

"Our industry must imperatively turn its attention to the immense and rapidly growing Russian market with its unlimited possibilities. We must do this ahead of others better equipped and nearer the Russian market."

Soviet papers also today give a prominent place to Henry Ford's interview in Nation's Business, entitled "Why I Am Helping Russian Industry." Meanwhile, the Russian "industrial front" shows new gains. Heavy metal production during the first half of June has reached 90 per cent of the program and freight carloadings on June 12 totaled 54,900, as compared with 53,600 set in the program.

In the Maikop oil fields a new gusher has been struck at a depth of about 2,760 feet with a daily production of 15,000 barrels, which is considered important because Maikop wells hitherto tapped were in much shallower strata and the discovery of a new pool at a deeper level is expected to insure an increase of 2,000,000 tons in production in the next twelve months.

In the June issue of Nation's Business, a monthly periodical published at Washington by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, appears an article entitled "Why I Am Helping Russian Industry," written by William A. McGarry, after an interview with Henry Ford at Dearborn, Mich.

"Russia is beginning to build," Mr. Ford is quoted as saying. "It makes little difference what theory is back of the real work, for in the long run facts will control. I believe it is our duty to help any people who want to go to work and become self-supporting. I have long been convinced that we shall never be able to build a balanced economic order in the world until every people has become as self-supporting as possible.

"This system of keeping certain nations dependent on others economically must disappear. It is going to disappear. Then, when we know just what every nation can do, we will be in sight, for the first time, of a civilized economic practice. I am ready to admit that as people after people come into self-support, certain markets, so called, will disappear. But it will be worth the price we will be asked to pay."

EDUCATORS TO CONFER.

Jewish Council Will Hold Final Session Here on Tuesday.

The annual conference of the National Council for Jewish Education will be held during four days beginning Sunday, it was announced yesterday at the Central Jewish Institute Camp at Port Jervis, N. J. The final session on the fourth day will take place at the Jewish Club, 23 West Seventy-third Street, New York City.

The transfer to New York City will take place at the end of the day sessions on Tuesday, a public mass meeting at Temple Emanu-El being scheduled for that evening. Dr. William H. Kilpatrick of Columbia University will be the principal speaker at the mass meeting. Among those who will address the various sessions of the conference are Dr. Lee K. Frankel, Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan of the Society for the Advancement of Judaism, and Dr. Samson Benderley, director of the Bureau of Jewish Education.

GERMANY TO QUIT LEAGUE TARIFF PACT

Will Drop Convention in July as Czechs and Poles Have Refused Ratification.

AMERICAN RATES SCORED

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERIN, June 19.—Germany will quit the Geneva tariff convention on July 1 because Poland and Czechoslovakia have refused ratification.

The press continues to criticize the American tariff bill. The Frankfurter Zeitung calls it a "monster of economic folly," and says it seems absurd to undertake dangerous experiments when American exports have been reduced by more than 20 per cent.

It appears still more absurd, the paper adds, that "a man should take responsibility for the nonsensical bill which bears the name of Hoover. The President, during the election campaign, promised relief measures for the suffering farmers, but as a result of the machinations in Congress, the tariff reform has resulted in a high-tariff orgie for certain industrialists."

After declaring the coming weeks may bring reprisals and heated discussions in other countries, the Frankfurter Zeitung calls attention to the attitude of the Canadian Government, which, it says, though always friendly toward the United States, introduced, in view of the American tariff proposals, a bill demanding defensive measures against the United States and preferential tariff for empire products.

The paper concludes by saying the economic damage which the American tariff bill will cause throughout the world will undoubtedly be immense but that the bill may have wholesome results if it arouses displeasure among the American people.

The Weser Zeitung of Bremen says American industry is better organized than American agriculture and has misused Mr. Hoover's intentions. It says the President's recent speech before the press, in which he pointed out the possibility of applying for reductions, may be taken as a direct hint to make use of such an opportunity

The industrial Bergwerks Zeitung speaks of a "pyrrhic victory," and says it is most natural that the new American tariff bill has increased the uneasiness which already existed in German industry. Europe, it says, did not foresee that Mr. Hoover's "moderate revision" would become a monster which undoubtedly will some day attack its creator.

The Berliner Tageblatt takes a more moderate view and says the American tariff revision has been exaggerated in many alarming reports. The paper observes that for many products and raw materials the tariff remains unchanged, while for others the rates have even been slightly reduced.

CAROL FREES PRESS, EVEN TO ATTACK HIM

King Also Approves All Public Demonstrations Whenever the People Please.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, June 19.—King Carol, who has been accused of desiring Fascist methods and military rule, has denied these reports in his first instructions relating to the press and public demonstrations.

Several London and Paris periodicals on sale in the streets of Bucharest contain violent attacks on King Carol. When these, with all other newspaper reports, were laid before him today by the press office, which according to custom asked whether all hostile comment should be confiscated, the King replied:

"I will tolerate no confiscations. The whole world may write about me as it likes. I have just returned from France, where the press enjoys real freedom."

Carol then was asked by the Ministry of the Interior how street demonstrations, especially any attempts to hold demonstrations outside the royal palace, which are forbidden under regulations of the police, were to be dealt with.

"The people may demonstrate wherever and whenever they please," he said. "If they like, they may demonstrate outside the palace and even inside in the courtyard. There is only one condition—no one has the right to create disorders in the street and no one has the right to break even a single window pane."

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, June 19.—Nothing is known here in well-informed circles of a report circulated abroad that Mme. Magda Lupescu is about to be smuggled into Rumania. It is considered more unlikely because there is no need to smuggle her into the country if she decides to return. She is a Rumanian subject possessing a valid passport and is fully entitled to re-enter the country openly.

Mme. Lupescu was King Carol's companion until a short time before he left Paris, but it is known that their relations had been cool for some time. Relations between King Carol and Queen Helen are steadily, if slowly, improving.

The nomination of Carol's intimate friend, Dinu Cesianu, to be Minister in Paris is closely related to Carol's past. M. Cesianu has been empowered to treat with Mme. Lupescu with a view to a final settlement of her claims on the Rumanian King.

Mme. Lupescu left Paris a few days ago and is said to have gone to Zurich.

To Appeal for Mrs. Evans.

TRENTON, N. J., June 19.—An appeal from the death sentence imposed last week on Mrs. Hattie Evans of Lakewood for the murder of her husband on May 15 will be taken to the Court of Errors and Appeals, it was announced today by Ira F. Smith, counsel for the woman. No announcement has been made as to whether an appeal will be made for Lester J. Underdown, marine, who was convicted with Mrs. Evans.

CALLS PROHIBITION EDUCATORS PROBLEM

Prof. Percival Symonds Says Health Instruction Should Mold Public Opinion.

URGES IMPARTIAL STUDY

Rejects Dry Organizations' Data on Alcohol as Unreliable at Sayville Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

SAYVILLE, L. I., June 19.—Prohibition is fundamentally a problem for health educators and not for legislation, according to Professor Percival Symonds, Teachers College, Columbia University, who addressed the American Child Health Association conference at the Cedarshore Hotel here today. He cited this national problem as one of the outstanding examples of the health educators' function in molding public opinion.

The social chaos that prohibition has caused is an educational issue which involves the formation of a sound public attitude by proper health teaching, he pointed out.

"Much of the information which we give in our schools can be justified on the ground that it is helping to form public opinion," Dr. Symonds said. "In fact, with this end in view it would seem as though more information of the scientific sort should be provided if we are to build up an intelligent public opinion. I am thinking now of the prohibition question.

"In the welter of discussion in the ten years since prohibition went into effect there has been very little said concerning the effects of alcohol. Most of the discussion has concerned the effectiveness of prohibition measures.

"The confusion following prohibition is the result of a lack of scientific knowledge concerning the effects of the use of alcohol. Scientific statements concerning the use of alcohol are conflicting. In the revised report on health education just completed by the joint committee of the National Educational Association and the American Medical Association we find the following: 'While there is no evidence of physical harm in the proper use of narcotics and alcohol, abuse does produce physiological harm.'

"If science cannot agree as to the physiological, biological and social effects of the use of alcohol, certainly we cannot expect the public to agree as to its control. What seems to be needed in the present situation are carefully conducted and authoritative investigations as to the effects of alcohol which will command respect throughout the scientific world."

Dr. Symonds later pointed out in an informal interview that the research work carried on by such groups as the Anti-Saloon League and the Association Opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment is biased and cannot therefore be accepted as scientifically impartial.

"Some foundation could render a genuine service in helping to solve this great social problem by financing an impartial study of the effects of alcohol," Dr. Symonds said. "Where the schools are able to give definite scientific information concerning alcohol, public opinion would be crystallized and some definite solution of the prohibition problem would be effected."

LEADERS HEAR CASES OF BIAS AGAINST JEWS

Rabbi Wise Tells Business Men Discrimination Revealed by Survey Is Serious.

An investigation of alleged discrimination against Jews in American business and education, now in progress under the direction of a committee appointed by the American Jewish Congress, was discussed yesterday at a closed meeting following a luncheon in the Biltmore. Dr. Stephen S. Wise addressed eighteen business leaders who offered their support and cooperation in the study.

The meeting was called to promote interest in and strengthen the efforts of the committee to obtain definite "facts" concerning the discrimination said to exist against Jews in all fields of employment.

Rabbi Wise reported the receipt of complaints of favoritism shown other religious groups, and pictured a serious situation as caused by the handicaps placed upon Jewish men and women in business. He urged those present to cooperate in obtaining facts on which to base conferences with industrial leaders with a view to remedying the conditions. Several Christian organizations had offered their cooperation, Dr. Wise said.

David L. Podell, chairman of the committee, described details of the study. Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the American Jewish Congress, outlined its purpose. Rabbi Jacob X. Cohen, executive secretary of the Free Synagogue, summarized a preliminary study he had made, citing instances of discrimination.

A report of the study will be made at the next session of the American Jewish Congress in October.

Others attending the conference were Franklin Simon, Dr. I. Seth Hirsch, Morris Wolf, Samuel Kantor, Leo Brecher, David Kronbach, Jacob Leichtman, L. M. Rabinovitch, Samuel Blitz, Bernard G. Richards, Joseph Bach, Charles W. Endel, Dr. A. J. Rongy and Dr. Harold Korn.

CORPUS CHRISTI OBSERVED.

Special Services and Procession Held at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Special services were held in St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday afternoon to celebrate the feast of Corpus Christi. After a procession, in which the congregation, numbering more than 1,000 joined, the benediction was given from three altars. Nearly 100 girls from St Patrick's School and 600 women from the Sacred Heart League marched through the church.

More than fifty monsignori and priests were in attendance. Among the former were Mgr. William E. Cashin of St. Andrew's, Mgr. M. J. Lavelle of St. Patrick's and Mgr. William T. Stewart of St. Elizabeth's. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Edward Betowsky, professor at St. Joseph's Seminary. The Rev. Henry F. Hammer of St. Patrick's was master of ceremonies.

PARIS FOR REPRISAL IF TARIFF STANDS

L'Avenir continues its campaign for a boycott of American goods by printing a large box on its front page which reads: "Frenchmen, why do you buy American typewriters, fruits and chewing gum? Are you not aware the United States is closed to our commerce? Close your purse to its trade."

L'Oeuvre announces, across the top of its front page: "European automobile drivers must henceforth drive nothing but European cars."

Paris-Midi says it is clear the United States has launched an offensive against Europe which is likely to result in European economic unity of a kind thoroughly opposed to the interests of the United States. Former Premier Herriot, in an editorial in L'Ere Nouvelle, declares that unity of action now is "a matter of life or death for Europe." "The demand for reprisals heard all over Europe is most natural," he writes, "but the issue is far graver than that. The heads of all governments of Europe who are worthy of the name must immediately study the question with the utmost coolness and thoughtfulness. It is not sufficient simply to propose reprisals. There must be instituted at once a European economic entente—a Taylorization of Europe."

M. Herriot warns the workers that the most immediate danger is that certain European industrialists will use the American tariff as an excuse to lower the already inadequate wages for workers of all classes.

In discussing the political aspects of the American tariff, M. Herriot asserts that Europeans now are called upon to pay the expenses of the Republican national convention at Kansas City.

Washington Is Silent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The State Department today declined to comment on the action of the Customs Committee of the French Chamber of Deputies in urging Premier Tardieu to protest against the Hawley-Smoot tariff law, with a threat to suppress the most-favored-nation treatment in tariff matters accorded by France to the United States.

It was indicated that the department would continue a policy of silence as long as no representations are officially received here in the matter. Thus far there have been no official protests or representations received from abroad since the tariff law was enacted.

The last communication from the French Government on the tariff was on June 3, when representations were made against the proposed duties on imitation pearls, silk stockings and silks when the measure was pending in Congress. These representations were transmitted by the State Department to Congress. In the future, should official representations be received, they will be sent to the White House and probably to the Tariff Commission.

In the absence of a commercial treaty, what amounts to most-favored-nation treatment in tariff matters is accorded to the United States by France through an Executive decree issued when France entered into a commercial treaty with Germany, giving the latter country lowest rates, while it increased the rates by decree for American goods.

Representations by the State Department led to a return to the former schedules for the United States, pending the negotiation of a commercial treaty. These rates, which still obtain, are practically on the most-favored-nation levels. In the meantime there has been no substantial progress made in the negotiation of a commercial treaty, but that is one of the subjects that is to occupy the attention of Ambassador Edge in Paris.

SWISS URGE A PROTEST.

Berne and Basle Ask Government to Seek Tariff Cuts on Key Exports.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, June 19.—Large meetings were held at Berne and Basle yesterday to protest against the new American tariff.

Resolutions were passed asking the Swiss Government again to protest and to attempt to obtain special tariffs for Swiss key exports, such as watches, embroideries and silks, for which the United States is the best customer. These national industries now are said to be threatened with ruin.

Several of the leading newspapers ask the Swiss people to boycott all imported American goods. The Gazette de Lausanne says: "It would be absurd to accept under liberal terms goods from a country which has brutally closed its doors against us."

GUAYAQUIL PAPER CRITICAL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GUAYAQUIL, June 19.—Although there is little evidence of reaction here, the new United States tariff law has not been received favorably. An editorial in El Telegrafo says the tariff shows a great lack of pan-American spirit by imposing high duties on imports from South American republics.

The time has come for South American countries to join in a concerted movement against the importation of manufactured goods and raw materials in self-defense, in the opinion of El Telegrafo. This paper points to the fact that these countries are the best customers of the United States and therefore cannot have their exports barred. It intimated they should buy where they can sell, suggesting a probable development of European trade.

AUSTRALIAN TARIFF HIGHER.

New Bill Jumps Rates on 113 Lines, Including Radios and Auto Parts.

CANBERRA, Australia, June 19 (AP).—A new customs schedule introduced in the House of Representatives today increases the duties on 113 lines of goods and lowers them on eight.

The general tariff is increased by 40 per cent. Substantial rises were made on radio sets, phonographs and records and many automobile parts. Other increases affect iron and steel sheets, machinery, commercial chemicals and rice.

POWER MAN REPLIES TO SACKETT CHARGE

G. N. Tidd Says Production and Selling Costs Are Far Apart in Almost All Industries.

COMMENTS ARE SARCASTIC

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 19.—Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett's much-discussed speech at the American hour at the World Power Conference yesterday caused widespread comment among the engineers, power experts and utility men gathered here, and led to the issuing today of a carefully phrased statement from the hand of George N. Tidd, president of the American Gas and Electric Company, which can be taken as representing the views entertained among power men on the subject.

Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities magnate, had asked Ambassador Sackett to omit part of his address in which he declared the sale price of electricity was fifteen times the cost of production. The embassy thereupon issued orders to hold up advance copies of the speech, but later canceled the orders, the Ambassador delivering the address in full.

"The Ambassador has earned the gratitude of electrical engineers by drawing the attention of the public to the high cost of distribution of electricity, which those engineers have been attempting to reduce for years," Mr. Tidd's statement begins. "This is, as the Ambassador has indicated, one of the most vital problems which have engaged the attention of our electrical supply companies during the past decade, but the electrical industry is by no means the only or even the most striking example of this great difficulty. In nearly every industry the cost of distributing and selling is very much greater than the initial cost of production.

Compares Supply of Water.

"Perhaps the best analogy is the supply of water for domestic use. The cost of production when the water is in the hills is nothing, but by the time it has been collected, purified and transmitted high expense has been inevitably incurred. A similar difficulty arises in the supply of foodstuffs. The cost of the banana on the tree is infinitesimal, yet by the time it has been gathered and transported the ratio is nearer 1,500 than 15 to 1. Such examples are common in all kinds of industries.

"There is a continuous chain of costs in the process of producing electrical energy from water in hills or coal in mines. By choosing any particular point in this chain for calculating the cost of production, any ratio you like may be obtained. The selling price is not fifteen but probably 150 if not 1,500 times the cost of the water in the lake. On the other hand, it would be just as logical to calculate the ratio not at the generators but at some point between the central station and the customer—where the ratio would be more like two or three times.

"The question of reducing distributing costs and the ratio of the selling price to the cost of production is engaging the continuous attention of the utility companies and is being greatly helped by the increasing number of uses to which the consumer is putting electricity. It has nothing whatever to do with the principle of public or private ownership."

Spoke as Old Power Man.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Ambassador Sackett, since he was to talk before a group of American engineers, had decided to speak as an old power man. The Ambassador has long been interested in power problems and he felt the occasion was appropriate for an expression of the views he had worked out as a result of his experience.

The power men here, accepting Mr. Sackett in the rôle he chose, have answered his criticisms of the power industry not as if commenting upon an Ambassadorial utterance but as they would take issue with one of their own number, and it may be fairly said that a number of the comments heard around the American headquarters were decidedly sharp and sometimes sarcastic.

"Ambassador Sackett has discovered the high cost of distributing electrical energy," was one of the comments.

"The Ambassador's utterances have led to the unearthing of an even more serious scandal in connection with the supply of water," was another. "While it costs electric companies something to produce current, the cost of producing water has been discovered to be nothing, yet its user pays quite a fair sum per gallon."

Those who made these remarks are both well-known figures, who declined to appear to be criticizing a diplomat. On the other hand, there are some who take the view that wide discussion of the Ambassador's speech will eventually have beneficial effects in keeping the industry up to scratch. Some old friends of Mr. Sackett from his power days are convinced that this was the Ambassador's intention and the reason he elected to treat a strictly domestic topic at the American hour instead of taking some phase of internationalism, which is the keynote of the conference.

The feeling prevails among a large number, to put it frankly, that Ambassador Sackett is too far out of touch with the details of the problem to be in a position to lecture a group of experts on their field. Realizing that the question is not one to be thrashed out here, the majority are content to await until the return to the United States before taking up the discussion.

WILL DECORATE AMERICANS.

Belgium to Honor Those Who Served Her in War and Mothers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, June 19. — Many Americans who fought as volunteers in the Belgian army and Gold Star mothers whose sons were killed in action while they were attached to Belgian military units as volunteers during the World War will receive bronze medals from the Belgian Government, it was announced officially today.

BROOKLYN MAN SHOT; HUNT QUEENS SLAYER

during the week in Queens and boasted he would kill thirteen others, was received yesterday by the police.

The note and the desire of the authorities to trap the slayer resulted in the continuance last night of the man hunt in the isolated sections of Queens and Nassau Counties. Again more than 400 detectives, 2,000 uniformed policemen, machine gun squads, motorcycle and automobile detachments were out on patrol to capture the killer and end the reign of fear in Queens and adjoining territory.

Letter Mailed at Hudson Terminal.

The letter which is now in the possession of the postal inspectors who have joined the police in the investigation, was mailed at the Hudson Terminal station Wednesday evening at 6:30. It was addressed to The New York Evening Journal, the part dealing with prospective victims being as follows:

N. Y. C. 6-17-30.

Dear Sir: I beg to thank you for publishing the code message sent to you.

W. R. V8 of C. P. has returned the Philadelphia XV346 to me tonight after reading your paper—also 37,000 dollars of the blackmail money—thanks to God—if I may use his name.

This means the following persons will be spared:

K 2 Brooklyn.
XX-V (NYC Police Department detective.

The following document still is missing—NJ 4-3-44—and 39,000 dollars—for this document, the following people still are marked for death:

L-6

Mozinsky's number was R9
Sowley's number was X-4

N. J.—CCk-2-33-Av. 3X-Rosmilt-R. P. 49-7.

The message was signed in the same manner as the other letters received by the police and The Evening Journal, an inverted and underlined V followed by 3-X.

Comments on His Methods.

"As in the Mozinski case, the girl with Sowley was sent home. She also proved to be an iron woman. I had to put the gun close to her breast to quiet her. She even tried to start the car. But when I told her I would fire she then to my surprise began to say her prayers and to prepare herself for death.

"This saved her, as God is the only one I fear, and I could not shoot a woman showing so much courage."

The letter then continued in a rambling manner to describe the deaths of Noel Sowley on Tuesday night and that of Joseph Moyzynsky, the grocer who was killed a week ago.

"The shooting of Sowley should show it by now and also a second warning to the rest," the letter went on. "I know who the other girl is and where she lives, and as she happens to be of good family she has nothing to fear. I never will reveal who she is. As for the detectives and their commanding officer, to my estimate—well, what's the use?

"Sorry for them that's a black mark against them. But they never will find out who I am. One word from any one means death or a long term in State or Federal penitentiary. Again thank you for your kindness.

"Please do not forget to publish the enclosed message, also the numbers of those who have been spared and those who are still marked for death. I will wait to see what will happen. I will not shoot until they decide their fates themselves."

Note Tells of New Murder.

In the forenoon a cryptic note was received by the police purporting to tell of the murder of a Harold Bridenbach, whose body, the note said, would be found on Boston Road, in the Bronx. The first notification of the purported killing was made at 5:15 A. M. to Lieutenant Haggerty of the Morrisania Station and an alarm was immediately transmitted to all other precincts. The letter was signed in the same way as other letters supposedly sent by the slayer of the men in Queens.

Comparison of the letters, however, disclosed a decided difference in the writing. The detectives decided to investigate and Deputy Chief Inspector John J. Hennessey and Inspector Henry Bruckman in charge of the Bronx detectives, mobilized all available patrolmen and detectives and they were strung out along the entire reach of Boston Road, from East 163d Street to the suburban neighborhoods along the Mount Vernon city line. The men, paired off in automobiles and on foot, together with two armored motorcycles and motorcycle squads as well as mounted men, scoured the thoroughfares for hours without finding anything.

A particularly thorough search was made in the Edenwald, Wakefield and Hutchinson River areas in the northeast Bronx, where there are many fields and the houses are far apart. All efforts to determine if there was a Harold Bridenbach were unavailing.

New Suspect Is Released.

During the afternoon the police brought in a suspect said to resemble closely the man they sought. This man was found on a farm in Bayside and was brought to the home of Elizabeth Ring, in Hollis. She failed to make any identification and the detectives released the suspect. Miss Ring was with Sowley when the latter was killed.

Another search that failed to develop anything tangible was made by detectives who visited the Kings Park State Asylum for the Insane at Kings Park, L. I. The detectives inquired about one Joseph Ustica, an inmate who killed William Gilbride, a Brooklyn contractor, two years ago at Freeport.

Ustica escaped from the asylum about a month ago. It developed that the description of Ustica in no way corresponded with that given of the slayer of Moyzynsky and Sowley, and this inquiry was dropped.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney said yesterday the police would undoubtedly receive all sorts of letters from cranks but declared that the detectives would not drop the investigation until all danger of further killings is past.

During the day Catherine May, who witnessed the shooting of Moyzynsky, and the Ring girl were taken to the Nassau County jail, where they scanned the prisoners there. They failed to see any one corresponding to the slayer.

No Clue in Victim's Bank.

Late yesterday afternoon Assistant District Attorneys Thomas C. Kadien Jr. and James J. Conroy of Queens and Inspector John J. Gallagher appeared before Acting Surrogate Charles Dodd and obtained an order to open the safe deposit box of Moyzynsky.

The box was opened, and, according to the officials, nothing was found. During the afternoon it was said that many letters were being received at the office of District Attorney Hallinan in Long Island City in which the writers offered clues and suggestions as to how to capture the man sought by the police.

Although two suspects were taken into custody by the Nassau County police in connection with the slaying of the two men in Queens County, neither was held after Miss May and Miss Ring failed to make any identification. Inspector Harold R. King, head of the detective division, would not disclose the names of the men nor the circumstances leading to their arrest. He merely said the men had given satisfactory accounts of themselves.

Chief of Police Edward Quirk of Yonkers dismissed yesterday the theories advanced that the man found beheaded on the tracks of the Harlem Division of the New York Central near Bronxville was the victim of the murderer responsible for the killings in Queens. The body was tentatively identified from an insurance bill in the man's clothing as Alfred Elling, 41 years old, a sailor, of 89-51 Metropolitan Avenue, Forest Hills. Quirk said the man had unquestionably committed suicide.

BLAST ALMOST HURLED EX-KAISER INTO LAKE

He and Family Had a Close Call When Explosion Wrecked Motor Boat Near Theirs.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 19.—That the former Kaiser and his family had a narrow escape from being hurled into Kager Lake, between Leyden and Haarlem, last night was revealed today when details of an accident there became known.

As the guests of Baroness von Pannwitz the family had gone in motor cars from her estate near Haarlem to the lake. On the way a car with servants which had been sent ahead to prepare for the trip hit a tree while trying to evade a cyclist, and all its occupants were slightly hurt.

While their wounds were being dressed before an ambulance arrived the former Kaiser and the other guests reached the scene. Wilhelm was recognized by a group of German tourists, who cheered him, which was the signal for a hurried departure to the lake.

There the ex-Kaiser and the older members of the party boarded the motor yacht Olympia, belonging to the Baroness von Pannwitz, and the younger guests went aboard a new hired motor boat, in wihch they cruised on the lake. After tea in Hazerswoude both boats left, when suddenly there was a short circuit and there was an explosion on the second boat, with such a tremendous detonation that the former Kaiser's boat was in danger of being overturned.

By skillful manoeuvring its captain kept it on an even keel and hurried to the rescue of the occupants of the other boat, some of whom had been thrown out while others had jumped overboard when the craft took fire. All were taken aboard the Olympia. Countess Lehndorf, who was steering, and Count Doenhoff were bady hurt and the others slightly, and the former Kaiser's physician, who was aboard, gave them first aid. At the end of the lake the ex-Kaiser and his wife left in a motor car for Doorn, while the Olympia took those hurt to a hospital in Leyden. Physicians hope all can be saved.

BRITAIN OUTLINES EAST AFRICA POLICY

NATIVES TO BE PROTECTED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—After a delay of six years the British Government today outlined its policy in regard to East Africa, where there is a large Indian population.

As in India the goal of self-government, according to the White Papers issued tonight, "cannot be reached at an early date in a community where it has been thus far practicable to enfranchise less than 1 per cent of the population and where the idea of any substantial extension of the franchise finds little general support."

Commissioner to Be Named.

A High Commissioner for Uganda, Kenya and the mandated territory of Tanganyika is to be appointed with wide powers in a dual office—first, as chief adviser on native and other policies to the British Government and, secondly, as High Commissioner to administer certain economic services in all three territories. The government, therefore, has come down heavily on the side of the much-discussed Hilton-Young report in deciding that supervision of native affairs must hold the principal place among the duties of the High Commissioner.

The second document reasserts the purposes of the British policy toward native races in tropical Africa and expresses the government's determination to assist those backward races "to develop themselves socially, politically and economically."

Again backing the Hilton-Young report, the government says the native races are to be made to feel secure in their lands and that elaborate safeguards will surround the conversion of native lands to public uses. The natives will have greater freedom in choosing their own livelihood and still freer from the compulsion to work away from home in order to pay taxes.

A joint committee of both Houses of Parliament will soon consider the government's declaration, and Lord Passfield, Colonial Secretary, announces that the committee's examination will "enable those especially interested to express their views." This presumaby refers primarily to British settlers in Kenya, whose desire for an unofficial majority in the Kenya Legislature is one which the government finds itself unable to grant. Throughout long discussions on a closer union of these territories, the Kenya White Settler Party stressed its services to Tanganyika and Uganda as a sacrifice for which they ought to be rewarded by more politic influence in Kenya itself.

The government, however, has been careful not to prejudge the constitutional future of Kenya—beyond a general declaration that the goal of constitutional evolution in Kenya, as elsewhere, is admittedly responsible to the government by a ministry representing an electorate and in which every section of the population will find an effective and adequate voice.

The terms of the White Paper suggest a view of East Africa which can be related only to a very remote future and imply that government by a representative chamber is the proper ideal for a country containing three exceedingly different groups.

SIMLA, India, July 19.—The White Papers on East Africa are regarded here as a notable victory for Indian opinion, which is even more satisfactory following as it does on the favorable Ceylot settlement of last week. The principal points in the government of India's case were that there should not be an official majority of white settlers on the Kenya Council, that there should be a common electoral roll and that responsibility for native affairs should rest not with the council but with the Governor and the Imperial Government.

The conclusions of the White Paper definitely concede the first two points and the memorandum on native policy stresses the third. It is noteworthy that the very concession which the Indians oppose in Africa—namely, government by an unofficial majority—is what they are clamoring for here.

SAYS LEAGUE OPPOSES A PEACE OF JUSTICE

KOENIGSBERG, East Prussia, June 19.—Addressing a meeting of the German Association for International Law, Professor Walther Schuecking, German national judge on the World Court, declared that "the Kellogg pact was the most revolutionary occurrence in the progress of international law."

"The fact that the pact maintains the moral right of self-defense cannot reduce its value," he said. "The Kellogg pact has created a new task for international law—primarily that of bringing the covenant of the League of Nations and the pact into harmony.

"A special commission of the League prepared a solution, which, however, has met with serious opposition. It is proposed to alter Article XII of the pact in such a manner as to change the former relative prohibition of wars into an absolute one and to subject the pact to the protection of sanctions through united execution, according to Article XVI. But apparatus for the successful settlement of international conflicts is not simultaneously created.

"The Council of the League of Nations—the most unfit organ in the world—maintains as before its competency in all important political questions which the parties thereto are unwilling to settle by arbitration. The proposed reform of the covenant would give the League a beautiful front, but it does not make a solid structure of it. The failure of the Kellogg pact to abolish war without creating apparatus for the peaceful settlement of all conflicts has been repeated once more.

"The League of Nations honestly desires peace, but not the peace of justice, which demands sacrifices by the victorious states. Germany's interest is otherwise and is identical with the real interest of the whole world."

COSTE IN TRIAL FLIGHT GETS DESIRED SPEED

He had aboard a weight equivalent to 1,000 gallons of gasoline. The plane behaved beautifully, covering nearly 240 miles in two hours.

Captain Coste has always insisted that in order to make a successful flight from Paris to New York he must have a plane capable of averaging 120 miles an hour under full load for the first twelve hours. It was his failure to attain this speed that caused him to turn back on his attempt last Summer.

If the weather continues fine, the Captain will probably take off before the end of the week on a trial flight with the full transatlantic load of gasoline and oil. It is unlikely, however, that he will attempt the great flight itself before the next full moon, about July 10. A representative of his left for New York on Tuesday on the Ile de France to make final arrangements.

SCHACHT MAY TAKE REICH FINANCE POST

Political Circles Regard Him as Possibility as Moldenhauer Insists on Resigning.

HINDENBURG IS CONSULTED

Chancellor Bruening May Tackle Job Himself—Schacht Plans Visit to America in August.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 19.—Is Dr. Hjalmar Schacht about to reappear upon the scene, this time as Minister of Finance in Chancellor Bruening's coalition Cabinet?

That is the question being freely discussed in political circles since Dr. Paul Moldenhauer tonight definitely requested that he be relieved of his post since he felt he no longer enjoyed the confidence of his own party and recognized the apparent hopelessness of forcing his plans for emergency revenue through a fractious Reichstag.

Dr. Bruening today vainly sought to persuade Dr. Moldenhauer to remain at his post, promising him the backing of the Cabinet in his fight for financial reforms, the chief of which, that providing for emergency income tax levies, was proposed by Dr. Adam Stegerwald, the Centrist Minister of Labor.

The question of filling the gap in the Cabinet will now be submitted to President von Hindenburg, who is on a holiday at his estate in East Prussia. As the present Cabinet was constructed along the lines proposed by the President last March and was to represent a ministry which was not beholden to any group of parties, the appointment of a non-partisan Minister of Finance is now viewed as within the range of possibility and in this connection Dr. Schacht's name is being projected into the situation.

Industrialists Favor Him.

That the former head of the Reichsbank would not be content to live the life of a country squire which he took up when he suddenly resigned his position last March, is commonly taken for granted by those who know his mercurial temperament and it is also known that influential industrialist circles would welcome his advent as Minister of Finance in the present situation.

Dr. Schacht's dramatic intervention in the cabinet crisis last December which resulted in the overthrow of Dr. Hilferding, the Socialist Minister of Finance, and the prompt adoption of financial measures under Dr. Schacht's dictation had the approval of big business, which is still of the opinion that the reform of the Reich's finances requires the sort of procedure which he would apply to the prevailing confusion.

His appearance in the present cabinet in a quasi-dictorial rôle as Minister of Finance would promptly meet with antagonism on the part of the Socialists in the Reichstag, but in such quarters as tacitly concur in the strictures imposed on the government's present financial procedure by S. Parker Gilbert, the former agent-general for reparation payments, the former head of the Reichsbank is looked upon as a man who would tackle the thorny job without consideration for the comfort or convenience of political parties in the Reichstag.

Why Socialists Oppose Him.

While Dr. Schacht is known to harbor resentment against the Young plan in the shape in which it was finally adopted, his position is that a complete overhauling of the Reich's financial processes must precede any attempt at its fulfillment. He is also a sworn foe of promiscuous foreign borrowing, an attitude which has earned him the hatred of the Socialists, who are demanding foreign capital for the purpose of reviving the building and other industries in order to overcome the existing labor crisis.

Dr. Meissner, Secretary of State to President von Hindenburg, left tonight for East Prussia to confer with the President on the question of a successor to Dr. Moldenhauer. In this connection it is rumored in political circles that the President is highly impatient with the manner in which the Bruening Cabinet has spent more than two months in searching for a solution to the existing financial impass. The President, it is reported, had been assured that with his signature to the Young Plan the path would be cleared for financial and economic restoration, whereas developments of the past thirteen weeks have witnessed a gradual aggravation of the situation because of the Cabinet's continued failure to get its program of financial and administrative reforms under way.

Dr. Bruening will await the President's decision before undertaking the reconstruction of the Cabinet made necessary through the retirement of Dr. Moldenhauer as Minister of Finance. Unless that post is filled with the appointment of a non-parliamentarian or an official who is not attached to any political party, it is probable that the Chancellor himself will take over the finance portfolio, as he ranks as one of the ablest budgetary experts in the Reichstag. It is also believed that he is willing to turn over the post of Chancellor to some other member of his Cabinet.

Schacht to Come Here in August.

BERLIN, June 19 (AP).—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, said today that he would sail for the United States sometime in August. Dr. Schacht was noncommunicative about the trip, but it is understood in financial circles that he will go at the invitation of American interests and that the journey concerns German export developments.

INTERVENTION LOOMS ON CHINESE IMPORTS

THREE DRIVE IN SHANTUNG

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, June 19.—Aside from all the complications involved by the civil war, the question of the customs revenue control precipitated by Yen Hsi-shan's forcible seizure of the Tientsin Custom House overshadows all other questions in China today. The issues involved are held likely to result in foreign intervention or concerted action by the powers because of the fact that most of the vessels bringing imports to Chinese ports dock first at Shanghai, where papers are made out for other ports, full import duties paid and the goods forwarded in bond to other ports like Tientsin.

If, in view of this situation, the collection of customs at Tientsin by Yen Hsi-shan's nominee would mean duplication of import taxes, and the powers may well intervene, alleging that Yen's demands are tantamount to piracy. The combined customs and salt revenue at Tientsin total about $900,000 monthly, which is perhaps unimportant in foreign trade, but may well be vital in China's internecine strife.

Japanese Trade a Factor.

If Shantung province falls to Northern control the situation would be much complicated because of the predominance of Japanese import trading at Tsingtao, the province's major port. The Tientsin customs commissioner appointed by Yen Hsi-shan reiterates that a percentage of all revenue will be paid to foreign banks qualified to receive interest and sinking funds for foreign loans and declares that Yen's confiscatory move is actuated solely by a desire to block the Nanking Government from receiving the surplus for financing war against the North.

An additional complication grows out of the vast cargoes that have been unloaded at Shanghai bound for Tientsin in the next three months and are being held here, having paid customs duties in full. If these are now forwarded and if Tientsin insists on the collection of a second payment of customs, importers are bound to suffer, as well as Chinese customers, for whom the cost of the goods will be much higher.

The Nanking Government has semi-officially announced the withdrawal of troops from Kweiteh, Honan province, in view of its shortening line and in view of defensive tactics inspired by the activities of plain clothes forces and bandits which were embarrassing the government troops.

Events in the key province of Shantung are rapidly nearing a climax favorable to the Northern coalition, according to reports brought from the North this morning by a reliable coalition official, who has just come from Mukden, Peking and Tientsin.

This official asserts that Liu Chien-nien, overlord of the Chefoo area, finally deserted the Nanking Government and adhered to Yen Hsi-shan upon the payment of $2,000,000 to cover arrears due to his troops and then launched more than two-thirds of his 30,000 soldiers from Chefoo westward, crossing the Tsinan-Tsingtao Railway at Chowtsun, thence southwest, where he has just cut the Tsinan-Pukow Railway at Feicheng between Tsinan and Taian.

While General Han Fu-chu, Nanking adherent, still holds Tsinan, his position is now untenable with Fu Tsao-yi pressing him from the North. Shih Yu-san has invaded Shantung from the west and forded the Yellow River at Changching and cut the North-South Railway at Toyunfo. This convergence of foes has scared Chen Tiao-yuan, Civil Governor, into retreat and hiding, with Han Fu-chu, military chieftain, now Nanking's sole responsible representative in Shantung.

Three Would Be Governor.

The race of Liu Chien-nien, Fu Tsao-yi and Shih Yu-san for Tsinan has actuated the determination of each to capture the city and then insist on acting as Governor of Shantung on behalf of the Northern coalition. The factions of the inevitable losers are difficult to forecast.

Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, who was driven from Nanking and Shanghai in 1927 by the Nationalists and has been a refugee in Manchuria, has concluded an agreement with Yen Hsi-shan and Feng Yu-Hsiang with Mukden's approval and soon plans to reappear as a politico-military leader of no mean importance. At present four divisions of Nanking troops are holding the strategic tunnel of the Peking-Hankow Railway north of Hankow. These troops three years ago were Sun Chuan-Fang's men and they have now arranged to return to the old leadership, a mutiny being expected daily with Sun Chuan-fang in command.

This coup, if successful, will jeopardize Nanking's hold on Hankow. T. V. Soong's statement approving the action of the Customs Commissioner at Tientsin in removing himself and his official records to the British Consulate in the British concession at Tientsin when the Northerners seized the Custom House is arousing pithy comment here, since T. V. Soong is Finance Minister of the government (Nanking) which has loudly denounced the existence of those foreign areas and extraterritoriality under which the Chinese customs records are now safe.

A foreign military observer today returned from an inspection of the fronts and asserted the war could not be fought to a finish by either side, because neither was long able to support the enormous forces involved with staggering expenses and their means already depleted. Moreover, there are no sources for further credits.

That observer declared that despite immense supplies of foreign war materials on both sides, neither possessed the initiative, resourcefulness, ability and coordination necessary to deliver a decisive punch. He said the morale of the hordes of uniformed coolies was very low and that discipline as it is known abroad did not exist among them. He gave examples of misunderstanding, gross inefficiency and even cowardice going unpunished, while deeds of valor were unrewarded.

This foreign military expert cited an instance when Nanking troops lost a brilliant chance to exterminate Feng Yu-hsiang's army when Nanking planes had wrecked Feng's armored trains from the gates of Hsuchang. Feng's forces were demoralized when the trains were demolished, but the flames and terrific explosions caused a panic among the Nanking forces, who, frightened by the noise, literally turned and bolted. It took the commander forty-eight hours to regather his troops and explain that the detonations were caused by Nanking's own successes.

Meanwhile, Feng Yu-hsiang rallied his forces, reopened communications and started an assault on the Nanking armies, driving them southward for more than fifty miles.

The Nanking commander, the foreign observer said, was attempting to achieve victory by a combination of infantry and airplanes, with less than 100 telephones on the entire front, the supply department never meeting demands. The observer also described a picturesque phase of the war—Feng's vicious sorties behind Nanking's front with small bands of cavalry of 200 or 300 men armed only with broadswords and using tactics similar to those used by the Mongols centuries ago. Nanking's armies are armed to the teeth with modern weapons which they are unable to use and they cannot withstand these ferocious cavalry forays.

BOLIVIAN REBEL CHIEF BELIEVED IN ARGENTINA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, June 19.—Reports from the Bolivian frontier indicate that Roberto Hinajosa has escaped into Argentine territory, following his failure to reach Tupiza with the band of revolutionists who captured the frontier town of Villazon early Tuesday morning. Correspondents at La Quiaca on the Argentine side of the frontier report Villazon still is in possession of the revolutionists, who are preparing to meet Federal troops which have been dispatched southward from Tarija, but say Señor Hinajosa no longer is in Villazon.

The Argentine Foreign Minister telegraphed to the Argentine Minister to Bolivia, who is vacationing in the Argentine city of Jujuy, that it was urgent that he return to La Paz.

The newspaper Critica, on which Señor Hinajosa was employed until he started for Bolivia and which has been devoting two pages daily to his activities, has no news of the revolution in tonight's edition.

BUENOS AIRES, June 19 (AP).—Dispatches to La Nacion today said that the Argentine Vice Consul at Villazon had been held up by an armed group while attempting to return to his post from La Quiaca, where he had taken refuge. He was forced to return to La Quiaca, but was uninjured.

La Quiaca still shelters a number of Bolivian refugees, who are awaiting the fate of Roberto Hinajosa's movement.

SAY SIMON FAVORS SEPARATING BURMA

62 TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—Two London newspapers—the Government party's Daily Herald and Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail—which presumably are conversant with the penalties of the official secrets act, will publish tomorrow what purport to be forecasts of the Simon Commission's recommendations. They will follow parallel lines.

The Herald will say one of the most important recommendations will be in regard to defense, and it will suggest this will take the form of giving to the Secretary of State for India the responsibility for maintaining internal order and leaving external defense to the Imperial Government.

That a recommendation for the separation of Burma from India will be suggested, is a foregone conclusion. Indirect rather than direct election to the Indian Legislature will be proposed, it is believed.

An earlier forecast that the system of diarchy will be renounced will be repeated. Reference will be made to the likelihood that the commission will propose a measure of self-government for the population, mainly Moslem, of the northwest frontier province.

Regarding the delicate problem of the Indian native States, which are now independent, The Herald will suggest that the report will discuss the steps which may be taken to get the assent of the princes to a move in the direction of an All-India Federation.

The separation of India and Burma, it is pointed out, would have a stimulating effect on the languishing Lancashire cotton trade, as, with a new form of government, Burma would come outside the orbit of Indian tariffs.

Round Table Plan Revealed.

SIMLA, June 19.—It was officially revealed today that fifty delegates from British India and twelve from the Indian native States are expected to attend the round-table conference in London Oct. 20. The large number of delegates caused surprise and comment here.

There appears to be some apprehension regarding the ability of such a large body to reach an agreement. On the other hand, the view is widely expressed that the very size of the delegation will help the British to provide for representation of the formidable list of communities and interests in India which are entitled to a voice in its future.

A budget has been framed, showing that India's half share of the cost of its delegation amounts to $236,000, based on the expectation that the conference will last three months. Each of the delegates will receive $500 compensatory allowance, and a contribution will be made also by the Indian exchequer toward the expenses of the ruling Princes. At the same time it is announced that financial provision has been made for the establishment of the "reforms office," which was created temporarily to deal with constitutional questions arising out of the Simon report.

GORED BUT KILLS BULL.

Franklin, Brooklyn Matador, Wins Plaudits of Spanish Crowd.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ANDUJAR, June 19.—Two thousand wildly cheering people crowding the bull ring here today saw Sydney Franklin, Brooklyn bullfighter, pick himself up out of the dust and with rare courage kill an infuriated bull after the animal's horns had pierced his thigh.

Staggering to his feet Franklin waved aside the attendants, and as the bull, of the largest horned and most dangerous breed in Spain, returned to the charge, plunged his sword twice between the animal's shoulders.

Franklin does not regard his wound as serious. It was his second bullfighting injury of the year.

BOMBINGS IN FIVE CITIES

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOMBAY, June 19.—The Bombay police had to charge again today to disperse the curious crowds blocking roadways and sidewalks while watching the picketing of British shops.

There had been some criticism of the conduct of the police earlier in the week, with the Parsees particularly bitter in their charges that harmless members of their community had been assaulted outside the crowd. On the other hand, the police allege that the crowds were deliberately stirred up by Parsee youths.

To counteract the increasingly serious picketing campaign the Bombay government today issued a leaflet insisting that the boycott of British goods and business institutions was impracticable and must recoil on India.

"The British banks are the mainstay of our banking system in India," says the pamphlet. "Why should the people ignore these secure concerns in favor of much less stable ones? Are there yet enough powerful Indian banking organizations to replace them?"

Reports from Sholapur show that business there has been at a standstill since the introduction of martial law several weeks ago. The mill industry is especially hard hit. No cloth is being sold, and if martial law continues, the mills will have to close partially or completely.

Among the reasons urged for the continuance of martial law are the inadequacy of the police force, the possible return of agitators and interference with witnesses for the prosecution in seven murder trials and twelve rioting trials now pending.

Meanwhile a note of defiance was struck in Bombay today by Pandit Motilal Nehru, acting President of the National Congress, who is running the boycott movement.

Police Trapped by Bombers.

BOMBAY, June 19 (AP).—Bombs today became the newest menace to the administration of British authority in India.

In Lahore, Amritsar, Lyallpur, Gujrnwala and Rawalpindi explosions of deadly missiles tossed into vacant houses and elsewhere have caused injuries to officers and had been the cause of disorders.

In each case a bomb has been exploded in a house or inn. After the police have gathered there for investigation another bomb has gone off. At Amritsar this device was defeated by the police, who heard the ticking of the timing machine of the second infernal machine.

DECLARES OPINION HERE TENDS TO FAVOR INDIA

LONDON, June 19.—An English audience was told today that anti-British and pro-Indian feeling was far more prevalent in the United States today than pro-British opinion in connection with the present upheaval in India. The speaker was Professor L. F. Rushbrook Williams, who recently returned from a semi-official mission to the United States during which he attempted to spread the British viewpoint on India's troubles.

Professor Williams paid his respects to the strength of the Irish and German influences in the United States, and especially to the "money-making mystics" and Hindu lecturers who, he declared, have colored the American attitude toward India.

The Eastern States on the whole, he found, regarded the Indian independence movement with suspicion and considered the Indian situation was being handled with tact, moderation and skill. In the Middle West and West, however, he found "a really active sympathy with the Indian revolutionary movement."

ELLSWORTH TO AID WILKINS POLAR TRIP

American Uncertain, Though, Whether He Will Accompany Submarine Expedition.

LABRADOR JOURNEY FIRST

He Will Explore Headwaters of the Hamilton River in 800-Mile Tour in a Canoe.

PARIS, June 19 (AP).—Captain Sir George Hubert Wilkins, British explorer, and Lincoln Ellsworth, American, who has spent much of his life in the Arctic regions, today announced collaboration in an attempt next year to reach the North Pole by means of a submarine.

At Lenzburg, Switzerland, Captain Wilkins issued a statement saying that Mr. Ellsworth, who was a joint leader with Roald Amundsen on the flight of the Norge across the North Pole, would be associated with him as joint leader in the projected trip, to be known as the Wilkins-Ellsworth Transpolar Submarine Expedition.

The statement continued: "Commander Sloan Danenhower will be master of the vessel and Dr. H. Sverdrup the chief of its scientific staff. They expect to leave New York for Spitsbergen next June and, traveling under the ice, cross the North Pole so as to reach Alaska late in August.

"A definite decision as to whether Mr. Ellsworth will actually make the journey will be delayed until he returns this Summer from an expedition to Labrador."

Mr. Ellsworth, arriving in Paris from Basle en route to America, confirmed Captain Wilkins's announcement and added: "Sir Hubert will stay in Switzerland until the middle of July to finish his book on his South Pole explorations. Then he will go to New York to supervise rebuilding of the submarine to be used next year."

Mr. Ellsworth will leave for America Saturday aboard the Mauretania and will depart from New York almost immediately on an 800-mile canoe trip to the unexplored headwaters of the Hamilton River in Central Labrador. Beekman Toole, a Harvard junior, will accompany him. Captain Wilkins is residing at present at the Ellsworth home at Lenzburg.

Captain Wilkins announced last year that he would attempt the transpolar submarine trip and stated that he had discovered an old submarine constructed by Simon Lake, the inventor, which would suit his purpose admirably.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Arctic explorer, probably first developed the idea of reaching the Pole by submarine. He elaborated his theory of its possibility in his book, "Northward Course of Empire."

Mr. Elsworth today said he was unable to announce whether he would personally participate in the expedition. He said he was unable to determine whether he could return in time from his trip to Labrador.

MADRID, June 19.—Spanish señoritas of the middle and aristocratic classes can never be seen by suitors even in their homes without chaperons, but yesterday they ventured on the streets of Madrid alone to sell blue forget-me-nots for the Red Cross and by evening the coat fronts of almost every man in Madrid looked like flower gardens.

Whereas in most other countries one such flower indicates a duty well done, here it was only a start both for the girls and the chivalrous Spanish gentlemen, who were unaccustomed to free meetings of this kind and vied with each other in acquiring boutonniéres and sweet smiles, perhaps even a word.

Tables in front of cafés and clubs were in the "battle area," and even exclusive tea houses were invaded by the girls. One dignified old gentleman with waxed gray mustache, seated in front of the exclusive Belle Arts Club, wore no less than forty forget-me-nots on his coat.

And now enthusiastic young men are saying the Red Cross has done more in a day to break down old-fashioned barriers for women than the feminist clubs have been able to do in ten years. Moreover, the young men are still talking of the beauty of the brunettes and blondes they saw, for many girls achieve blondness at any cost in this land.

Queen Victoria, honorary president of the Red Cross, aided in organizing the campaign. Among the matrons participating in the street sales were the wives of two of Spain's wealthiest citizens—the Marchioness Urquijo and Countess Romanones. Smart Paris gowns and picture hats largely took the place of mantillas for the occasion.

AMERICAN FILM MEN AND GERMANS MEET

GOOD-WILL MARKS PARLEY

Will Hays, Elected Chairman, Says Delegates Are Determined to Reach an Agreement.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—One of the most important conferences in the history of the American film industry started in Paris this afternoon when thirty of the leading executives of German and American electrical and motion picture interests met to determine whether the two greatest rivals in the sound and talkie field are to enter a cooperative agreement or to embark upon a trade war.

A hundred million dollars of invested capital is involved in the conference, as well as a series of patent law suits now pending in the United States and Germany. The suits will be withdrawn if the present meetings result in an accord. Inasmuch as the conference has begun in an atmosphere of good-will and optimism, to which the chairman, Will Hays, largely contributed, the prediction is made that the whole international controversy will terminate in a settlement satisfactory to both sides.

Such a settlement would open German markets to American sound films after a period of prohibition lasting nearly a year. The conference, however, has a much broader aspect, and it is hoped that the German and American interests will soon be able to work harmoniously throughout the world in their efforts to extend the sound and talkie film business.

On the motion of Dr. Kurt Sobernheim, general manager of the Commerz und Privat Bank of Berlin, Mr. Hays was unanimously selected as permanent chairman.

Leading Firms Represented.

Official delegates are John E. Otterson of the Western Electric Company; C. J. Ross, R. C. A. Photophone, Inc.; J. C. Graham, representing Paramount, United Artists, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Fox Film, Universal, Pathé, RKO, Educational and other American producing firms; Dr. Fritz Luschen for Siemens & Halske, Dr. Emil Mayer of the A. E. G. Company, Berlin, and Milton Diamond, also of this company. George E. Quigley, representing Warner Brothers—the only American company which has succeeded in obtaining the right to show its talkie films in Germany—also attended, as did a large number of other German and American film men.

In acknowledging his selection as chairman, Mr. Hays said that the most vital factor in world affairs today was interdependence, which applied equally to peace and prosperity.

"Perhaps," he continued, "a new agency, more to the point than we realize, is at hand to help us find the path to an understanding. Who can say that the talking motion picture, as yet but in the smallest way unleashed, may not be the mightiest of all agencies for world peace?

"In this spirit you enter upon your negotiations. Speaking for the American group, I assure you of their determined purpose to proceed in every possible way to bring the negotiations to a successful and mutually satisfactory conclusion. I know I voice the desire of the German group to the same end."

Germans Seek Understanding.

Dr. Sobernheim, expressing the thanks of the Germans for Mr. Hays's remarks, said the replacement of silent films by talking pictures had caused a critical period in the film industries of all countries. The talkies, he said, have conquered the world.

"It is our mutual desire to meet this period and to create conditions which will foster the prosperity of all industries working in films—manufacturers, producers, distributers and theatres, and last, but most certainly not least, to increase the interest and delight of the whole world which we serve and which, we are convinced, will be drawn closer together by our work in a spirit of mutual understanding and friendship.

"We Germans have always had the greatest interest and pleasure in cooperating with your country. I should like to express the hope that this time again we shall be able to create real cooperation."

Daily sessions will be held and subcommittees will try to work out the many delicate issues involved. The conference is expected to last ten days or two weeks.

DENY SANDINO IS ACTIVE.

Nicaraguan Officials Say Country Is Quietest in a Month.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, June 19.—The Presidential Palace states that Agustino Sandino has not been heard from since his reported return to Nicaragua. General McDougal, commander of the Nicaragua National Guard, says that the last ten days have been the quietest since the beginning of the offensive in the middle of May.

An unconfirmed report says Sandino has returned to Mexico. The reported capture of two marines is said to be unfounded.

The National Guard, aided by the Marines, have the bandit situation in the northern provinces well in hand. The country is so peaceful that an order issued May 26 requesting citizens living in certain territories to move to centres of population has now been withdrawn.

The advance guard of the commission to supervise the elections of Senators and Deputies in October arrived today by airplane. Captain Johnson of the United States Navy, president of the Nicaraguan Electoral Board, is expected early in July. Three hundred men from the United States Navy and possibly more Marines will arrive to aid in the supervision.

MORROW DECLINES TO FORCE WET PLANK

Says He Won't Dictate, but the Convention Tuesday Is Likely to Follow His Views.

TO GO TO STATE MEETING

His Expenditures Put at $44,000—Vote Mounts to 420,131 to 116,966 for Fort.

Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Republican nominee for United States Senator in New Jersey, will go to Trenton next Tuesday to deliver his first address since his overwhelming primary victory at the annual State convention of the party. The convention, it is expected, will adopt for the first time since prohibition a wet declaration.

Mr. Morrow, it was said yesterday, informed E. Bertram Mott of Morristown, State chairman, that he would make no effort to dictate a wet plank, but it was understood that while efforts would be made by organization drys to defeat it, a wet plan of some kind was considered almost inevitable.

Mr. Mott received assurances that Mr. Morrow would address the convention by telephone during the day. Previous to this conversation, the State chairman said that the inclusion of the wet plank would depend on the wishes of Mr. Morrow, who during the campaign urged repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and return of liquor control to the States. Mr. Mott, it was understood, received word later that the Ambassador would not try to force any plank on the convention, but it was said that his supporters would organize the move to put it in the platform.

Wet Plank Is Fought.

Some objection to such an action was advanced in various quarters, where it was pointed out that while the Ambassador won as a repeal advocate, Ernest R. Ackerman, Representative in Congress, was victorious in the primary fight in which he ran against a wet on a bone-dry ticket. If the party went on record with a wet stand, it was contended, Mr. Ackerman's position in the general election tonight be anomalous.

It was also understood that Republican drys, particularly from South Jersey counties, would attempt to head off the wet move on the ground that the party's chances in another election might be jeopardized, even if Mr. Morrow equaled his primary victory in November, in the fight against former State Senator Alexander C. Simpson, the Democratic nominee. Such an effort, it was predicted, however, would be unable to prevent the backers of Mr. Morrow from placing the wet declaration in the platform, since his crushing defeat of Representative Franklin W. Fort, who made the race with the support of the Anti-Saloon League, was viewed as a clear indication of party sentiment.

A report gained circulation in Newark that Douglas G. Thomson, who managed Mr. Morrow's campaign, would be advanced as State chairman in Trenton, but when Mr. Thomson was asked about it he replied that he believed it to be without foundation. A report that Mr. Thomson would be groomed as a Republican Gubernatorial candidate next year brought another smile of denial.

Morrow Expenditures $44,000.

Mr. Thomson announced at the Newark headquarters that the total expenditures by the Morrow committee were about $44,000, of which the Ambassador contributed $15,000. He said that $63,608 in contributions was received and that all above that expended would be returned to the donors on a pro rata basis.

Mr. Morrow, it was said, would stop at Trenton for his address on his way to Washington and Mexico City, where he will remain for about two months, winding up his duties as Ambassador.

The Ambassador's plurality climbed again during the day as additional figures were tabulated. With only twelve districts missing, seven of them from Mr. Morrow's home county of Bergen, the vote for the long term nomination stood: Morrow 420,131, Fort 116,966, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen 48,135.

Increased totals in Bergen failed to alter the standing of the county candidates and with seven districts still missing, Emma Peters and Lloyd Schroeder, Assembly candidates backed by the organization of State Senator Ralph Chandless, under fire in the Lodi sewer scandal, appeared to have won. Two anti-Chandless candidates, Joseph C. Kinzley and Jason R. Elliott, appeared to have won the two other seats.

MORROW AND HOOVER TO CONFER NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Dwight W. Morrow will come here early next week for conferences with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson on Mexican affairs and will leave soon afterward to resume his post as Ambassador at Mexico City.

How long he will remain in Mexico before resigning Secretary Stimson said today he did not know, and any announcement on that point would have to come from Mr. Morrow.

REGRETS MORROW SUCCESS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN JUAN, June 19.—Dwight W. Morrow's possible election to the Senate will make no change in the division on prohibition in Congress, according to Mrs. Ella Boole, national president of the W. C. T. U., who said that New Jersey was already wet and that if elected Mr. Morrow would merely take the place of Walter E. Edge, another wet.

"But we regret his nomination," said Mrs. Boole.

REPUBLICANS HERE ADOPT WET STAND

FAIRCHILD OPPOSES IT

After brief but sharp debate and with only a few dissenting votes the Republican County Committee at a meeting last night at Palm Garden, Fifty-second Street and Eighth Avenue, adopted a resolution urging repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. General James G. Harbord, head of the advisory committee, created by the county committee, presented the resolution as part of a report from its subcommittee on legislation which the advisory committee had approved.

The resolution was adopted by a viva voce vote and tremendous applause, after the report had been read fromm the rostrum by General Harboard. While he took no part in the debate, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and pioneer Republican worker for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, occupied a front seat at Palm Garden.

The Harboard committee resolution calls for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the application of States' rights in the solution of the prohibition problem. Joseph Levenson, Republican leader in the First Assembly District, in responding to attacks on the resolution declared that if Republicans should persist in their insistence upon retention of the Eighteenth Amendment in the Federal Constitution they would sound the death knell of their party.

Fairchild Opposes Wet Stand.

Lambert Fairchild, a county committee member from the Seventh Assembly District, was the only one to make an address in opposition to the resolution. He said he opposed favorable action on the ground that the State convention, not a meeting of a county committee, was the place where party policies should be determined upon.

"I am a Republican who places his party above his views on prohibition," Mr. Fairchild said. "I feel that the interests of our party will be best served if we observe neutrality in relation to this question. If we think that by the passage of a wet resolution we will win Democratic votes in this city or elsewhere in the State, we are deluding ourselves. On the contrary, we are placing ourselves in a position where we will lose the votes of large numbers of party members who are drys before they are Republicans, in all parts of the State, though, perhaps, not to any very large extent in this city."

Mr. Fairchild moved that the resolution be tabled. He was taken to task by George Hyman, a member from the Fifteenth Assembly District, who spoke briefly, and then Mr. Levenson ascended the rostrum.

"The doom of the Republican party in the East is sealed if we as Republicans do not declare against the Eighteenth Amendment," said the aggressive Republican leader in the First. "I say it humbly but emphatically to the Republicans of this State and of the nation that if we persist in our advocacy of the Eighteenth Amendment, we will lose New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and possibly Ohio and Illinois in the next Presidential election.

Calls Republican Majority Wet.

"An overwhelming majority of the Republicans in this State are against the Eighteenth Amendment and purpose to fight it again in the same spirit and with the same vigor that sixty years ago they fought over the slavery question. The slavery question killed one party and gave birth to another. If we fail to meet the present situation that has arisen over the Eighteenth Amendment with the same courage we will sound the death knell of the Republican party."

There was a great burst of applause as Mr. Levenson concluded and there were cries for Dr. Butler. As he showed no inclination to respond to the demand for a speech Samuel S. Koenig, president of the County Committee, put the question on the resolution.

There were some 300 members of the County Committee in attendance. Possibly a score voted in opposition. There was great applause as the result was announced by Chairman Koenig.

Before the meeting the executive committee of the Republican County Committee met behind closed doors and discussed the Harbord resolution briefly. It was said that the vote of the executive committee had been unanimous for adoption.

Baldwin Attacks Walker.

Joseph Clark Baldwin 3d, Republican leader in the Board of Aldermen, was called to the rostrum to report on the work of the Republican Aldermanic minority. He launched a bitter attack on the Walker Administration.

"I doubt if ever in the history of municipal government a majority has been less on the job in the public interest than the present administration at City Hall," he said. "They have apparently taken last Fall's vote as a blank check, drawn to their order by the public for any amount."

Mr. Baldwin contrasted the refusal of the administration to act in favor of salary raises for the police and firemen with the prompt voting of increases for members of the Board of Aldermen early this year and more recently the $500,000 increases voted for city officials in high-salaried positions. He touched on the disclosures affecting the Board of Standards and Supplies and the failure of Mayor Walker and Governor Roosevelt to take any action in the matter.

"Is Mayor Walker afraid, or why does he not dare to take vigorous action?" he asked.

"Is Governor Roosevelt so completely controlled by Tammany Hall that he will only take action if forced to do so? He acted quickly enough in Westchester.

"We are facing an election. Not a city election to be sure. But don't let anyone tell you that Franklin Roosevelt, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is not a Tammany man. Tammany is the issue this Fall and we Republicans are not going to forget it."

$18,000 Alimony to Mrs. Shewan.

Edwin A. Shewan of 1,046 Fifth Avenue, who, with his brother, James Shewan Jr., operates the drydock business of James Shewan & Sons, founded by their father, was directed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Frankenthaler to pay $18,000 a year alimony to his wife. Mrs. Ann Shewan of 868 Madison Avenue, pending his suit for a divorce and the trial of a counter-claim by Mrs. Shewan for separation on the ground of abandonment. The court also awarded to Mrs. Shewan $5,000 counsel fees, but permits their two daughters to remain in the custody of Mr. Shewan.

CHARTER IS GRANTED TO MEDICAL CENTRE

OLD SCHOOL LOSES STATUS

Institution Taking It Over Will Combine Hospital and Teaching Facilities Worth $100,000,000.

Brooklyn's new medical centre project, involving the organization of a medical college to be affiliated with nine Brooklyn hospitals and combining equipment valued at $100,000,000, became a reality yesterday by a vote of the State Board of Regents, granting the charter to organize the Long Island College of Medicine. Joseph J. Baker, counsel for the proposed centre, who is also president of the Jewish Hospital of Brooklyn and a regent of the Long Island College Hospital, announced that the board's decision had been reached yesterday morning at a meeting in the Bar Building.

The board also approved the amendment to the present charter of the Long Island College Hospital, taking from that institution the right to operate as a medical school, Mr. Baker said. The new centre will take over the equipment of the college hospital and will keep the present staff of the college in authority until the new college is ready to organize.

Trustees to Meet Today.

This morning the board of trustees of the new Long Island College of Medicine will hold its first meeting at the Downtown Association to create by-laws and appoint a governing staff for the centre. The board includes fourteen prominent philanthropists and educators of Brooklyn, representatives of some of the hospitals associated with the centre, and the entire Board of Regents of the Long Island College Hospital.

The trustees have already voted $500,000 toward an endowment fund for the centre from money donated by a dozen Brooklyn citizens. Present plans call for an initial endowment fund of $1,000,000.

The board also plans to erect a central building in mid-Brooklyn easily accessible to the hospitals involved. The site has already been selected and the structure is expected to be completed within five years at a probable cost of more than $3,000,000.

The granting of the charter brings to a climax two years of study and negotiation by leading Brooklyn educators who planned to create in that borough one of the great medical centres of the world. Dr. Frank L. Babbott, assistant dean of the Long Island College Hospital, has been one of the principal organizers. He was assisted in the early negotiations by Dr. Adam Miller, dean of the medical school, and Dr. John Polack, a member of the faculty. Dr. Charles M. Gordon represented the Kings County Medical Society in the preliminary negotiations.

To Accommodate 400 Students.

When the proposed building for the college is completed the central plant and affiliated hospitals will take care of more than 400 medical students. Courses in the first two years will be given in the central building and during the last two at the central plant and in the affiliated hospitals.

Of these hospitals four will have intimate contact with the college and be represented on the board. They are the Brooklyn, Methodist Episcopal, Jewish and Long Island College hospitals. Present arrangements with the city hospitals in Brooklyn call for the continued use of clinical material in them by third and four year students. These include the Brooklyn State, Coney Island, Greenpoint, Kingston Avenue and Kings County hospitals.

Mr. Baker also revealed that the Department of Social Welfare, after a hearing last Tuesday, had approved the amendment to the existing charter of the Long Island College Hospital, while Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Lewis had also approved it. The separation of the Long Island College Hospital and the medical school ends a relationship which began in 1858 and which marked a pioneering attempt in the United States to unite a hospital and medical school.

'CONFESSES' SHE HIT CHILD, 6, WITH MALLET

Special to the New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 19.—Margaret Russell, 6-year-old adopted daughter of Mrs. Ellen Russell of 96 Court Street, this city, told physicians at White Plains Hospital this afternoon that her injuries, said by her foster-mother to have been received from falling down stairs, had been inflicted upon her by Mrs. Russell who, the child said, used a wooden mallet to strike her. The girl's skull was fractured.

The local police arrested Mrs. Russell on a charge of felonious assault after being notified of the child's story. The police later announced that Mrs. Russell confessed striking the girl with the mallet because she was "unruly and disobedient." The weapon was found, the police said, hidden at the Russell home, with blood stains upon it.

Mrs. Russell took the unconscious child to the hospital this morning to be treated for the injuries, which she said had been received by Margaret in a fall down a stairway. The police said when the child gained consciousness she told Dr. Charles A. Witty and the attending nurse that her foster-mother had struck her. Mrs. Russell will be arraigned before City Judge William Gray, probably on Saturday. The girl's condition was said at the hospital to be critical.

STONY POINT, June 19.—Officials of the Palisades Interstate Park System today scored a victory over the mountaineers of Sandyfields, near Stony Point, who have been trying to prevent the Park Department from condemning their homes and premises to extend the park and open a new lake. Supreme Court Justice Graham Witschief decided to named condemnation commissioners.

UPHOLDS GUARDIAN AS AID TO RICCIS

Louis Persinger Testifies He Could Not Teach Ruggiero Without Miss Lackey.

DENIES HARM IN CONCERTS

Louis Persinger, violin teacher of boy prodigies, who developed Yehudi Menuhin and is now instructing 9-year-old Ruggiero Ricci, testified before Supreme Court Justice Valente yesterday in the proceedings brought by Ruggiero's father to take the guardianship of his two sons away from Mr. Persinger's assistant, Miss Mary Elizabeth Lackey. He said that if the boys were taken from her he would be unable to continue teaching Ruggiero.

Mr. Persinger, who appeared in public as a pianist at 6 years of age, was called as a witness in behalf of Miss Lackey to combat the charges that Ruggiero is being exploited by his guardian and that a contract calling for ten concerts in ten weeks at the close of this year will injure his health. He said that Yehudi Menuhin, who is no longer under his instruction, and is now 13 years old, has played in thirty or forty concerts this year, and that between the ages of 10 and 11 he gave about a dozen concerts.

Replying to questions by Nash Rockwood, attorney for Miss Lackey, he said "it would be very bad" for Ruggiero's public concerts to be stopped at this time and that his public appearances are beneficial because they "develop his artistic ability and tend to sharpen his interest," while to stop the concerts for a time would "retard his musical development for years." He said that the contract now opposed in the suit was made with his approval.

"It would be a great stimulation to him and the experience will be beneficial," said Mr. Persinger. "I think he will be one of the world's greatest artists before he finishes. The concerts are a necessary part of his development and will have no effect on his health. He has already memorized ten outstanding compositions, so that the concerts in which he will appear generally will include concertos he has already memorized and will be no tax upon his health."

Mr. Persinger said that Miss Lackey's work with Ruggiero had been satisfactory to him and that he did not feel he could continue without her aid. He admitted on cross-examination by Carl Sherman, counsel for the father, that Yehudi Menuhin had no guardian and that he reached his present fame under the teaching of Mr. Persinger and the care of the boy's parents. Miss Lackey never saw this boy, he said. He told Mr. Sherman that he felt he could not continue with the Ricci boys without the aid of Miss Lackey.

Miss Lackey testified yesterday on cross-examination that the moral instruction she is giving the boys, includes a knowledge of "the higher powers." When Mr. Sherman asked if she were not a Christian Scientist, she replied:

"Well, yes and no."

"And, knowing that the father and mother of the boys were Catholics, you thought it would be all right to bring up the children in the Christian Science faith?"

"I did not think it would be objected to by their mother."

Charles D. Isaacson, one of three music critics called in behalf of Miss Lackey to testify as to the effect of stopping Ruggiero's public appearances at this time, said "it would be the worst possible crime."

FRENCH TAX RECEIPTS DROP

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—The figures for the tax collections by the French Government for the month of May show a total of 3,171,000,000 francs (about $126,840,000). This is a slight decrease on May, 1929, when the collections reached 3,203,000,000 francs (about $128,120,000).

This decline of 32,000,000 francs is not great, however, when the tax reductions voted by Parliament last April are taken into consideration. These reductions, the Finance Ministry observes, have not yet reached their full effect and will not be thoroughly visible until after July 1. Thus direct taxes in May fell off as compared with May, 1929, but indirect taxes and monopolies produced a surplus of 331,000,000 francs.

The total direct tax receipts for May, 1930, reached 506,000,000 francs and the total indirect taxes and monopolies 2,651,000,000 francs.

WALL ST. OPERATOR A SUICIDE OVER LOSS

FIANCEE FINDS HIS BODY

Police Say He Lost $28,000 That He Had Borrowed to Cover Some of His Accounts.

The body of Walter Werner, 37 years old, an independent operator in Wall Street, was found yesterday morning in his bed in his three-room studio apartment at 12 East Sixty-first Street. Mr. Werner, despondent over financial reverses due to the decline of stocks, ended his life by shooting himself under the heart, the police said.

The body was discovered shortly after 9 A. M. by Mr. Werner's fiancée, Miss Margaret Fisher, who lives on another floor in the same house. She was in the habit, she told the police, of calling Mr. Werner every morning, and when there was no answer to her call yesterday she decided to investigate.

After finding the body she notified the police. Deputy Inspector of Detectives John Griffiths said there was no doubt but that Mr. Werner had committed suicide because of losses in Wall Street.

It was learned that Mr. Werner, who shares offices with the F. Rosenberg Company at 256 Broadway, had lost practically all of his money in the succession of slumps in stocks. He borrowed $28,000 from his fiancée's mother, a Mrs. Jacobs, before the latter sailed for Europe on the Europa Tuesday night, to cover some of his accounts, and then decided to take his life when he lost that, according to the way the police reconstruct the events leading up to his death.

Mr. Werner left a note, which the police declined to make public, and a check for $1,000, made payable to cash, for the funeral expenses. He had been dead for several hours when Miss Fisher found the body, according to the police. Miss Fisher said she had had dinner with Werner the night before, and at that time he had seemed melancholy and dejected over his losses.

Mr. Werner's note furnished a list of friends and relatives here and abroad whom Werner wished to be notified of his death, the police said. The nearest relative in this country is Milton May of New Rochelle.

WILSON AWARD MADE TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Money Will Be Used for Doors to New Palace Commemorating Organization's Founder.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, June 19.—The League of Nations received today the Woodrow Wilson award of $25,000 which the Wilson Foundation Board decided in December it merited for its ten years' service in the cause of peace. The money, with a commemorative bronze plaque by the Yugoslav sculptor, Ivan Mestrovich, was presented by Hamilton Fish Armstrong, vice president of the foundation and editor of Foreign Affairs in New York.

The League plans to use the money to construct monumental bronze entrance doors to the new League palace as a memorial to Wilson. At present the only thing in the League building recalling Wilson is a marble slab erected by the city of Geneva, inscribed to him as "founder of the League of Nations." An American sculptor will be chosen to design the doors.

Mr. Armstrong, in presenting the award to Secretary General Sir Eric Drummond on behalf of the League, said he was acting as an intermediary "through whom thousands and thousands of Americans who contributed their money to create the Woodrow Wilson Foundation come now to Geneva to say, 'Well done' to the international organization for which President Wilson worked, fought and died."

'PAY DAY' PUBLISHERS AND AGENT INDICTED

Grand Jury Holds Book by Asch Is Obscene, After It Had Been Upheld by Magistrate.

An indictment charging they circulated the book "Pay Day" by Nathan Asch in violation of the law against objectionable literature was returned by the grand jury yesterday against Brewer & Warren, Inc., publishers at 6 East Fifty-third Street, and one of their salesmen, Fred Russey, 24 years old, of 547 Riverside Drive.

The indictment followed a complaint made to District Attorney Crain by John S. Sumner, superintendent of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, when Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman, after a hearing, had declared the book was not obscene. Each of the grand jurors was furnished with a copy of the book to read, after Assistant District Attorney Hastings had questioned witnesses.

Russey and Edward K. Warren, vice president of the publishing house, appeared at the District Attorney's office soon after the bill was handed up. Russey was arrested by Detective James J. McKettrick on a bench warrant. He later was arraigned before Judge Donnellan in General Sessions, where Newman Levy, a lawyer, entered formal not guilty pleas for him and the company. Russey was released in $500 bail. No bail was required of the publishing firm.

Pan American Airways

Along 15,000 miles of the Pan American System, gigantic air liners carry U. S. Mail and passengers to 27 countries of North, Central, and South America . . . flying 88,000 miles weekly . . . 4,500,000 miles yearly. They operate at above 99.7 per cent. perfect adherence to schedule.

Pan American selected Richfield because of its superb quality . . . the same gasoline that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, technical adviser to Pan American Airways, Inc. selected for his recent record-breaking flight from ocean to ocean.

Aviation experts prefer Richfield for the same reason that makes many thousands of motorists use it exclusively. Just as Pennsylvania Crudes refine into the best lubricating oil, so California crudes make the best gasoline, containing natural anti-knock compounds, more power, less free carbon.

You too can have Richfield and its partner in power—Richlube 100 per cent. Pennsylvania motor oil. Visit the Richfield station in your neighborhood. Join the pilots of America's great airways in saying,

ORVILLE WRIGHT HONORED

S. Parker Gilbert Also Among Those to Whom Honorary Degrees Are Awarded.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 19.—Harvard University received gifts to the total of $11,265,775 last year, President Lowell announced today at the commencement exercises.

"The sum is "unprecedented," he said, and is in keeping with the number of degrees that were awarded, 1,945, the largest in its history.

The exercises that marked the university's 249th year were dedicated informally to Harvard's participation in the new "house plan" of education. For the largest gift announced, one for $2,948,000, was designed by Edward S. Harkness for the erection of "Harvard houses"; and J. P. Morgan, as president of the alumni association, spoke of the plan as "the best thing which our generation has done for the college."

In connection with the exercises it was said that this year's graduating class has established another record, this one along scholastic lines. For 34 per cent of the undergraduates receiving Bachelor of Arts or Science Degrees, obtained honors in their studies. Twenty-one of them received summa cum laude honors, that, also being the largest number in the history of the university.

Citations Are Read.

Along with the undergraduate and graduate school diplomas, seven honorary degrees were awarded, the citations with which they were conferred in part were:

Michael Henry Sullivan—As a judge, as chairman of the School Committee and Finance Commission of Boston, diligent, just and wise; a citizen worthy to be honored. Master of Arts.

Henry Bradford Washburn, Dean of the Episcopal Theological School—Sympathetic by nature, broad in outlook, and sage in counsel. Doctor of Divinity.

William Morton Wheeler—Eminent as zoologist and dean of the Bussey Institution, profound student of the social life of insects, who has shown that they also can maintain complex communities without the use of reason. Doctor of Science.

Karl Taylor Compton—A professor of physics, renowned for his contributions to its latest mysteries, the new president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Doctor of Laws.

Seymour Parker Gilbert—A young man called to the relentless task of carrying out the reparations settlement, who achieved the incredible. Doctor of Laws.

Frederick Perry Fish—The leading patent lawyer of the country, who amid work of an exacting profession has wrung time for public service in directing education, Doctor of Laws.

Orville Wright—Like his brother, a navigator, whose persistent faith and work gave to men highways in the sky, and the age of discovering new countries having passed, taught men to shorten to a quarter the spaces on the earth, Doctor of Laws.

New Board Members Elected.

The following were elected as members of the board, each to serve a six-year term:

Charles MacVeagh, '81, of New York City, was elected to serve two years, and Dr. Roger Irving Lee, '02, of Brookline, for one year in filling two unexpired terms.

The following became directors of the alumni association, each for a three-year term:

Three members elected to serve six-year terms on the council were:

FREDERIC HAINES CURTISS, '91, of Boston.
ROBERT ELIOT GOODWIN, '01, of Boston.

Morgan Praises House Plan.

In his address to the alumni, Mr. Morgan spoke of Harvard of thirty years ago in contrast to the present. Then he touched upon the idea of the house plan.

"The house plan is destined, I believe, to help Harvard as nothing else could do to fulfill its task as the greatest teaching force in America," he said. "I venture also to predict that thirty years from now the plan, with the improvements and developments which time and thought will bring to it, will be found to be the best thing which our generation has done for Harvard College."

President Lowell, in announcing the year's gifts, explained that the plans for all the houses have been made and that two of the buildings are nearly completed.

Mr. Lowell said that the $11,265,775 does not take into consideration payments of previous subscriptions to the $10,000,000 and alumni endowment funds, the income paid as capital by the trustees under the will of Gordon McKay and the sums received for pensions.

Class of '05 Gives $50,000.

Walter S. Gifford of New York presented to the university $50,000 on behalf of the class of '05, which has been holding its twenty-fifth reunion.

Mr. Gilbert, in a speech at the alumni meeting, discussed the Dawes plan and reparations, with especial reference to Germany. In the course of his address he said:

"The fact that we are now entering what might be called a period of self-help and self-reliance does not mean that the world is any the less interrelated or that we can withdraw into any splendid isolation or be indifferent to what is happening elsewhere in the world.

"It does mean that in the period opening the contribution of each country to the general progress will be measured more and more by how well it attends to its own affairs and keeps itself in a sound position.

"That, after all, is the primary job of each country to do for itself, and the presumptions are that in performing this task well each will be doing the best for the welfare of all."

Addresses were also made by Governor Allen of Massachusetts, President Compton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Dr. William S. Thayer of Baltimore.

SUSPENDED BY EXCHANGE

Liabilities Said to Be $3,000,000, With Assets at $650,000—Preferential Payment Alleged.

Within a few hours after the New York Stock Exchange had announced yesterday the suspension of the firm of Woody & Co., members of the Exchange, for insolvency, Assistant District Attorney Harold Hastings announced that he would present to the grand jury today a charge that the firm had received $95,687 for securities which it has failed to deliver to the purchaser.

At the same time, a petition in bankruptcy against the firm was filed in the Federal court by three customers, who alleged that the total due them by the firm was more than $88,000. The petitioners, who said money was due them on open accounts, were Albert H. Tag of 22 East Twenty-sixth Street, claiming $49,957; Charles R. Van Etten of Freeport, L. I., $12,084, and Henri Solignac of 511 West 138th Street, $26,000.

Eugene L. Garey, attorney for the petitioners, said he estimated the liabilities of Woody & Co. at $3,000,000, while visible assets amounted to $200,000, aside from the firm's Stock Exchange membership, which is valued at $450,000. Judge Charles H. Kelby, counsel for Woody & Co., said he was seeking securities and other assets whose disappearance had not yet been explained.

The Irving Trust Company was appointed receiver and was authorized to perform the firm's business functions pending further orders from the court. The petitioners, through Mr. Garey, charged that the defendants had made a preferential payment on June 18 to Haskins & Sells of 15 Broad Street of $1,000 at a time when Woody & Co. were unable to meet their obligations.

First Failure Since 1928.

The failure of Woody & Co. was the first insolvency of a Stock Exchange firm with headquarters in New York since Aug. 9, 1928, when the firm of W. D. Moore & Co. was suspended. Woody & Co. is a new firm which was formed on Nov. 25 last. It recently opened offices in the Bank of Manhattan Building at 40 Wall Street.

The partners of the firm, who are all young men, are H. Russell Ryder of 720 Park Avenue, Charles L. Woody Jr. of 375 Park Avenue, who holds the firm's membership in the Exchange, and Lucien A. Hold of 983 Park Avenue. Mr. Woody paid $450,000 for his membership on April 18, 1929, several months before the partnership was formed.

Mr. Hastings announced that he was seeking Mr. Ryder so that he might question him before the grand jury holds its hearing on the case today.

John Danneck, president of the Equitable Holding Company of 17 East Forty-second Street, who brought charges against Woody & Co., told Mr. Hastings his dealings with the firm had been through Mr. Ryder, who had charge of the operation of the office while Mr. Woody executed the firm's orders on the floor of the Stock Exchange. Mr. Danneck said he had bought and paid for securities valued at $95,687 on June 10 from Woody & Co., and had never received the stock.

Ryder Widely Known.

Mr. Ryder, who is a brother-in-law of Mr. Woody, having married the latter's sister, has had a sensational career as a market plunger in Wall Street in the last ten years. He was reported to have built up a fortune of several millions and to have passed unscathed through the panic of last Fall. Mr. Ryder's reputation as a generous spender and a giver of large tips was well known in the financial district and at Broadway night clubs. His wardrobe, according to brokers, has been one of the most extensive in New York.

The Stock Exchange was notified of the firm's inability to meet its obligations before the opening of the Exchange. Five minutes after the market opened, Richard Whitney, president of the Exchange, announced the firm's suspension. At the same time, the New York Curb Exchange, in which Woody & Co. held associate membership, also suspended the firm.

Charles L. Woody Jr. is about 30 years old and a graduate of Yale, Judge Kelby said. He is the son of a partner in the law firm of Merrill, Rogers, Gifford & Woody, of 60 Broadway.

BANKERS PLAN DRIVE AGAINST SPECULATION

DENVER, June 19 (AP).—Less speculation and more thrift will be the gist of the advice that the American Institute of Banking will give to the American people in a vast program of education that will embrace hundreds of radio talks and published articles.

The public education committee of the institute laid its plans today at the annual convention. The program mapped out is a continuation of that begun last year when 300,000 persons were reached through one medium or another with the gospel of thrift.

"Next to religion, finance is uppermost in every man's thought," said Fred Brower Jr. of Winston Salem, N. C. "There is no greater service banks can render than to teach persons to save and provide for their survivors after death, and to teach children so they will be better able to cope with the financial problems which are to confront them in later life. Those who learn thrift are assured of a happier life than those who do not learn it."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—For the first time in thirty-six years the annual Fourth of July banquet of the American Chamber of Commerce in France will not be held this year. At an extraordinary meeting of the members this afternoon it was decided to abandon plans for the usual elaborate celebration of the American colony.

It was explained that the reason for the decision was the refusal of Ambassador Edge to preside this year at the banquet, as all other American envoys have done during the long history of the event. The only explanation forthcoming was the pressure of public engagements was too great for Mr. Edge adequately to prepare the necessary speech.

Valhalla High School Plans Summer Course for Seniors.

VALHALLA, N. Y., June 19.—Twenty-four boys and girls of the senior class in the junior high school here went home to their parents this morning after a special assembly with quaking hearts and tear-stained faces. They had been told at the assembly by Charles A. Fairman, president of the Board of Education, that the commencement exercises, which were to have been held tonight, had been "indefinitely postponed" because only eight students had passed the Regents' examinations.

The Regents' marks came in last night and when the school officials noted the unusual number of failures a meeting of the board was called hastily, with the result that the commencement was called off. The news was a shock to parents who had outfitted their children for the graduation and it is expected that they may make formal protest to the board.

Mr. Fairman said that a special taxpayers' meeting will be held on July 11 and attempts will be made then to arrange a Summer course for the students who failed.

CARAWAY REPORTS ON CANNON FUNDS

his announced intention of making such a demand he will point out that no report has been received from the Judiciary Committee, of which the lobby committee is a subcommittee.

As to the Jameson Money.

Declaring that Bishop Cannon "stands in an unenviable position and can answer for himself, regarding his share," Senator Caraway said:

"Jameson gave $172,000 to help defeat the Democratic candidate for President in 1928. He had never given a dollar before in his life for any political activities, according to his official testimony. At one time, in a burst of generosity, years ago, he gave $25 to the Anti-Saloon League.

"I have not any belief at all that that was Jameson's money. Bishop Cannon was brought to Jameson by Bascom Slemp of Virginia, who was very much interested, of course, in Republican success, and Jameson gave, as I now recall, $25,000 to the Republican organization in Virginia, $30,000 to the organization in North Carolina; he gave $65,300 to Bishop Cannon; he gave fifty or sixty thousand, I do not remember the amount, to a society called a Constitutional Democratic Organization.

"He did not know where it was. He did not know an officer in it. He did not know where it functioned. He did not know what he was doing. But it was against Al Smith.

"I don't think that was his money. I think he was passing out the money for the Republican National Committee in order to fight Al Smith on religious and other grounds, and did not want to be connected with it. I may be mistaken about that."

Rule Invoked for Others.

The Senate was told that on no less than six occasions the committee had ruled that Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was freed from answering questions about his political activity.

The rule, he added, was invoked for the protection of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee; also for Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and for Josephus Daniels.

"Certain people want to charge that Bishop Cannon was given immunity," he exclaimed. "That statement is an unqualified and deliberate falsehood, and whoever utters it does so with the knowledge that he is a common liar. I claim no immunity for that declaration here or anywhere else."

"We did not pursue and did not report to anybody the chairman of the Republican National Committee when it appeared that he had taken funds donated by the Union Carbide company for the Tennessee River Improvement Association and put them in a trading account," he continued.

"We did not ask the prohibition authorities or the District Attorney to investigate the fact when it was disclosed that in a banquet given to the former Senator from New York (Mr. Wadsworth) at Baltimore they had $76 worth of liquor and disbursed it.

Other Quests Abandoned.

"We did not ask the prohibition authorities to pursue Captain Stayton of the society opposed to prohibition, when it was disclosed in the testimony that they were keeping peach brandy for distribution among their lobbying friends.

"We did not ask the State Department to take any action when it was disclosed that the Cuban Ambassador here in Washington was maintaining a lobby supported in part by money from Cuba to fight legislation then pending in Congress.

"We did not ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to take any action against a railroad in New England when it was disclosed that it was contributing to a lobby fund against the law of the land.

"We did not ask the War Department to pursue a retired army officer who was engaged in waging war against his own country while on the payroll as a retired army officer.

"In fact, repeatedly and repeatedly, when asked if we were going to request that any action be taken in these matters, we always said:

"That is not our concern. We are trying to find out facts, and the country will know what the facts are, and we are not concerned with what action may be taken with reference to the matter."

Senator Caraway recalled that he had supported former Governor Smith in his campaign, and as a Protestant deprecated the fact that the religious issue was injected into that campaign, "because God knows, and every intelligent person knows, that religious differences cannot be settled in the ballot box."

Defends Course at the Hearings.

Reviewing the work of the Lobby Committee, now suspended although not dissolved, Senator Caraway dwelt momentarily on the way he conducted the hearings, saying:

"I was charged with a lack of delicacy, to put it mildly, in my examination of some of the witnesses. I never said an unkind thing to any living man which I did not regret. I never hurt anybody's feelings when I did not feel that I would like to go out and put my arm around his shoulders and say I was sorry for it.

"That does not mean that I will not do it again; do not misunderstand me. It does mean that I do not believe that in most instances it was not absolutely necessary in order to get the answers out of witnesses. We were trying to get information, but the witnesses were yielding it reluctantly.

"But if, sometimes, as I have said, a question was as much an insinuation and accusation as it was a question, and was calculated to carry a sting with it, I was always sorry for it."

WEST POINT TEAMS 'PACKED,' SAYS FISH

LISTS EX-COLLEGE PLAYERS

For Notre Dame Games as Much as 62 Per Cent of Teams Have Been 'Recruited,' He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Continuing his attacks on what he has termed "unfair" sports policies at the West Point Military Academy, Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York, in the House today, challenged the statement of the War Department that none of the recent teams at the institution was made up of 50 per cent former college athletes, as Mr. Fish had charged.

Mr. Fish's statement followed the publication in The Congressional Record of a report of Major Gen. Hugh Drum, Inspector General of the Army, in which certain charges, some of them made by Mr. Fish, concerning the athletic situation at West Point, were characterized as "untrue."

Mr. Fish, a former Harvard football star, said:

"As the Representative in Congress from the district in which West Point is located, I am, of course, not inclined to get into any unnecessary controversy in regard to the Military Academy, of which I am a firm believer and supporter.

"As a lover of the American game of football and desirous of maintaining the high amateur standing and glorious traditions of football that have existed in the past at West Point, I feel compelled to oppose any efforts to weaken the amateur spirit and status of football there.

Reply to Secretary Hurley.

"I was born at Garrison, opposite West Point, and have known about football at the Military Academy ever since I took an interest in the game; in fact, in 1910 and 1911, I often went over to help coach the tackles. But I cannot remain silent and permit the Secretary of War to issue a statement to the effect that I had alleged that West Point football players were subsidized, which has no foundation in fact or fancy.

"I also can not let go unchallenged the statement made by the Secretary of War and repeated in the House by the gentleman from Ohio, Mr. Fitzgerald, denying that 50 per cent of the players of some of the recent West Point football teams have been former college players.

"I propose to place in the record the names of the former college players that have played on some of the recent West Point teams, the colleges they played with and the number of years they played on these college teams. You will see that on the 1926 team at West Point, instead of 50 per cent of the team being former college players, 62 per cent had played on college teams before entering the Military Academy. The report that was read into the record a few days ago, known as the Drum report, stated that only 21 per cent of the West Point teams in the last seven years were composed of former college players.

"The public is entitled to the facts. They want the truth, and that part of the Drum report dealing with the percentage of former college players is utterly misleading, evasive and is an attempt to deceive the American public and whitewash the composition of West Point football teams, made up largely of former college players, including many outstanding stars.

"If you take the first Army eleven that started in some of the big games in recent years, the Notre Dame game for instance, you will find over 70 per cent former college players. If you take merely the 'A' players, those who receive their 'A' for football, averaging about twenty players a year, you will find that instead of being 21 per cent, as stated in the Drum report, on some of these teams it runs as high as 62 per cent.

He Lists West Point Players.

"I think this is sufficient answer to the statement of the Secretary of War that none of these teams had 50 per cent of former college players.

$55,000,000 PROJECTS ARE ORDERED BY FORD

He Adds $5,000,000 to Edison Institute Fund—Hotel Planned for Dearborn Airport.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., June 19.—The Ford Motor Company announced today that it will close its offices and plants in Dearborn and Highland Park for two weeks beginning July 12. This will permit employes to take vacations at the same time and will enable the company to make a complete plant equipment and machine inventory and to add millions of dollars in expansions.

The year 1930 will see new plant projects or improvements, either finished or started, that aggregate $15,000,000 to $16,000,000.

There are other projects now in hands of architects that run close to $40,000,000, work on a portion of which may be begun this year. These include the new airport hotel, that will be constructed across Oakwood Highway from the Stout Lines passenger station in Ford Airport.

The largest single project now being carried out by the Ford Motor Company is the $3,000,000 water tunnel from the Detroit River to the River Rouge plant. An additional $2,500,000 is being spent on enlarging the power plants and other units at the plant to care for the water volume of 1,000,000,000 gallons a day that will be brought in.

The major portion of construction work on the museum and Greenfield Village units of the Edison Institute of Technology is over. Close to $20,000,000 already has been spent by Mr. Ford on this project, and he is spending an additional $5,000,000 this year.

At Boston, Portland, Ore., and Kearny, N. J., where Mr. Ford has erected new assembly plants, the old plants, until recently advertised for sale, are now being used for production of Ford trucks. The new plants at Edgewater, N. J., and Somerville, Mass., are being used for passenger car assembly.

Several millions are being spent in development of the Ford rubber plantations in Brazil. Most of the money at present is going into clearing off the land and building sanitary projects.

CITY BREVITIES.

More active participation in movements to reduce accidents in the metropolitan district was advocated yesterday at a meeting of the American Society of Safety Engineers at the Fraternity Clubs Building, 22 East Thirty-eighth Street.

Methods of increasing membership were discussed last night at a meeting of Local 83,065 of the Automobile and Vehicle Workers' Union in Labor Temple, 243 East Eighty-fourth Street.

Thirteen Hunter College students will attend the annual conference of the Young Women's Christian Association at Silver Bay, Lake George, June 19-27.

PHILADELPHIANS PLAN A "TEMPLE OF ARTS"

Begin Move for $4,000,000 Building to House City's Outstanding Cultural Activities.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—A temple of the arts, to cost at least $4,000,000 and to provide a centre for some of the outstanding cultural activities of the city, will be built on the Parkway, at Nineteenth and Race Streets, according to an announcement made today.

A non-profit-sharing corporation, with a number of prominent Philadelphians as its directors, will be established to obtain the funds necessary to erect and administer the structure.

The cost of the site, acquired for approximately $2,100,000, is the gift of Cyrus H. K. Curtis.

The two tracts of land which form the site will be presented, free of all encumbrances, to the corporation.

It is proposed that the facilities of the immense building be offered for the use of the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Philadelphia Forum, the Philadelphia Grand Opera Association and the Art Alliance.

Prior to his death last January, the late Edward W. Bok committed himself and Mrs. Bok to a joint gift of $850,000 to the enterprise. Memoranda to this effect were found by his widow after his death and she has expressed the intention of carrying out the commitments.

20 FIREMEN OVERCOME.

Twenty firemen were overcome by smoke last night, five of them seriously enough to be sent to Polyclinic Hospital, at a fire which started in the basement of a four-story tenement house at 691 Ninth Avenue. The basement was used for storage purposes by Friedman's Shoe Store, located on the ground floor of the tenement. Six families occupy the upper floors. All escaped without a mishap. One of the families was that of Fireman Philip Grady attached to Engine Company 54. Grady was on duty at the time. His company was the first to reach the scene.

Because of great clouds of smoke that arose from the basement, firemen had difficulty in putting out the flames and nearly two hours passed before the fire was under control.

A new piece of apparatus, a smoke arrester, invented by Assistant Chief Thomas Dougherty, and for which he recently received a Fire Department medal was used for the first time at the fire. Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman, who was attending the dinner to Admiral Byrd in the Hotel Astor, was informed of the fire and went there in time to see the new apparatus used. He declared it was most satisfactory.

The five firemen taken to the hospital were: Joseph Lawler and Charles Zahn of Engine 23; James Gowdy and James and Patrick Murphy of Engine 2. The other fifteen were treated by an ambulance surgeon and sent to their homes. All of them were overcome before the smoke arrester was put in operation.

SAYS AMERICA FACES READJUSTMENT PERIOD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—A period of readjustment that will take a long time to accomplish was the description of trade conditions in the United States given at the American Club luncheon today by Walker D. Hines, former Director General of Railroads.

Mr. Hines said he spoke from his knowledge of the railroads as indicators of the nation's prosperity and from their importance as a factor of that prosperity.

"Last Fall, even before the Stock Exchange slump," Mr. Hines said, "railroad earnings in the United States began to diminish and I take it this reflected underlying conditions which were not at all the result of the Stock Exchange flurry, but that, on the other hand, the slump on the Stock Exchange was merely a reflection of underlying conditions which had already begun to manifest themselves."

Mr. Hines told the club that in spite of competition from motor transport and other unfavorable factors, the railroads had made a tremendous improvement over pre-war conditions, not to mention the situation prevailing under government control.

ROCKEFELLER THANKED FOR AID TO MUSEUM

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, June 19.—"Thanks to the generosity of John D. Rockefeller Jr. the construction of this magnificent building has been made possible," said the High Commissioner of Palestine, Sir John Chancellor, this afternoon in laying the foundation stone of the Palestine Archaeological Museum, to which Mr. Rockefeller contributed $2,000,000 following the Egyptian Government's refusal of a similar offer.

Sir John, paying tribute to Mr. Rockefeller, said: "His greatest interests in life are in initiating measures to combat the diseases of the human race and in advancing the cause of education." He also mentioned the valuable assistance of Professor James Breasted of the University of Chicago, who helped to obtain Mr. Rockefeller's contribution and who also helped in planning the museum.

Ernest Richmond, Director of Antiquities, said the museum would contain galleries exhibiting antiquities from prehistoric days up to the year 1700, and would house the offices of the Department of Antiquities.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, June 19.—Prominent British officials and Jewish and Moslem representatives met at the station this morning the international Wailing Wall commission which was appointed by the League of Nations.

The commission consists of J. E. Lofgren, formerly Swedish Minister of Justice, who is the chairman; M. Barde, Swiss jurist, and G. Van Kempen, former Dutch Colonial Administrator. It will hold its first meeting on Monday morning in the presence of Jewish and Moslem representatives to discuss the procedure.

Dr. Mordecai Eliash, a leading lawyer, will represent the Jews and Auni Abdulhadi will be the lawyer for the Moslems. A Jewish committee of prominent local scholars completed the memorandum on the Wailing Wall question, the original draft of which was prepared by Dr. Cyrus Adler, president of the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati.

It is understood the memorandum supports the claim that the Wailing Wall is the Jew's most ancient and inalienable shrine by quoting Jewish, Christian and pagan sources as far back as 2,000 years. It also cites the evidence of Christian and Jewish travelers in the crusades and the Middle Ages.

It is reported that the Moslem authorities, anticipating a visit by the commission tomorrow to the Mosque of Omar enclosure, have hung carpets and lamps on the Moslem side of the Wailing Wall to form a shrine there.

The Jewish authorities, it is understood will notify the government that this is an endeavour to "manufacture new evidence."

COLOMBIA FEARS BIG STRIKE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOGOTA, Colombia, June 19.—A students' strike that may become general and involve the labor unions is threatened as the result of a strike called last Saturday by the students of the Rosario private Catholic college over the pending appointment of a rector by President Abadia Mendez as a patron of the college.

Last night the Cundinamarca branch of the National Students' Federation extended the strike to all public and private colleges in the State of Cundinamarca pending the granting of the demand of the Rosario students for a new board of councilors and the reform of ultra-conservative regulations in the system of scholarships and instruction.

Simultaneously, according to the Tiempo, the majority of the Rosario faculty, which includes the former Minister of Finance, Señor Esteban Jaramillo, and two Supreme Court judges, sympathizing with the students' cause, decided to resign en masse.

The Tiempo and the Espectador defend the Rosario students' demands, including complete amnesty for the leaders of their strike, but condemn any idea of a general strike, especially in view of reports of sympathy strikes by the labor unions.

Student feeling is directed mainly against former Minister of Industries Montalvo, who is a Professor of Law at Rosario and a member of the board of councilors. The students demand his resignation from both posts, and President Abadia Mendez is supporting the board against the students.

MISS EDMONDS HAS A CHURCH BRIDAL

DR. CROWDER OFFICIATES

Miss Helene Ormonde Edmonds and Herbert Noble Jr., both descendants of a long line of distinguished Colonial ancestors, were married yesterday afternoon in St. James's Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street, in the presence of a representative gathering of old New York families.

The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. Samuel Owen Edmonds and the late Mr. Edmonds, a prominent lawyer. She is a descendant of Robert Coles, one of the thirteen original proprietors of Providence Plantation in 1636; of John Underhill, one of the founders of the colony of Massachusetts Bay, 1630, and Matthais Nicoll, member of the Governor's Council in 1667 and later Mayor of New York. Nathaniel Coles, who settled in Long Island in 1665, and Richard Floyd, Colonel of the Suffolk County troops, are other distinguished ancestors. Major Howard Edmonds, who fought at the Battle of Gettysburg and later was Judge Advocate General in Washington, was a grandfather of the bride.

Mr. Noble is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Noble of this city and Yonder Hills, Lake Mahopac, N. Y., and on the maternal side is a member of the Patteson family.

The Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder, the rector, performed the ceremony. There was a program of organ music while the guests were assembling. Palms and ferns interspersed with white roses and peonies were banked in the chancel and vases of these flowers were on the altar. Clusters of the roses and peonies were fastened to alternate pews along the main aisle, making a lane of white and green through which the bridal party passed.

Brother Escorts the Bride.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Stuart Coles Edmonds, who gave her in marriage. Her princess gown of ivory colored satin was embellished with old family point lace that had been worn by three generations of brides. The lace formed deep cuffs on the long close sleeves of satin and also outlined the V neck. Her veil was of old point appliqué lace and had been worn by the bride's mother and great-grandmother. The veil was arranged in cap fashion and fastened on each side of the head with a small cluster of orange blossoms. The bride carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. A diamond necklace, a family heirloom, the gift of Mrs. Edmonds to her daughter, was the bride's only ornament.

Mrs. Stuart Coles Edmonds was matron of honor. She wore a princess gown of maize-colored flat crêpe with a cape of eggshell lace. She wore a leghorn hat and carried a bouquet of delphinium and talisman roses.

John W. Easton 2d, Best Man.

The other attendants were Mrs. Charles R. Beattie, Mrs. Edward L. Richards, Mrs. J. King Hoyt, Mrs. F. Richards Ford Jr., the Misses Elaine Rockefeller McAlpin, Mabel Burchard and Constance Kinney of New York, and Jane Greenough of Providence, R. I., fiancée of Liston Noble, brother of the bridegroom. Their costumes were of aquamarine flat crêpe made on princess lines, with capes of eggshell lace. They also wore leghorn hats and carried bouquets of snapdragons and pink African daisies.

John W. Easton 2d was best man for Mr. Noble. The ushers were C. Shelby Carter, Archbold van Beuren, Hugh Eustis Paine, John C. Juhring 3d, Charles R. Beattie, John H. F. Haskell, Edward Rezin Davis, Caston Coles Edmonds, brother of the bride, and Griswold Coles Raetze, her cousin.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at Sherry's.

Mr. Noble and his bride, after a motor trip through the Canadian Rockies, will live at 17 East Ninety-sixth Street.

MARIE WILLIAMS WED TO RADAMSKY AGAIN

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—Marie Williams, British opera singer, married for the second time her husband, Sergei Radamsky, Russo-American tenor, in the Registry office here today because the validity of their first marriage in Russia had been questioned by American authorities. Radamsky is a naturalized American, and Miss Williams assumed that her marriage of last year when she was appearing in Moscow made her an American. An American passport was refused to her on the grounds that the marriage was illegal and that she therefore was still a British subject. Appealing to the British authorities, she was told that her marriage was perfectly legal, since she no longer was British. The only solution seemed to be to marry her husband again.

Sergei Radamsky was formerly a member of the Boston Opera Company and has appeared in recitals in New York and other cities. A naturalized American, he was the first, according to report, to take out a marriage license in a Soviet court. A few hours before his recital in Moscow last December he married Miss Williams, whose home was in Glasgow, Scotland, and who had sung with operatic organizations in this country. Mr. and Mrs. Radamsky have been giving concerts since their marriage last Winter.

GENEVIEVE FOX WED TO QUINCY S. CABOT

Ceremony at Southampton, L. I.—300 Guests Attend the Reception.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., June 19.—Miss Genevieve Fox, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyttleton Fox of New York and Southampton, was married here this afternoon to Quincy Sewall Cabot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Cabot of New York. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph Kelly of the Church of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary, at Villa Mille Fiori, home of the bride's grandparents, former Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien of New York.

Only relatives were present at the ceremony, which would have taken place in the cloister garden but for a heavy shower. At the moment the ceremony began the sun came out, shining brilliantly during the rest of the afternoon.

An altar had been improvised at one end of the drawing room before a screen of water oak foliage, white peonies and gladioli. The stately rooms of the villa, a replica of the Villa di Medici in Rome, with a vista of formal terraced gardens, were elaborately decorated with white and yellow gladioli and delphinium.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a gown of ivory satin with a round yoke of duchess lace, a panel in front and a court train that fell from the waist. The hem of the skirt was embroidered with a pattern of seed pearls and the long satin sleeves had inset cuffs of duchess lace. The Brussels net veil, worn by the bride's mother at her wedding, was bordered with old duchess lace and held in place by a cap of seed pearls in rose petal design. The bride's bouquet was of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. William Barclay Harding, the former Miss Constance Fox, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a white organdie gown with a short-sleeved bolero jacket over a white lace slip.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Cathleen Fox, a sister of the bride, and Frances W. Gillmore. They wore simple white organdie gowns, and hats similar to those of the matron of honor. The bride's attendants all carried bouquets of delphinium.

George B. Cabot was his brother's best man. There were no ushers.

The reception was attended by more than 300 guests, including members of the Southampton Summer colony and others who came from New York by train and automobile.

NAVAL TREATY PLEA FRANKED BY STIMSON

OPPONENTS CONCEDE VOTE

But Johnson Denies Fight to Show 'Weaknesses' of Pact Will Be Abandoned in Senate.

REED TALKS OVER RADIO

England and Japan, as Well as the United States, Gave Up Much to Insure Peace, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The State Department, it was learned today, is franking to all parts of the country copies of last week's radio address by Secretary Stimson giving the administration's viewpoint in support of ratification of the London Naval Treaty.

The pamphlets, which carry the statement that the document is a publication of the State Department, were printed in the government printing office. A large force of clerks was kept busy all day addressing the pamphlets from a room set aside for that purpose in the basement of the State, War and Navy Building.

Secretary Stimson in his address, which was over a nation-wide hook-up, criticized naval officers who opposed the compact at the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings, and made a summarization of the document, which is to be reported to an extra session of the Senate, expected to convene, Monday, June 30. In addition to the utilization of the mails for the dissemination of the administration's side of the treaty case, Secretary Stimson has spoken parts of the speech for the sound news reels.

A report that went the rounds last night to the effect that the opponents of the treaty in the Senate, had decided to permit ratification without a fight was denied today by Senator Johnson, the opposition leader. Senator Johnson said the reverse was the case.

Opposition to Press Its Case.

While aware that the present line-up in the Senate is overwhelmingly in favor of ratification, the opposition will nevertheless, make a complete record of its case before the treaty is permitted to reach a vote.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, one of the delegates to the London conference, speaking over the radio tonight, answered the speech made last night by Senator Johnson, in which Mr. Johnson denounced the treaty as un-American and an abandonment of American naval policies.

Criticism of the treaty, said Senator Reed, came principally from the big-navy groups of the United States, Great Britain and Japan. While Senator Johnson and other critics were denouncing the treaty in this country as a surrender on the part of the American delegates, he asserted, the same things are being said in London by Admiral Jellicoe, Lord Bridgeman and Winston Churchill, and in Tokyo by Admiral Kato and his colleagues, in efforts to convince the people of England and Japan that their representatives surrendered to the United States.

Competition among the three leading naval powers in every category of ships was ended by the treaty, Senator Reed insisted.

"It gives all three countries," he said, "a holiday from battleship building during the next seven years and saves the taxpayers of the United States an outlay of $400,000,000 on replacement of battleships alone.

"It allows the peoples of these three great nations to rest secure in the knowledge that no one of the three can be attacked in its home waters by any navy on earth. It makes it plain to all the world that none of the three countries is designing a war upon either of the others. It promotes to an important degree the international friendship that we all desire."

Sees Gains for Us in Cruisers.

Senator Reed took the same position as does Admiral Pratt, commander-in-chief of the fleet, as to the relative values of cruisers armed with eight-inch and with six-inch guns. Under most battle conditions, he said, a cruiser mounting six-inch guns would have certain definite advantages over a cruiser armed with eight-inch guns. No matter from what angle the treaty was viewed, the United States, he insisted, gains important concessions under the provisions of the London treaty.

Among these advantages Senator Reed listed the following:

"The United States obtains immediate parity in battleships with Great Britain and a 5-3 ratio with Japan, advancing by eleven years the date at which the navies of the United States and England will be equal.

"This is accomplished by the scrapping of five British battleships, three American ships and one Japanese ship. The British ships to be scrapped have larger guns than ours and in all respects are better vessels than the three old ships which we are to scrap.

"In cruiser construction, the United States continues to build until it passes Japan and reaches equality with Great Britain, while the latter countries practically stand still to let us catch up.

"In the end the United States will have a well-balanced fighting force of battleships, large and small cruisers, destroyers and submarines equal in tonnage and armament to that of Great Britain and superior to that of Japan."

The points of agreement represent a gain over the terms of the naval limitation treaty negotiated at Washington in 1922, Senator Reed said, and not only bring the United States more quickly to equality with any other power on the seas, but constitute a greater guarantee than the world will continue at peace.

June Income Tax Collections Rise Sharply; Are Now $66,000,000 Above 1929 Mark

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Government receipts shot upward Tuesday when $102,169,000 in income and corporation taxes were received at the Treasury, bringing the month's collection to $186,173,000, or $66,000,000 more than at the same date last year.

Ogden L. Mills, Under Secretary of the Treasury, expressed the opinion that the month's collection would be about $500,000,000. In June a year ago $555,000,000 was received.

The large receipts so far this month, as compared with last year, were due to an accumulation of collections in the offices of the internal revenue collectors last Sunday and Monday.

For the year to and including Tuesday, receipts of income taxes were $2,070,716,000, an increase of $175,000,000 over last year. This cut the deficit on Tuesday down to $61,952,000, as compared to $132,419,000 on the same day a year ago. When receipts of Wednesday and Thursday are recorded the deficit will be turned into a surplus.

The treasury statement gave total receipts as $3,754,745,000, an increase of $212,000,000, and expenditures as $3,816,697,000, an increase of $141,000,000.

Owing to the last-minute rush to get imports into the country before the effective date of the tariff act, customs collections on Tuesday amounted to $13,529,000, compared to a normal of from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

The Internal Revenue Bureau showed that receipts for eleven months totaled $2,459,530,000, an increase of $125,567,000. Corporation taxes amounted to $987,825,000, an increase of $12,928,000, and individual income taxes $899,342,000, an increase of $95,170,000, or a total of $1,887,168,000 for all income taxes, which was $108,098,000 higher than last year.

Tobacco tax collections of $38,638,000 in May were $2,949,000 lower, with a considerable slump in cigarette taxes, but for the eleven months showed a gain of $13,548,000, to a total of $407,630,000. Of the total, cigarette taxes made up $324,564,000, a gain of $15,133,900. The manufactured tobacco tax was $55,271,000, a decline of $655,400, and that on cigars $19,427,400, a drop of $1,247,000.

WAKATSUKI REPORTS ON NAVAL PARLEY

He Tells Cabinet Japan Was at Disadvantage, American Talks Being Reported to British.

READY TO DISPEL DOUBTS

Takarabe Asks the Emperor to Call the Supreme Military Council to Study Treaty.

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKYO, June 19.—In his report to the Cabinet today on the London Naval Arms Conference, Reijiro Wakatsuki, Japan's chief delegate, who returned here yesterday, said that Japan was placed at a disadvantage during the proceedings at London because all the negotiations between Japan and the United States were immediately reported to the British, and that frequently American proposals were made to Japan through the intermediation of the British delegation.

"We had little to do with France and Italy," he said. "Great Britain and the United States had reached a previous understanding, and the only question remaining to be settled between them was whether the United States should have twenty-three or eighteen large cruisers.

"Whatever negotiations the Japanese delegates had with the United States were immediately reported to the British delegation, and the American delegates often had the British state the American demands. This method of negotiation placed Japan in anything but an advantageous position.

"Japan had to adhere to her original demands, and, therefore, the result was that the conference was deadlocked. Informal negotiations were then taken up by Ambassador Matsudaira and Senator Reed, on the one hand, and Hiroshi Saito and R. L. Craigie of the British delegation, on the other hand. These conversations, however, led to another impasse. I then called upon Premier MacDonald and Secretary Stimson. It was after these conversations that I communicated with the government for final instructions."

Mr. Wakatsuki expressed regret at having been unable to carry through the original demands of the government, but said the collapse of the conference would have proved a great disadvantage to Japan in many respects.

In an interview today Mr. Wakatsuki said he was prepared to help the government to dispel any doubts which might have arisen in connection with the proceedings at London or with the treaty itself.

The naval members of the Supreme Military Council met today and decided to call a meeeting of the full Supreme Military Council at an early date to consider the treaty.

Admiral Takarabe called on the Emperor at the palace this afternoon to request him to convene the full council, which is expected to meet within the next few days, prior to the submission of the treaty to the Privy Council for ratification.

Mr. Wakatsuki will call at the palace tomorrow morning to make a formal report to the Emperor on the London conference. This will be followed by a banquet, given by the Emperor, which members of the delegation and high government officials will attend.

PRESTES LUNCHEON HOST.

Honors Small Group of Guests Before Sailing for Europe.

Dr. Julio Prestes, president-elect of Brazil, who is sailing today on the Olympic for a six-week tour of England and France, was the host yesterday at a small luncheon in the Green Room of the Ambassador.

Among his guests were Mrs. S. Gurgel de Amaral, the Brazilian Ambassador; Dr. Sebastio Sampaio, Brazilian Consul-General in New York; Commander José de Couto Aguirre, Lieutenant Captain Oswaldo Alvarenga Gaudiox, First Lieutenant Adalberto Nunes, Commander Augustin T. Beauregard, and other naval officers.

BANK RATE IS CUT, STOCKS RISE AGAIN

is expected to be a further cut in the rate of interest paid by banks to depositors. The present rates, put into effect on March 26, are 2 per cent for all but mutual savings banks and 2½ per cent for the latter. Bankers said yesterday that these last named rates were almost certain to be brought down at the next meeting of the New York Clearing House committee on next Monday.

Besides reductions at European banks of issue, it is regarded as sure that yesterday's action here will be followed by reductions by other banks of the Reserve System. Two of the eleven other regional banks, those at Boston and Cleveland, now have a discount rate of 3½ per cent. All the rest have a 4 per cent rate. While it is considered unlikely that any of the other Reserve Banks will drop their rate to 2½ per cent, a general leveling is expected, carrying the influence of easy money throughout the country.

Sixth Cut Since Last Autumn.

Yesterday's cut was the sixth by the New York Reserve Bank since the stock market decline of last Fall. Prior to that time the rate here had been lifted to 6 per cent in an effort to check the absorption of Federal Reserve credit in security loans.

Some bankers have held that forcing into the market an abundance of cheap money now may lead to a revival of unwise speculation, but others who uphold the Federal Reserve in its present policy say that cheap money has never failed to stimulate the bond market and to promote building activity, thus paving the way for a general revival of business.

The new rate, according to bankers, is not one that the Federal Reserve is likely to maintain for a long period. It would be advisable, it is said, only at a time like the present, when the demand for Federal Reserve funds is light and the need for stimulating business is great. It is believed the rate will be quickly moved up again when there appear definite indications that the business of the country has shaken off its apathy.

HOPE FOR RATE CUTS ABROAD.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—If the decrease in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate from 3 to 2½ per cent, the lowest in the history of the Reserve System, is followed by reductions in other big buying centres, like London, Paris and Berlin, it should have a helpful tendency to stimulate purchasing power and hence to advance the abnormally low commodity prices, officials in close touch with international financial affairs said today.

The New York bank initiated the plan to decrease its rediscount rate in the hope that it would pave the way for an eventual upward turn in buying, and the Federal Reserve Board approved the idea with the same hope, even though some skeptical opinion was expressed. One official said it evidently was the impression of the New York directorate that the lower rate would affect commodity prices through a stimulation of purchasing.

Theoretically, government economists said, there should be low rates in the purchasing centres rather than in the producing centres. The lower rate in New York, by itself, would not be productive of much stimulation, officials thought, although from the psychological standpoint it might be helpful and should be an inspiration to the central banks abroad.

While there might be reductions in the other American Reserve banks, these cuts would not be so important as European reductions, it was asserted.

According to the economic theory, a reduction of bank rates should be followed by an advance in commodity prices. One official today, after recalling that there had been a steady decrease in bank rates since the stock market crash of last Autumn, not only in the United States but also throughout the world, coupled with the same drop in commodity rates, expressed some doubt whether the theory was correct. It was pointed out, however, that theories frequently fail in such abnormal periods as have existed since the beginning of 1928, through the rapidly rising stock market, to the crash of last Fall and later.

In some circles it was expected that the London bank might meet the New York rate, although as a rule the Bank of England has kept a rate about one-half of 1 per cent higher to protect its gold reserves. At present, however, while there has been an inward movement of gold to the United States, it has not been received at the expense of the English market but from Latin America and Japan. Therefore it did not appear that the reserves of the Bank of England needed much protection now. Officials thought that so far as commodity prices and business stimulation were concerned a reduction at the Bank of England would be helpful.

It was expected that the new rate in New York might halt the inward movement of gold, or at least check it.

Officials who do not believe that an immediate benefit to the commodity or the stock market might be brought about by the experimental reduction to 2½ per cent point out that, as both markets had been hit so hard, recovery, when it starts, necessarily will be slow. They appear, however, to be willing to try any remedy to restore business confidence. If results come they should be felt within a month, in the opinion of experts.

The effect on the bond market was said to have been considered in making the new rate. This should be favorable, in the opinion of some officials.

STOCKS ADVANCE STRONGLY.

Losses of Wednesday Wiped Out—3,762,500-Share Day.

After an uninterrupted decline of three weeks, the stock market shook off yesterday all reactionary influences in a broad and vigorous rally. Stocks accustomed to daily declines of from 3 to 15 points suddenly reversed their trend and in a vertical advance of about that scope canceled all of the losses recorded in Wednesday's sweeping break, with a small margin to spare.

The market in turning about gave one of those reversals of form which Wall Street, in the absence of a better explanation, ascribes to internal technical conditions. There was no other visible reason for the upswing, except possibly the vague feeling that market sentiment was improving.

The outstanding development of the financial day was not announced until after the close of the market. This was a reduction in the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank from 3 to 2½ per cent, the lowest rate in the history of that institution.

The next most important news of the day, a decrease of $211,000,000 in brokers' loans, was also made public in the late afternoon. The rally on the Stock Exchange apparently was the result of the market's oversold condition. There was active covering of short commitments.

The recovery lifted nearly all active stocks well above the levels at which they closed on Wednesday. In United States Steel, which led the advance, the net gain was 2⅝ points, with the closing price only a fraction below the highest price of the day, but elsewhere in the active list the gains ran anywhere from 5 to 14 points. Westinghouse Electric was up 7¾ points on the day, Worthington Pump 12½, Vanadium 11, United Aircraft 6⅛, Allied Chemical 13½, American Can 6¼, American Telephone and Telegraph 7¼, American Machine and Foundry 11, American Tobacco B 10, Auburn Auto 11¾, Brooklyn Union Gas 7¼, A. M. Byers 5½, Calumet & Arizona 6, J. I. Case 11, Chesapeake & Ohio 7½, General Electric 3⅞, Foster Wheeler 5¾, du Pont 6¾, Coca Cola 6, Colorado Fuel and Iron 5⅞, Ingersoll Rand 13, Houston Oil 6⅞, International Salt 6, International Telephone and Telegraph 3⅞, National Biscuit 4½, Stone & Webster 7¼, Standard Gas 6¼, Radio 4, New York Central 4, Public Service of New Jersey 6, Peoples Gas 14, Otis Elevator 6¼ and Warner Brothers Pictures 3¾.

The average price of fifty representative stocks showed a net appreciation of $7.24, against a net decline of $6.74 in the same averages on Wednesday. Twenty-five industrial stocks averaged $12.60 higher at the close, while they had shown a loss of $11.05 on the day before.

Yesterday's recovery was accomplished on a comparatively small volume of trading. The total turnover was 3,762,500 shares, compared with 6,425,630 shares on Wednesday. Trading conditions were greatly improved and the ticker kept almost abreast of the market during most of the day.

Strength was shown in commodities as well as in stocks. Cotton extended the recovery which started in the late dealings on Wednesday, while grain prices were also higher. The copper market was steady. Bond prices here were slightly higher.

The advance was a continuation of the rally which got under way in the last hour of trading on the day before. Stocks generally opened higher on good-sized blocks.

One of the leading wire houses announced a reduction in its margin schedule. The house announcing the change, E. A. Pierce & Co., explained that, beginning Monday, the requirements on individual customers' accounts will be 10 points on stocks selling below 40, 12 points on stocks selling from 40 to 49⅞, 25 per cent of market value on stocks selling at 50 and above.

PHYSICISTS DISCUSS THE ATOM AS WAVE

CHEMISTS TALK ON COLLOID

Research Leaders in Two Branches of Science Meet for Symposium at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 19.—About 400 of the country's leading physicists and chemists gathered at Cornell University today for the annual meeting of the American Physical Society and the colloid symposium of the combined National Research Council and the American Chemical Society.

The two groups of scientists, meeting separately, will for three days discuss laboratory research findings. The objects of study range from atoms and electrons to the sun and stars.

The physicists, during the morning, heard thirty papers on technical subjects, such as "Luminescense Due to Radio Activity," "Modified Line in Scattered X-Rays," "Measurements of Currents Through the Walls of X-Ray Tubes," "Energy Distribution in the Ultra-Violet Spectrum of Sklight," "Fundamental Correspondence Between Geometry and Thermodynamics." The afternoon was devoted to informal conferences on "Wave Mechanics," "Dielectrics" and "Biophysics."

The chemists spent the morning and afternoon listening to papers on colloids.

Definition of Colloids.

A colloid is a finely dispersed combination of two substances, such as an egg, for example. Milk is a typical colloid, as is glass, bread, cement, soap, paint or rubber. The field of jellies is one of the most important in colloid chemistry, as well as inks, wines and oils.

Among the papers read was one on "The Ultramicroscopic Structure of Living Plants," by Dr. William Seifriz of the University of Pennsylvania. Professor Seifriz has developed a lens with which he can look further into the structures of living plants than has hitherto been possible.

The most important event from the standpoint of a large number of scientists will take place tomorrow, when Sir William Bragg, director of the Davy-Faraday Research Laboratories of the Royal Institute in London and a Nobel prize winner, will lecture on "Faraday's Diary." The diary has never been published.

Saturday morning Arthur H. Compton, also a Nobel prize winner, will talk on "X-Ray Scattering and Atomic Structure."

S. A. Mitchell, director of the McCormick Observatory of the University of Virginia, and J. Q. Stewart of the Princeton University Observatory will talk tomorrow morning on "Atomic Structure Under Conditions of Temperature and Pressure Found at the Sun's Surface" and "The General Problems of Astrophysics, With Special Reference to the Opacity of Gases."

Dr. Bancroft Leads Symposium.

The colloid symposium was opened by Professor Wilder B. Bancroft of Cornell.

Other speakers were Harry B. Weiser of Rice Institute, Texas, chairman of the symposium, on "The Mechanism of the Coagulation of Sols by Electrolytes;" Arthur Thom and Thomas H. Whitehead of Columbia on "Tonic Interchanges in Aluminum Oxychloride"; E. F. Burton and M. Annetts, University of Toronto, on "Equilibrium Phenomena in Coagulation of Colloids," and Harvey A. Neville and Charles T. Oswald, Lehigh University, on "The Stabilization of Blue Hydrous Cupricoxide."

Dr. Thomas H. Johnson, assistant director of the Bartol Research Foundation, Swarthmore, Pa., presented results in the study of the atom indicating that the electron theory must undergo important revisions.

Dr. Johnson said his researches with hydrogen atoms tended to show that the atom instead of being a corpuscle of matter, as has generally been thought, is in reality a wave. Recently Dr. Clinton J. Davidson of the Bell Telephone Laboratories of New York conducted experiments which led him to conclude that electrons are waves rather than corpuscles.

"As long ago as Newton," said Dr. Johnson, "the question arose whether light consisted of corpuscles or waves. Newton held to the corpuscular theory. Sir Thomas Young upheld the wave theory. There the matter rested for a hundred years.

"When, about 1900, it was discovered that certain experiments proved light to be a corpuscle, while other experiments proved equally that light must be a wave, light had to be waves to explain one set of experiments, while it just had to be corpuscles to explain the other set.

"Within the last three years it has been found that the electrons, which from the time of their discovery were supposed to be small corpuscles of electricity, also have to be regarded as waves in order to explain their behavior when reflected from a crystal. Now the experiments which have I done show that atoms, too, must be endowed with the dual characteristics of both corpuscles and waves.

Beam Velocity of Atoms.

"For one set of experiments the atom must be talked of as a small planetary system of electrons revolving about the positively charged nucleus; whereas, to explain these latest experiments, we must think of the atom as being a beam of waves, having a wave length which depends on their velocity.

"The velocity of an atom at ordinary temperatures is about one mile a second and the wave length for a beam of such atoms is about one hundred-millionth of a centimeter (.00000001 centimeter).

"The fact that a beam of atoms must be regarded as waves is demonstrated and the wave length is measured in the experiments conducted by me, allowing the beam to be reflected from the surface of a crystal of lithium fluorine. The surface of this crystal, if it could be magnified 100,000,000 times, would look like an array of marbles located at the corners of small squares one inch on the side.

"This array of marbles constitutes a grating, and the beam of atoms, when reflected from such a grating, is broken up into several beams, which come off from the crystal at angles characteristic of the distance betwen the atoms on the surface and the wave length.

"In this respect the beam of atoms is similar to a beam of X-rays such as would be obtained from an ordinary tube used by a dentist."

Professor F. K. Richtmyer of Cornell, Professor of Physics, essentially agreed with Dr. Johnson's view.

"Our experiments are all right," he said, "but there is something essential still lacking in the theories we build from them. One set of experiments could not be explained unless we deducted that light is a corpusle; another set of equally valid experiments would be equally inexplicable unless we deducted that light is a wave. Now, the same is found to be true with electrons and atoms.

"What is the answer? Science today is still unable to give it. We need another Copernicus to bring us a grand synthesis through which these apparently conflicting hypotheses would emerge in a new universal harmony. Einstein is not th man to do it. So far as many of us are concerned, relativity plays a very small part."

The chemists are looking forward to a paper to be read by Dr. G. H. Richter, national research fellow at Cornell, on his discoveries in the chemistry of anesthesia. According to Dr. Richter, all types of unconsciousness are closely related, and the effect from a blow on the head, the ether of the surgeon, or even falling asleep, are all of the same process.

Dr. Richter, from a study of narcotics, hypnotics and other forms of anesthesia, has discovered that in each case a coagulation of the cell colloids is apparently the cause of the peculiar effect. His is the first general explanation of anesthesia and opens up a new field for study in the painless treatment of drug addicts.

The chemists also are looking forward to a controversy between Dr. J. E. Rutzler Jr. of Cornell on the one hand and Drs. John H. Northrop, Moses Kunitz, Mortimer L. Anson and Alfred E. Mirsky of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research on the other. Dr. Rutzler will deny the truth of the axiom that "scrambled eggs can never be unscrambled," maintaining that the cooking of an egg does not change it chemically. The others maintain that it does.

HOOVER TRIP WEST NOT YET ASSURED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Although invitations from many cities desirous of being included in President Hoover's proposed trip to the West are reaching the White House, no definite plans have been made for the itinerary, and even the trip is yet not a certainty.

The President still has a tour of the National Park in mind, but has refused to discuss it in detail, until the Senate's program is arranged for disposal of the London naval treaty. Word reached the White House today that Senate leaders hope to vote on the treaty by July 12. Even with this intimation, officials refused to go ahead with preparations for the Western visit.

Tentative plans are being made by officials of the National Park Service under the direction of Secretary of the Interior Wilbur. These have not yet been laid before the President, however. Some of Mr. Hoover's intimates prefer to see him spend a month in resting at an Atlantic Coast resort, but now that the Western trip has been proposed the President will adhere to that, if able to leave Washington for an extended journey during the Summer.

WORLD COURT IN SESSION.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 19.—Dionisio Anzilotti, President, opened the eighteenth session of the World Court today in the presence of the diplomatic corps. The first word was devoted to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme Court, who resigned in February from the World Court.

"The court feels strongly the loss of his collaboration," said President Anzilotti, "and his knwledge, experience and authority were of great value to the court.

Then the president welcomed new members of the court— Cecil Hurst of England and M. Ageot of France. At this session the court will be called on to interpret the statute for the Upper Savoian zone, about which France and Switzerland disagree. The litigants in this case are expected to appear in October.

The court has been requested to appoint six neutral judges in three mixed committees involving Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. The Greco-Bulgarian case opened today. Professor Vanhamel, former director of the juridical department of the League of Nations, pleaded for Bulgaria. Professor Verzyl of Utrecht University will plead tomorrow for Greece.

Liquor Pact With Poland Signed.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A convention with Poland to prevent liquor smuggling similar to treaties entered into with Great Britain and fourteen other countries was signed today by Secretary Stimson and Tytus Filipowicz, the Polish Ambassador.

STEINGUT'S RECORD IS RATED AS GOOD

REPORTS ON 3 COUNTIES

Most Assemblymen of Kings, Queens and Richmond Are Called Average in New Survey.

There is an almost total absence of high ratings in the report of the Citizens Union committee on legislation on members of the solidly Democratic delegations to the Assembly from Kings, Queens and Richmond Counties.

The achievements of most of the Assemblymen from these counties are appraised as "average." It is explained in the report that this "does not represent a truly creditable record."

Irwin Steingut, of the Eighteenth District in Kings, who, as the result of the death of Assemblyman Peter J. Hamill became leader of the Democratic minority in the Assembly, receives praise in the report but, according to that document, "has still to demonstrate qualities of true leadership."

Kings County.

BREITENBACH, WILLIAM (Dem.), Thirteenth District—Maintained his record for close, conscientious attention but sponsored some ill-considered bills and accomplished little of value.

COHEN, ALBERT M. (Dem.), Twenty-third District—Energetic and capable. Obtained results in a limited field but was not helpful generally on major issues.

ESQUIROL, JOSEPH A. (Dem.), Twenty-first District—Continued notably regular in attendance but has not developed much effectiveness with experience.

McCREERY, WILLIAM C. (Dem.), Tenth District—Continued to indicate some ability but made little headway with the bills he sponsored this year and has not developed with experience.

McNAMARA, DANIEL, Jr. (Dem.), Ninth District—New member who was active in a limited field and made an average first-year record.

MORAN, EDWARD S., Jr. (Dem.), Twelfth District—Has displayed energy, initiative and courage in his work, qualities sadly lacking in most of the members. Though sometimes erring in judgment, he rates high in the city delegation.

NATHANSON, JACOB P. (Dem.), Fourteenth District—Attended closely but has not, in his four years of service, developed qualities essential to success in legislative work.

O'REILLY, LUKE (Dem.), Eighth District—A new member who at times participated rather spectacularly in debates but who has still to demonstrate constructive worth.

SCHANZER, ALBERT D. (Dem.), Second District—New member. Displayed genuine interest, worked hard and obtained results above the first-year average.

SCHWARTZWALD, JACOB J. (Dem.), Sixth District—Above the Assembly average in intelligent comprehension of legislative matters but has not developed effectiveness in the promotion of constructive measures.

STEINGUT, IRWIN (Dem.), Eighteenth District—Elevated to minority leadership by strange combination of fate and political fortune, conducted himself generally with dignity and tact. Gained in effectiveness as the session progressed but has still to demonstrate qualities of true leadership.

STEWART, GEORGE W. (Dem.), Seventeenth District—New member. Displayed intelligence and was attentive but not conspicuous, making an average record.

Queens County.

FARRELL, PETER T. (Dem.), Third District—New member with average first-year record.

NUNAN, JOSEPH D. JR. (Dem.), Fourth District—New member with average first-year record.

O'ROURKE, JOHN (Dem.), First District—A new member who displayed some talent in debate and who should, with experience, develop a record better than the average first-year showing he made at this session.

ZIMMERMANN, FREDERICK L. (Dem.), Sixth District—New member. Distinguished himself by intelligent and energetic promotion of measures for State regulation of outdoor advertising. A promising addition to the city delegation.

Richmond County.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, June 18.—Nearly all the groups belonging to the Free Labor syndicates, which have 100,000 members in Barcelona alone, where they were first organized by Martinez Anido, Primo de Rivera's right-hand man, to suppress forcibly the syndicalist troubles in Barcelona, have entered the new Laborers' party.

The party will shortly send speakers throughout the country to enlist support for the workers "to save Spain from the troubles of plutocracy and communism," as a circular says.

Former Ministers of the dictatorship are the principal backers of the new party. While the Free Labor syndicates are not as numerous as the Socialist syndicates, they wield wide power, particularly in the Barcelona area. This is the first large-scale attempt to organize labor on the side of the monarchy.

ORDERS ART WORKS SOLD.

English Court Decrees Scarsdale Masterpieces Must Go.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—As a result of court action yesterday, thirty masterpieces formerly belonging to the Marquess Curzon of Kedleston and forming part of the famous Scarsdale heirlooms will be offered at auction. This collection of pictures and statues at Kedleston Hall is one of the last of its kind in Great Britain to remain undisturbed.

The most valuable picture included in the sale is Rembrandt's portrait of an old man with a thin white beard and grey hair, which was engraved by R. Houston in 1757 and was in 1761 in the John Barnard collection. Reynold's Lady Dashwood and Child, Hoppner's portrait of Lady Waldegrave, Gainsborough's Lady Impey and Raeburn's portrait of Mrs. Blair will also be sold from the collection, which dates back nearly two centuries.

TONSIL OPERATIONS CALLED 'SLAUGHTER'

Dr. W. G. Crump Says Surgery Has Lost Its Balance Also Over Appendicitis.

Special to the New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 19.—Dr. Walter Gray Crump of New York, speaking before the division of clinical medicine of the American Institute of Homeopathy at Haddon Hall, criticized today the eagerness with which some surgeons operate upon tonsils and the appendix.

"Taking a man's tonsils out and taking away his appendix," said Dr. Crump, "has been carried to such extremes that the practice has swung so far we have lost our balance.

"If the mucous membrane is kept intact you are safe from infection. It is a blessed fact that you build up a locality against infection. Experience shows that there must be something in the individual which permits infection.

"All our cities of any size have their water saturated with chlorine, so we have a general persistence of upsetting the gall bladders.

"I go into so many hospitals where they cannot do anything for other patients because they are busy taking out tonsils. There is a stream of victims for the knife, and most of them are children. I call it the slaughter of the innocents."

Dr. William Diebel of Detroit took exception to the conclusions regarding the wisdom of removing tonsils. In his opinion, he said, their removal had saved more lives than had been lost.

PREMIER BAXTER WINS.

Conservatives Are Returned to Power in New Brunswick.

ST. JOHN, N. B., June 19 (Canadian Press).—The Conservative Government, headed by J. B. M. Baxter, was returned to power in the general Provincial election held today. Early this evening the returns indicated that Premier Baxter had carried twenty-nine seats, against the Liberal opposition's thirteen, with six seats in the doubtful column.

At the time of dissolution the standing of the parties was: Government, 35; Liberal, 11; vacancies, 2.

Premier Baxter appealed to the electorate on the record of his government, which succeeded that of P. J. Veniot in 1925. He was attacked on his handling of the Grand Falls power project as a private enterprise, of his introduction of a system of government control of liquor without reference to the people and his proposed program of an extensive system of permanent roads.

MADE HIS DEBUT AS BOY

He Was Long Comedian With McCaull Opera Company and Later a Comic Opera Star.

According to announcement by the management of "Apron Strings," Jefferson De Angelis, who is appearing in that comedy, will celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of his first stage appearance next Thursday evening. Mr. De Angelis has invited several players who were associated with him forty years or more ago to attend the performance. Those to whom invitations have been sent include De Wolf Hopper, Jennie Weathersby, Willis Sweatnam and John Henshaw.

Mr. De Angelis, who is now in his seventy-first year, made his début when a boy at the Odeon Theatre, Baltimore, a variety hall. His sister appeared with him in the act, and they toured the country under the watchful eye of their father, a minstrel man. Later Mr. De Angelis was with the McCaull Opera Company and with the company at the old Casino for many seasons. Five years ago he retired from the musical comedy and light opera stage. His greatest recent success has been the rôle of the old-time theatrical manager in "The Royal Family."

MARY BLAIR MARRIED.

Actress in "Lysistrata" Wed Constant M. Eakin Last Sunday.

The marriage of Mary Blair, a member of the cast of "Lysistrata," to Constant M. Eakin, an official of the Frigidaire Corporation, became known yesterday. The ceremony took place last Sunday at Mr. Eakin's country home in Redding, Conn. Miss Blair said yesterday she would leave the revival of the Aristophanes play next Wednesday, but would not give up her stage career. Both Miss Blair and Mr. Eakin have been married before. The actress recently obtained a divorce from Edmund Wilson, literary critic and playwright.

Miss Blair, who was one of the three original women members of the Theatre Guild, came into prominence by appearing with the Negro actor, Paul Robeson, in O'Neill's "All God's Chillun Got Wings." She has also been seen in several other O'Neill plays and in many productions at the now defunct Provincetown Playhouse, when it was operated by the Provincetown Players.

ARLISS COMPLETES TALKIE.

Will Go to London Soon to Appear in Original Play, "Old English."

George Arliss and Winthrop Ames returned yesterday from Hollywood, where Mr. Arliss completed an audible film version of the Galsworthy play, "Old English." Mr. Ames, who produced "Old English" on Broadway in 1924, accompanied the star to Hollywood as an "interested bystander to watch the picture being made." Mr. Arliss plans to sail for England June 28. In London he will appear under the management of Leon M. Lion in a revival of "Old English," in which he scored an outstanding success here.

The actor will go back to California late in the year to play in "The Ruling Passion," a talking picture version of a story which has already been produced for the silent films. "The Ruling Passion" will have dialogue by Booth Tarkington.

There have been reports that Mr. Arliss would be seen on Broadway under the Erlanger-Tyler auspices in a new play, but in view of the actor's plans, the deal may not go through.

Girl Usher in 'Stepping Sisters' Cast

Marion Davis, a young usher employed at the Royale Theatre, joined the cast of "Stepping Sisters" last night on short notice. She replaced Roslyn Harvey, who left for the Coast yesterday afternoon because of the death of her father, it was said by the management. Miss Davis had been familiar with Miss Harvey's rôle, a minor one, and was able to learn it in several hours.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Find the Fox," a mystery play which has been in process of production for several weeks, has suddenly decided to open tonight at Wallack's Theatre. Frank Martins is its author.

Marjorie Gateson will succeed Phoebe Foster in the chief feminine rôle of "Topaze" on Monday night.

Russell Janney and Rudolph Friml have, according to announcement, gone to Europe to finish two operettas which Mr. Janney expects to produce in the Fall. One, written by Justin Huntly McCarthy, will have a background of England in the seventeenth century, and the other will be modern in setting. Brian Hooker is working on the lyrics of both shows and Richard Boleslavsky will stage them.

Martin Flavin is shortly to begin work on a new play for William Harris Jr., who produced Mr. Flavin's prison play, "The Criminal Code," last season. In August Mr. Flavin will have another of his plays, "Dancing Days," presented by the Pasadena Community Playhouse.

Ibsen's "When We Dead Awaken," in adaptation by Dagmar Potholm, has been added to the repertory of the Hedgerow Theatre, Moylan-Rose Valley, Pa. The play, infrequently acted, was given a semi-professional performance here in the Spring of 1926.

What is said to be the first American vaudeville program ever to be presented in Bermuda will open at the St. George Hotel there early next month. The Radio-Keith-Orpheum circuit is arranging the bill.

Lester Allen will be a master of ceremonies at the Greenroomers' Revel on Sunday night at the George M. Cohan Theatre.

"Ada Beats the Drum," the Broadway engagement of which was abruptly ended after Tuesday night's performance because of the illness of Mary Boland, is announced to begin a road tour early in September at the Cort Theatre in Chicago. Miss Boland will resume her rôle for the tour.

SCREEN NOTES.

Leon Errol has been chosen by Samuel Goldwyn as the comedian in "Lilli," the talking and singing picture in which Evelyn Laye will make her screen début. Miss Laye will arrive from England next week and go immediately to Hollywood to begin production.

After 200 showings at the Gaiety Theatre, the film "Journey's End" will close on June 29.

"The Big House," a tale of a prison break, featuring Wallace Beery, Chester Morris and Leila Hyams, will have its première next Tuesday evening at the Astor Theatre.

MME. RETHBERG EXPLAINS.

Singer Recalls Arrest in Dresden Which Ended in Release.

A statement regarding her arrest and subsequent release while appearing in a concert in Dresden last month was made public yesterday by Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg, opera singer, just before she left for Chicago to appear in a series of productions at Ravinia Park, opening tomorrow night.

"I feel it my duty," the singer states, "to answer the questions of my American friends regarding my recent extraordinary incidents and adventures in Dresden, the city where I had my first artistic appearance. Now that the court has recognized the justice of my case, it is easier for me to speak about it all.

"On May 6 I gave a concert in Dresden, although I was suffering from tonsilitis. I was just leaving the concert hall, surrounded by thousands of enthusiastic concertgoers who waited for me when I was accosted by a process server assisted by a group of policemen. The process server demanded 82,000 marks or my arrest. Naturally, it is not the custom to carry that sum about, especially at midnight in evening dress, whereupon they took all the jewels I was wearing."

Mme. Rethberg states that an injunction had been asked by Franz Aufrecht, a concert agent in Berlin, who claimed the sum as commission dating back to 1921. A trial court had decided in 1925, she stated, that the claim was without foundation and a court of appeals had later sustained the decision. She charges that her arrest "was simply a manœuvre to frighten me, as he [the agent] had arranged to serve the injunction at midnight after the concert, although he had had it in his hands since May 3."

Pointing out that the personal arrest warrant was revoked by a civil court on May 28, Mme. Rethberg states that "this judgment sums up the justice and right which was on my side, and I only regret the unhappy experience through which I was forced to go."

ITHACA'S MUSIC FESTIVAL.

A chorus of more than 4,000 voices from fifty church choirs in cities and villages of New York and Pennsylvania will open a two-day music festival today in a natural amphitheatre overlooking Cayuga Lake at Taughannock Falls State Park, near Ithaca, N. Y. The festival, which is sponsored by the Finger Lakes Association, representing forty-three cities and villages in Central New York, will also mark the dedication of the State park. Governor Roosevelt is expected to take part.

The singing will be under the direction of Dr. John Finley Williamson, dean of the Westminster Choir School, which recently established its permanent home in Ithaca. The event will be known as the Talbott Music Festival, in honor of Mrs. Katherine A. Talbott of New York and Dayton, Ohio, sponsor of the school, and will be an annual event in which Westminster choir singers from every part of the country will participate.

Committees of the Finger Lakes Association have made preparations for a record crowd. The State park, which consists of 400 acres of wooded land, has famous natural attractions. Several large waterfalls are near the amphitheatre.

"Uncle Vanya" to Close Tomorrow.

Jed Harris's revival of "Uncle Vanya" will end its Broadway engagement at the Cort Theatre tomorrow night. In the Fall Mr. Harris is planning to send the Chekhov play on an eight weeks' tour. The original cast, including Lillian Gish, who recently left for Europe, will go on the road, it was said yesterday by the producer.

MUSIC NOTES.

The libretto was written by Mrs. Randegger on the subject of war and peace throughout the world. The composer was born in Italy, but has resided in this city for many years.

Yolando Greco, Italian harpiste, will lead the New York College of Music Harp Ensemble of ten players in a program at Town Hall this evening. Selections will include a prelude and adagio by Gluck, arranged for ten harps by A. Francis Pinto.

Owen Davis Writing Plays Again.

Owen Davis, who has been working for the talking pictures in Hollywood since December, has returned to New York and is dramatizing for production by A. H. Woods a story as yet unpublished, tentatively called "The Voice Over the Radio." Mr. Davis, who will be here for several months, has also completed a comedy, "She Never Knew." The playwright's contract with the Fox Film Corporation expired early this month.

A DOMESTIC YOUNG PLAN.

Mr. OWEN YOUNG's speech in San Francisco yesterday on the basic economic problems of America is marked by the qualities with which his deliberate public utterances have long made us all familiar. It is serene and hopeful in spirit, penetrating in analysis and powerful in reasoning. In his treatment of the subject he at once takes us out of the realm of party politics and plants his feet firmly on the ground of a large national interest thought of as shaping our public policy. Without attacking any one, without denouncing any act or attitude of Congress, Mr. YOUNG shows in a masterly way how the great problems of the United States today dovetail into those of the whole world.

As the most vital question pressing upon the country at this time is what to do with our surplus, he proceeds to define both the extent of the need and the methods by which it must be met. First of all, we must study the thing as a whole. An error has been made in singling out, for example, the surplus of farm products. In addition to that, we have a surplus of raw materials such as minerals. There is another one of manufactured goods, which we now produce on a scale larger than our own consumption. We have also services to export, as well as savings greater than we can use to advantage at home. The economist and the statesman, if of wide vision, will see all these closely related to each other and bound together in our commercial and financial dealings with other countries. This leads Mr. YOUNG to speak, not against a given tariff law, past or present, but against any tariff policy which tends to prevent us from marketing our varied surplus where men are in need of it. Otherwise we shall transfer our surplus of farm products into unused areas and our plethora of manufacturing capacity into idle plants. In a pungent sentence Mr. YOUNG declares: "The idleness of men who "wish to work is the most danger- "ous surplus which can exist in any "country." Looking at this with a sort of mounting indignation, Mr. YOUNG declares:

> ..We must learn how to deal with this kind of surplus. It is ridiculous to speak of unemployment as a necessary condition of human society. It is nothing more than a maladjustment of its machinery. It is a blot on our intelligence. It is a drain on our sympathy. It is a promoter of charity which affects disadvantageously both those who give and those who receive. Some day we shall learn to do better, but we must learn it soon.

In this there is nothing of the heartless economist. It is rather the sympathetic social philosopher whom we seem to hear speaking. His instinct to defend those who are wrongly assailed or actually slandered leads Mr. YOUNG to dwell upon the part which international bankers have played in developing American trade and so American prosperity. Many who cry out against the purchase here of foreign obligations seem to think that the bankers load down ships with American gold to pay for them. But the fact is that it is American goods which are sent in payment. A better development of credit facilities throughout the world will create more buyers of our surplus wheat and cotton and the products of our mines and factories. Calmly defying the lightnings which are certain to be aimed at him by politicians at Washington and elsewhere, Mr. YOUNG said at San Francisco: "I venture the statement that "these much-maligned international "bankers have done more in the "last ten years, and will do more "the next ten, for the relief of our "farmer and our industry, than all "the government agencies which "have been or can be employed."

An address like this cannot be epitomized. It should be read in full by all who desire to see the play of an acute and informed mind upon our great national questions. The conclusion at which Mr. YOUNG arrives after his broad and generous discussion is that our enlightened self-interest is not only consistent with but actually demands a policy of the widest cooperation in the economic development of the world as a whole, and the improvement of standards of living everywhere.

CAPTAIN AND CREW.

While Admiral BYRD has had, first and last, to bear the responsibility for the success of the whole expedition and would have had to take upon his shoulders the blame had it failed, he has always been magnanimous in sharing the glory with those who have been his real comrades. Every honor which has come to him has been instantly translated into the impersonal "expedition" or into the special deserts of individuals. As he himself said, it was "Commander BYRD" in the outward forms of their relations, but it was "DICK BYRD" in the intimacies of their exile. It is the best of tributes to him that he had the good-will and loyal cooperation of his men. Otherwise the expedition would have been a tragic experience.

As it was, every man seems to have done his part, whether as scientist, surgeon and physician, correspondent, photographer, pilot, mechanician, radio operator, ship's officer, sailor, or whatever his job. The man who performed the humblest tasks, as Admiral BYRD said at City Hall, "contributed as importantly to "the success of the expedition as "the chief members." It was in recognition of this fact that every man of the seventy had his medal. They were a lucky lot to have had a share in an expedition which would not have been undertaken except for BYRD's pioneering genius, but could not have been carried through without the cooperation of every one to the very least. And thanks in part to the doctor, as well as to the general administration, they all came back alive.

CHARLES J. MCGUINNESS, chief officer of the Eleanor Bolling (and orator of the "crew"), spoke not only for himself when he said that he was glad to get back to New York but would go again for five years under such a captain. And if there were more worlds to conquer, this Alexander of the Antarctic would doubtless take the same crew if he could.

MR. HOOVER AND MR. MORROW.

Mr. HOOVER's promise that "the "President and the Administration "will give every support to the Re- "publican nominee" for Senator from New Jersey may seem even more surprising than the magnitude of Mr. MORROW's victory. Why does the President depart from his custom? Why, after leaving unblessed Dry Republicans successful in their Senatorial primaries, does he show this zeal for a candidate who seeks the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment? Various interpretations suggest themselves. The President, of all men, should be most eager to improve the calibre of the Senate. Mr. MORROW's admitted general and special qualifications, without reference to his one particular view, may have prompted this warm and unusual approval.

Some eminent friends of Mr. MORROW's gave way to prophetic rapture, or indulged in the inevitable American habit of premature nomination for the Presidency. These ardors, which must have been annoying to Mr. MORROW, he could not publicly disclaim without seeming to give importance to an indiscretion. He took occasion to speak generously of Mr. HOOVER. It was for Mr. HOOVER to be equally generous and to dissociate himself from any possible suspicion of political jealousy or umbrage. To the ordinary mind such explanations, though they may be true as far as they go, are accidents. The substance of the transaction is elsewhere. Mr. HOOVER said in his speech of acceptance that those who do not believe in the "purposes of several provisions of the Constitution" have the right to seek to amend it in the constitutional way. "They are not sub- "ject to criticism for asserting that "right."

In 1930 he is enthusiastically supporting a man who asserts that right; who wants to repeal the amendment that Mr. HOOVER stood by in 1928. The allegiance of the Drys, including a great number of Democratic Drys, was won by his loyalty to the "great social and eco- "nomic experiment, noble in motive "and far-reaching in purpose." In the New Jersey campaign Representative FORT tried to identify his cause with that of the Administration. The Anti-Saloon League of the State worked hard, if not wisely, for him. Why not? Congress is the one stronghold where the Drys need to mass their forces of righteousness. The American Issue, organ of the New York Anti-Saloon League, says in the current number:

> President HOOVER may or may not be a candidate in 1932, but he is the Chief Executive now; and at a time when the powers of evil are combined to break down the effectiveness of his advocacy of prohibition and its enforcement, he deserves the full support of every Dry in and out of Congress, so far, at least, as respect for him and confidence in him are concerned.

In spite of their ingenious expoundings of the result in New Jersey, must not the confidence of the Drys in Mr. HOOVER be shaken by his strong advocacy of the election of a Wet to the Senate? It is too early to read Mr. HOOVER's mind, as Senator BLAINE does, but modest conclusion may honestly be drawn. He favors the election of Republican Wets in Wet States. The moral to New York is obvious. Those New York Republicans who are trying to hold the Republican party of the State to the prohibition plank of 1928 have not a leg to stand on. The President has abandoned them. In Massachusetts, too, Mr. WILLIAM MORGAN BUTLER's pins must be a little wabbly as he bears the Eighteenth Amendment on his shoulders.

The halters and the trimmers can now put by their fears. If the President wishes his best to a swatter of the Eighteenth Amendment, Republicans who have been pretending to venerate it, in order to help the Administration, look absurd.

OLD BELLEVUE AND NEW.

Of New York City's annual budget of well over half a billion dollars, approximately 10 per cent is spent on the care of the unfortunate and dependent. In that category hospitals stand first. This is in addition to the great sums which the city's inhabitants contribute, as taxpayers of the State, to the latter's ever-growing hospitalization program. Grumbling is not unknown, but is on the whole perfunctory. Questions and criticism as to the disposal of the great sums of money and the results obtained are in order. But the impressive thing is the readiness with which the need is acknowledged and the necessary means provided. The State's institutions are devoted exclusively to mental ailments. They are hospitals to a comparatively small degree only, in the sense of effecting cures. For the most part they are permanent homes for the insane.

A hospital in a real sense is the Bellevue Psychiatric Hospital, for which ground was broken on Wednesday by Mayor WALKER. It is planned not as an asylum but as a place of healing. The Mayor went even further and described it as an institution dedicated to the prevention of mental disease. In this sphere, much more emphatically than in the field of physical disease, the slight ailment seized in time may be controlled before it expands into the full catastrophe. Forehandedness in the case of the new institution is to be carried to the point of providing facilities for work in the schools, which are thought of ultimately as the chief battle-ground in the war against diseases of the mind.

The progress made in the development of the sense of public responsibility toward the unfortunate and handicapped members of society is pictorially illustrated by the contrast which Mayor WALKER drew between the more-than-century-old buildings of the original Bellevue and the facilities promised in this new model wing, with its separate room accommodations for a maximum of three patients. If the city still finds it necessary to make use of those ancient structures, there is partial compensation in the thought that walls and beds alone do not a hospital make. Professional skill and human kindliness in service can make up in great measure for the lack of modern facilities. In this respect, too, there is reason to believe that the care of the indigent sick in New York has shown higher standards with the years. The old dread of "Bellevue" among the poor, as a place of neglect and mistreatment, has largely disappeared.

GOLF LINKS AND BIRDS.

From England we are getting reports of masterly golf. At Glen Head, Miss HELEN HICKS was reported yesterday to have holed three "birdies" in a row. A different kind of birdie and a different use for golf courses are appropriately discussed just now in a pamphlet of the National Association of Audubon Societies. It is a charming little book, filled with pictures of the birds commonly found near golf links, and all the golf clubs in the country should be grateful to the hundred or more that asked the association to prepare instructions for turning golf courses into bird sanctuaries.

Suggestions are offered in a way to appeal to all kinds of golfers—practical, romantic or nature-loving. It is essential that the presence of numerous birds, and the shrubbery, bird baths and other devices for their protection, should not interfere with the game. Golfers are already accustomed to seeing birds about, for most clubs are well situated to encourage them. By the addition of safe nesting places, food-bearing trees or vines, or shallow pools and streams suitable for bird baths, and by getting rid of cats and other bird enemies, almost any golf club becomes an ideal bird sanctuary. The slight expense of these measures and the existence of a few hackberry trees, thorn apples or dead trees for the hole-nesting species will not inconvenience the players. Most birds prove themselves useful assistants to the greens committee, paying for their keep by freeing the turf of ant mounds and worm castings.

Some people have the notion that a bird sanctuary must consist chiefly of a tangle of undergrowth. But birds are found in the greatest numbers not in the deep woods but in the edges of woodland, in clumps of mulberries or dogwood, in open pastures dotted with a few trees that give them berries, and in areas that combine open, sunny spaces with shelter, food and water. As soon as a large bird population has been built up by the addition of whatever may have been lacking to draw them, their enemies must be cleared out. Just as they are attracted by a good feeding ground, so are cats, rats, weasels and other creatures that like a plump bird for dinner. Practical and humane directions for keeping the enemies within bounds are detailed in the booklet. It is pleasant to note that wholesale killing of red squirrels, hawks, owls, foxes, raccoons and other animals that occasionally catch birds is not advocated. Usually an individual is responsible for the reputation of a whole race of rodents or birds of prey, and it is not hard to discover the culprit with a taste for song birds and let the rest go. Slingshots and air-guns do not kill many birds, but are most disturbing to their peace of mind, and fear will drive them away as rapidly as actual harm.

The association tactfully points out that golf is the game of intelligent men, often the leaders of their community. A bird sanctuary is a resource and a benefit to all members of the neighborhood, and children brought up near one learn to love and protect the feathered friends who devour so many mosquitos, destructive beetles and grubs. It is proposed that the bird lovers to be found in every golf club form the bird sanctuary committee and get in touch with the association, which will help in the selection of attractions needed locally.

FRANCE AND ARBITRATION.

The General Act, ratification of which by the French Chamber has impressed itself instantly and vividly on European public opinion, has been described as a code of world peace. It consists of three model treaties framed by the Assembly of the League of Nations in 1928 for the settlement of international controversies by the three methods, in logical succession, of conciliation, of judicial process and of arbitration. Adhesion to one or more chapters of the act brings the respective provisions into force as among all the signatories. Three of the smaller European nations have subscribed to it. France is the first of the great Powers to declare for the pacific settlement of all disputes, but she is not expected long to be alone. Indeed, in respect to the most important of the three chapters, that dealing with judicial settlement, the principle is the same as in the celebrated optional clause for compulsory jurisdiction by the World Court to which all the Powers excepting Japan—and of course the United States—have subscribed; and Japan is expected soon to signify her adherence.

In the Kellogg Pact for the renunciation of war France shares authorship with the United States. But whereas the United States moves only with the most reluctant steps toward providing machinery for the realization of the peace ideal, France, in accepting the General Act, once more affirms her belief that the spirit of international peace in order to function must take on body. By this step, in the opinion of THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent at Geneva, the French have assured themselves the moral leadership at the next meeting of the League. Compared with this whole-hearted acceptance of all roads to peace, the position of the British Government, which has signed but not ratified the optional clause and has taken no action on the General Act, may reveal a certain timidity. In this sense M. BRIAND has stolen Mr. MACDONALD's thunder. But the cause of world peace is decidedly looking up if great Powers are found to be competing for priority in advancing its principles.

Concerning France, to be sure, one encounters a cynical interpretation of her ardor in behalf of the League of Nations and of the machinery of peace in general. France, in this view, is eager to avoid war because she has every reason to be satisfied with the status quo in Europe. A little while ago the same disenchanted explanation was advanced for Great Britain's ardent support of the League. In London, too, the chief concern was to keep intact the gains of a successful post-war settlement. But the cynical interpreter of contemporary history will shrink from his own logical conclusion that rather than have a status quo perpetuated by peace it should be war. If one believes in other arbitraments between nations than that of the sword, then it becomes out of place to search the motives of those who put aside the sword. It is a matter of moment that a great Power should bring so comprehensive a pledge to the processes of peace as France has done in accepting the General Act.

SAN ANTONIO'S AIRPORT.

Randolph Field, which has been aptly called the West Point of the Air, will be dedicated at San Antonio today. Named in honor of Captain W. M. RANDOLPH, a Texas army officer famous for his services to military aviation, who was killed in an accident in 1928, the San Antonio airport will be the largest and the best equipped in the world when finished—at a cost of $30,000,000. One-fourth of the area of 2,362 acres will be covered with hangars, barracks, administration and recreation buildings, hospitals and mess halls. Of the 5,000 people on duty or employed there, half will wear the army uniform. Of the design, it is enough to say that in the great spaces about a central hexagonal building area primary flying will be taught hundreds of cadets, who will afterward go to Kelly Field, Texas, to learn the tactics of warfare. Before that time comes there must be a thorough sifting of material, for the United States Army trains on the principle of the survival of the fittest. Its aim is to develop "born fliers."

As the climate in Texas is never a deterrent to training, military instruction can go on from day to day. Randolph should be the busiest of air fields. All types of planes, from the small practice ship to giant bombers, will be used in teaching the cadets. They may include civilians as well as youngsters of the regular army, the National Guard and graduates of an R. O. T. C. unit. All must first be tested physically, mentally and temperamentally.

The officer who proposed Randolph Field to the War Department was the greatest aeronaut of the army, Brig. Gen. FRANK P. LAHM, originally a balloonist and the first officer of any nation, it is said, to fly an airplane. His name can never be left out of any description of the San Antonio military airport. A West Point graduate, Lieutenant LAHM won the first international balloon race, from France to England, in 1906. Afterward he was constantly employed by the Government on aeronautical missions. His technical knowledge of aircraft, his enthusiasm and his energy have made him indispensable to the army. Early he saw the importance of a complete training field for military aviators. When his plans were rejected by Congress because he had no site to offer, he lost no time in interesting San Antonio in his project, and soon won the gift of the great tract which will be dedicated today.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

When Greek Meets Greek. An indiscreet visitor at Mr. MORROW's house in Englewood on Tuesday night disclosed the fact that the candidate reluctantly laid down the book which he was reading in his library, to go out to learn that he had been nominated for the United States Senate. The name of the author who had so absorbed him was also given. It was HERODOTUS—the father of history, or else the father of lies, as he was long thought to be.

This electoral challenge was at once met by Mr. MORROW's Democratic rival for the Senate, Mr. SIMPSON. He, too, it appears is fond of the still air of delightful studies. The Wednesday morning newspapers reported that he "speaks French, and reads Greek." This may come as a surprise to those who had thought him capable of speaking only a kind of English fitted for the ears of the groundlings.

However, it would seem that the New Jersey Senatorial contest in November will be on a higher literary plane than had been expected. Slogans in ancient Greek may resound all the way from Hoboken to Camden. Probably the opposing committees will rally as many of the Greek fruit dealers of the State as can be got to follow the speeches of the candidate, in the spirit of the Greek saying which MATTHEW ARNOLD was so fond of quoting: "Two or three times are not too many for a good thing."

Possibly Mr. MORROW or Mr. SIMPSON, in a natural quest of the "Greek vote," may have an experience not unlike that which Miss REPPLIER said that a lady in Philadelphia had. Waiting on the corner for a street car, she said to the man with the fruit cart that she supposed he read the works of ARISTOPHANES in the original. His reply was: "I do, madam, but I prefer those of EURIPIDES."

A Forgotten King. Bucharest has heard—which doesn't make it true—that FERDINAND MAXIMILIAN KARL LEOPOLD MARIA, an elderly botanist who created a great stir in this world from 1910 to 1918, is returning to visit his eldest son at Sofia. His eldest son is named BORIS, and is King of Bulgaria. FERDINAND held the same position for a great many years, but the defeat of the Bulgarian armies in the Fall of 1918 induced him to sue for peace, and his abdication was peacefully effected one month and one week before the Armistice.

So quietly has FERDINAND been living at Coburg, the seat of his ducal house, that even Europe had forgotten him. Ex-King MANOEL is seen frequently here and there. Doorn is on the list of places often heard from. But the former King of Bulgaria, particularly when his great fame is taken into consideration, has kept out of the newspapers and public places so sedulously that the chances are he would not have been remembered by parlor gamesters trying to give the names of living dethroned Kings.

He has been busy with his botany and thinking of the days when the Powers stopped him on the road to Istanbul because they feared he was going to overthrow the Turkish Empire. It was that action which drew him into the World War on the German side and cost him his crown. Sofia, which FERDINAND for five years made the metropolis of the most warlike of the Balkan nations, would probably be much interested to have a look at "the Czar" again.

Airplanes and the County Court. Great as is the sympathy for the county judge sitting in Mineola yesterday who was so disturbed by the noise from airplanes flying over his court that he took steps to have their routing changed, the average citizens of Mineola, Westbury, Valley Stream, Lynbrook and other towns near airports cannot but feel a little resentment that they too have not the power to order airplanes away when they roar overhead.

The nuisance is one which aviators and airport authorities alike have been slow to recognize. Because the public is for the most part inarticulate and the law furnishes inadequate redress, the offenders seem not to appreciate the fact that they are incurring the resentment of thousands of people. This cannot be good for the airplane industry.

Muffling planes is the only satisfactory solution. Experiments with mufflers have been conducted for a year or more, and doubtless so soon as a satisfactory one is devised its use will be made mandatory. Meantime, the authorities at the airports can do at least two things to diminish the nuisance value of their planes—they can direct their pilots to maintain higher altitudes over villages and closely settled districts, and they can prohibit "joy-riding" and instruction flying after 9:30 at night. At present, with no restrictions on night flying and with no mufflers, there is no respite for the victims of the planes' din.

Cape Cod's Tern Sanctuary. Marthas Vineyard turned out to be no sanctuary for the heath hen. Fire and natural enemies reduced a large colony to a single bird, which was seen as late as April of this year. But there is another story to tell of Tern Island, which lies off Chatham on the Cape. Some time ago the State made it over to the birds after whom the sanctuary is named. They breed rapidly, and the sea supplies them with food.

There may be congestion on the island of these lively gulls, whom any one may know by their black heads, gray backs, white under feathers, and red bills and legs, and some may have to migrate to other islands off Nantucket and Marthas Vineyard. If man troubles them, he will have to answer to the Commonwealth.

It has been observed that the terns will not tolerate intrusion. On him who lands they swarm down with beak and claw, actually pecking the heads of fishermen, naturalists and explorers. Photographers have tried to take pictures of the tern colony, but the hazard is said to be too great to be repeated. Hawks would be overwhelmed if they appeared. There are no rats or weasels on the island. Tern Island may be declared a sanctuary that will not be violated.

Conjuring Up a Conspiracy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Topics of the Times you state that "* * * we now have diplomatic representatives in three of the five British dominions—Ireland, Canada and South Africa. Only New Zealand and Australia are as yet without their diplomatic missions here."

Please be advised that Newfoundland and Labrador is the oldest British Dominion, as independent of Canada as it is of the United States.

Really, this error following upon your publication of heresies about the English manner of making tea, makes one fear that you are engaged in a subtle conspiracy against the British Empire. And for your information, the people who stew their tea are the Australians.

Complaining of the Smoke Nuisance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. Wynne's talk at the Brooklyn Kiwanis Club luncheon urges me to ask if it may not be possible that the stifling condition of the air in New York City, caused mainly by the smoke nuisance, is responsible for "the definite lesions of tuberculosis found in the school children of the greater city"? If so, is not the condition Dr. Wynne has found a sufficient reason for abating the nuisance? Must millions of people suffer because a few are finding it profitable to burn soft coal when there is plenty of anthracite to be had? Is there no law against the smoke nuisance, as well as exhaust from automobiles? If so, why are the offenders not punished?

THE UNRUFFLED.

Sorrow never stilled a singer's voice:
  Pain never stopped the feet of those who sought
Beyond the ramparts of the here and now
  The beauty of a dream that can't be bought.

Derision never irked a poet's soul;
  He knows that life is short and art is long,
And all the laughter of a callous world

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Radivoye Yankovitch, Yugoslav Consul General in New York, in a letter to THE TIMES reads a lesson in truthfulness to the majority of American correspondents, and, by citing instances, especially to the correspondents of THE TIMES. Whatever these correspondents reported to their respective papers concerning conditions in Yugoslavia, and particularly concerning the trial of Dr. Matchek and a group of young Croats before a Serbian court at Belgrade, is, according to Mr. Yankovitch, not only fanciful but basically untrue. If Mr. Yankovitch is right, his rebuff applies equally to the correspondents of English, German, Dutch, Scandinavian and French papers, who supplied their reading public with similar and, in many instances, far stronger opinions.

Can Mr. Yankovitch really believe that a semi-official communiqué about the doings of a government carries the same weight with an enlightened public as the unbiased observations of correspondents, representing great newspapers with established reputations for trustworthiness? If he does, his delusion will not alter facts.

The objectivity of Mr. Yankovitch's communication and the fairness of the Belgrade trial can be judged from his reference to those who have had to stand this travesty of justice. At the time of his communication the trial was still proceeding, and, according to judicial standards all the world over, except propably in Yugoslav official circles, no accused is guilty until so adjudged after a trial. But Mr. Yankovitch refers to the accused as "a group of young Croatians who recently created a terrorist organization materially aided and abetted by Vladko Matchek, successor to the late Stepan Raditch." It must have been a bitter disappointment that the court at Belgrade had to acquit Dr. Matchek.

Those, however, who were found guilty were so found before they were apprehended. Third degree methods were only accessories to extort such admissions as might give to this judicial farce a semblance of justification. The foreign correspondents could not fail to see it and report accordingly.

THE UNITED SERVICES VIEW.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of June 18, William I. Hull attacks a letter from me, which you published on June 11.

I feel quite sure that if I could sit down with Mr. Hull for half an hour and explain the world-wide strategic situation that exists, and the way in which the Washington treaty of 1922 brought it into being, he would alter his attitude materially. But as I have not the pleasure of his acquaintance, I cannot do this. Under these circumstances, the utmost that I can do, with any prospect of making the complicated strategic situation even partly understood, is to ask his consideration to his closing paragraph, which reads:

"The militarist wants to defend this country against defeat in war, while the civilian wants to defend it against war itself."

Mr. Hull evidently feels that this sentence carries a just criticism of the attitude of navy and army officers. It is a perfectly true statement, but it carries no criticism of their attitude, because "to defend this country against defeat in war" is the sole purpose of the army and navy. "To defend this country against war itself" is the task of the statesmen, not of the warriors.

But navy and army officers, being carefully educated in the history of war and its causes, and knowing, therefore, that statesmen have "fumbled the ball" occasionally and plunged their nation into war, realize that statesmen may fumble the ball again some day and plunge this country into war. Realizing this possibility, they think it their duty to do all they can in time of peace to prevent the enactment of measures that would lead to defeat. They know how much worse than war itself defeat in war has always been, and want to save this nation from its unspeakable misery and horror.

THE BOLIVIAN INCIDENTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With reference to your special dispatch from Buenos Aires dated June 17, and printed in today's edition of THE TIMES, concerning the recent and absolutely unimportant incidents in Bolivia, let me take exception to the following paragraph in that dispatch:

"Señor Siles issued a decree about two years ago saying that reasons of state made it imperative that he assume limited dictatorial powers, since which time he had been governing without Congress."

I challenge the veracity of this statement. There has been no period in the history of President Siles's Administration when he did away with Congress. In fact, the last Congress only recessed last December. On the other hand, if there was a Congress in session, there could be no dictatorial powers.

As the statement in question may only be the result of improper knowledge of conditions in Bolivia on the part of the correspondent, I shall appreciate it if you will be good enough to find a way to rectify it, as in the end the result may be very detrimental to Bolivia's interests abroad.

Recent news from La Paz confirms the report that the occurrence at La Quiaca was only a vandalic assault of no political significance whatsoever.

E. DIAZ de MEDINA,
Minister of Bolivia.

ASK SCHOOLS TO AID BACKWARD PUPILS

HAVE O'SHEA'S SUPPORT

Program to Accommodate 4,000 More Mentally Handicapped Calls for $489,608 Expenditure.

An increase of nearly 50 per cent in the number of ungraded classes for mentally handicapped and backward children was recommended by school officials at the regular hearing of the committee at work on the 1931 school budget yesterday. The recommendation was based on a study of the causes of retardation in public schools which forms the basis of a report to be published soon by Superintendent William J. O'Shea.

Dr. O'Shea supported the request for additional classes made by Miss Margaret McCooey, associate superintendent of schools, and Miss Elizabeth Farrell, director of ungraded classes for twenty-eight years.

The director asked for 216 additional classes, bringing the total number to 652 classes. At present nearly 9,000 students are accommodated. The new classes would provide accommodations for 4,000 additional pupils.

The estimated cost of the 216 classes includes an expenditure of $454,608 for teachers' salaries and $35,000 for increased administrative personnel, and smaller outlays for supplies and equipment.

"I will support this recommendation with my entire strength," the superintendent said. "It may be that it is not possible to obtain all the additional classes in the 1931 budget, but a goodly proportion of them should be provided for."

Dr. O'Shea indicated that possibly one half of the number of classes asked for might receive the approval of the budget officials.

The proposal will be studied by the budget committee and will then be referred to the finance committee of the Board of Education.

Another recommendation made was for the appointment of twenty-five additional vocational counselors.

The Board of Superintendents, at its regular meeting, nominated a candidate for the vacant district superintendency from among seventeen applicants. Dr. O'Shea said that the name would be made public on Monday to allow the nomination to be formally presented to the Board of Education for its approval.

The superintendents approved plans for the construction of the new Samuel Gompers Industrial High School for Boys at East 145th Street and Walsh Avenue in the Bronx.

Accommodations are provided for 1,500 pupils. The school will have a gymnasium, auditorium, twenty-six industrial shops, three science laboratories and thirteen classrooms.

Plans were also approved for the erection of new Public School 238 at Avenue U and East Sixty-fourth Street, Brooklyn. It will be a three-story structure with sixteen classrooms.

RED TAPE BARS VETERANS.

Speakers Say Disabled Are Excluded From Hospitals.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., June 19.—Red tape in the United States Veterans' Bureau was condemned as withholding relief needed by disabled veterans of the World War at the State encampment today of the New York State Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Paul Wolman of Baltimore, senior vice commander-in-chief of the national organization, told the 1,000 former soldiers present that much trouble was encountered in obtaining proper hospitalization for disabled veterans. He said that in many instances subterfuge was necessary.

Harry Bochert of New York City, liaison officer of the State Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in a report of his investigations, cited cases of veterans in hospitals who had been invalids for several years being ordered before disciplinary boards and discharged. He said that the Veterans' Bureau had issued an order to stop this practice, but had failed to take back the men so discharged.

Mr. Bouchert declared that 47 per cent of the officers who had applied for retirement with pay and obtained it, while only 35 per cent of the enlisted men had received their just compensation. His report stated that many veterans, patients in hospitals, are not receiving any money from the government.

"For the ordinary soldier to draw compensation he would have been required to have gone into the World War accompanied by a motion picture camera and two witnesses to watch him every hour of the day and night, a stenographer, a notary public, two doctors and a lawyer, also an X-ray machine. He should also have been careful in selecting his ancestors for several generations back, in order that no one had ever been unbalanced in mind or had ever been afflicted with disability of any kind.

"We challenge any lawyer living to understand the technicalities connected with the procedure necessary for a disabled veteran to secure justice for himself and his dependents."

Brig. Gen. Ransom Gillette, N. Y. N. G., Albany, in his address, said that former service men should give the people of the United States the benefit of their experience in foreign contacts in quelling "un-American" uprisings.

FRENCH DEBATE AVOIDED.

Chamber to Take Up Request for $40,000,000 for Army Next Week.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—The open debate on the government's request for $40,000,000 for army equipment and on the amount of the treasury reserve was avoided today and will not come before the Chamber of Deputies until next week.

The publicity given to the request for army credit has, however, roused considerable comment, as it was not expected by those who are not members of the various commissions and subcommissions for the national defense. It is expected that a full statement will be made tomorrow by Finance Minister Reynaud, who will explain why the credit is needed.

SPERRY EULOGIZED AT HIS FUNERAL

PLANES CIRCLE OVERHEAD

Evangeline Booth Mourns Death of the "Friend of All Good, Wherever He Found It."

Funeral services for Elmer Ambrose Sperry, the inventor, were held yesterday in Plymouth Congregational Church, Orange and Henry Streets, Brooklyn. Representatives of leading scientific societies were among the honorary pallbearers. Mr. Sperry was eulogized by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman. Burial was in Greenwood Cemetery.

"He imposed the domain of an efficient imagination on the sea, so that ships which bear his invention are being safely guided through the night, the storm and fog to their desired harbor, and those which drift to their coast as a drunken man in the grasp of the mighty seas can now be steadied."

Referring to Mr. Sperry's 400 patents, Dr. Cadman said:

"I have before me a list of his actual achievements which reads like a romance and would have been deemed such within the lifetime of any before him."

Thomas A. Edison was unable to be present, but was represented by Mrs. Edison and their son, Charles Edison.

The Honorary Pallbearers.

Commander Evangeline Booth was represented by a delegation of local Salvation Army officers, and sent the following telegram of condolence to Mr. Sperry's children:

"The news of the sudden passing of your honored and distinguished father is to me and to the Salvation Army a deep sorrow, and I hasten to assure you and through you his family of our most heartfelt sympathy. The whole world shares in your loss. Dr. Sperry was not only an inventor and scientist of international pre-eminence, but more than this he was a worthy exponent of the teachings of Jesus Christ and a generous lover of his fellow-men. He was a friend of all good wherever he found it, and it was his glory to champion every cause that had for its object the betterment of mankind.

"Thousands of Salvationists who came to know him as a great scientist also reverenced him for his righteousness, for his splendid example and for his loyalty to teachings of the Bible. All over the country our people in their understanding sympathy will be praying that the Great Comforter may be your solace and support till the morning breaks and shadows flee away.

Ten thousand times ten thousand,
In sparkling raiment bright,
The armies of the ransomed saints throng up the steeps of light.
'Tis finished; all is finished;
Their fight with death and sin.
Fling open wide the golden gates,

"COMMANDER EVANGELINE BOOTH."

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Senator Wagner of New York and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in statements today complained that the unemployment relief legislation recently introduced in Congress by the Senator had been rendered of little potency.

Mr. Wagner declared that the House Judiciary Committee, influenced by the President in reporting his legislation, had eliminated its vital and practical provisions.

Mr. Green, on learning that the Judiciary Committee had referred Senator Wagner's unemployment agency bills to a subcommittee, said he construed this action "as an expression of hostility."

No comment was made at the White House when questions were asked there concerning Senator Wagner's statements.

"In the face of an unemployment crisis rivaling any in our history, in the face of a business collapse, the President still refuses to permit Congress to provide the necessary machinery for the prevention of such disasters in the future," the Senator said in his statement.

Declares Cause Political.

"The bill providing for the cooperative establishment of employment agencies has been sent to die in a subcommittee, in spite of the overwhelming demand for its passage and the universal recognition that it is indispensable to a program of attack upon unemployment.

"The bill providing for the long-range planning of public works has been so amended as to destroy all government responsibility for the problem, and to cripple every piece of machinery that is created for solving it. It is this kind of action on the part of the President that explains the utter lack of confidence in the administration reflected in the present business situation and emphasized in the collapse of the stock and commodity markets. Every committee that has studied the problem, every expert who has examined this legislation has approved it and recommended it. The only interpretation that the public can place upon this action of the administration is that for petty political reasons it refuses to permit the bills to pass.

"The amendments proposed in the long range planning bill strike at its very heart. First, the President would eliminate the preparation of the index of employment. The index is the most modern and scientific way of expressing a million feet of figures in a simple number."

"He would strike out the provision for the acceleration of public works when a depression is imminent. That provision is absolutely essential at all times and is indispensable when Congress is not in session. * * *

"He would strike out the provision for advance planning, the kernel of any program of public works as a stabilizer of employment. Evidently, he has not learned from his experience of last Autumn that even though we may want to stimulate building, whether it be public or private, it is humanly impossible to get construction started in time to render any aid unless building plans are availtable at the needed amount.

Says Provisions Are Essential.

"He would strike out the special administrative provisions for the allocation of public roads and public buildings. Without these sections of the bill public construction cannot be undertaken at the particular time and at the specified place where it would be most effective in checking unemployment.

"The bill as amended is largely an empty shell, depending for its content on the whim of the Executive. The President could not have more completely destroyed the bill if he had vetoed it."

Representative George S. Graham, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, denied that President Hoover had influenced the action of the Committee. He said that the committee amendments made were intended to improve the bills and put them in constitutional form. While they were under consideration by the committee, the discussion among Republican members was that the bills were more or less a gesture and would fail to aid unemployment.

In his statement, after expressing disappointment at the reference of the Senator's bills to the subcommittee, William Green said:

"We are disappointed over the action of the House Judiciary Committee upon the bill providing for long range planning of public works in order to deal more effectively with the problem of unemployment. The amendments which the committee made to this bill are highly objectionable to labor and will, in our judgment, weaken the bill and render it almost ineffective. * * *

"Congress is not even making a legislative gesture toward the problem of unemployment. The officers and members of the American Federation of Labor charge the present Congress as being an absolute failure so far as dealing constructively with the problem of unemployment."

CALLS VAUSE LEADER IN FAILED COMPANY

SAYS HE GOT $125 A WEEK

Quotes Him as Saying His 'Pull' Left Nothing to Fear From Banking Department.

DEFENDANT MORE ALERT

Former Kings County Judge W. Bernard Vause, on trial with six others before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe and a jury on charges of using the mails to defraud, was roused yesterday from his seeming lethargy by the testimony of Solomon Cruso. The witness described him as the leading spirit of the now defunct Columbia Finance Corporation, the courageous promoter who had promised his associates protection from the State Banking Department and had advised Cruso himself to "get some spunk in you; don't be a coward; we will make big money and get rich."

Disclosures following the $400,000 failure of the Columbia Finance Corporation were largely responsible for the indictment on which Mr. Vause is now on trial. Cruso was the president of that corporation and was indicted with Mr. Vause, but later pleaded guilty. He appeared yesterday as star witness for the government. His testimony was interspersed with objections and exceptions taken by counsel for Mr. Vause and other defendants.

Tells of a "Pull."

Cruso quoted Mr. Vause as having suggested the establishment of a branch office of the Columbia Finance Corporation in Brooklyn because of his "political influence" there and as having quieted his associates' fears about possible action by the State Banking Department by telling them they had nothing to fear from that source as he had a "pull" there.

According to the witness, Mr. Vause drew a salary from the Columbia Finance Corporation which amounted at first to $125 a week and later to $150 a week. A circular was produced in evidence in which the promoters of the finance corporation referred to "the famous Judge Bernard Vause of Brooklyn, the rich banker," as a stockholder.

In the earlier days of the trial Mr. Vause had appeared disinterested in what was going on in court. He began the day yesterday in much the same fashion, rolling his head frequently, receiving frequent massages on his neck and pats on his shoulder from his brother and physician, Dr. Frank Vause. As the day wore on, however, and testimony was shouted at the jury to make it audible above the blare of bands awaiting the arrival of Admiral Byrd and his party in City Hall Park, Mr. Vause seemed to gain composure.

On several occasions he opened his eyes, which he keeps closed most of the time, and peered under half-lifted lids at the jury. Once he seemed to register a slight surprise when he discovered that none of the jurors was looking in his direction. Later he spoke to his brother several times and still later conferred with counsel. At a recess Nathan D. Perlman, of his counsel, told reporters his client was much improved and had said he would be all right before the middle of next week.

Links Vause to Other Companies.

Cruso's opening testimony connected Mr. Vause with the Spheric Commercial Corporation and the Spheric Products Company, two promotion concerns. He said Mr. Vause was president of the latter company which had been organized in November, 1927, and had opened an account at that time with the Manufacturers' Trust Company. Cruso said he himself was secretary of that company, its other officers being Wirt Quigley, vice president; Morris Reinkoff, treasurer, and Abraham Rayman, second vice president. He testified that Reinkoff and Michael Eisenstein had put real capital into this company, all the others having received stock for nothing.

Cruso was just getting into his story of the affairs of the Columbia Finance Corporation when the din outside the court room became so great that Judge Coxe declared a recess until 1:30 P. M. Jurors rushed immediately to the window back of the jury box and clambered through to a narrow ledge from which they had an uninterrupted view of the Byrd reception in front of City Hall.

Cruso had been preceded on the stand by Miss Nettie Krasutsky of 1,356 Forty-second Street, Brooklyn, who disclosed that, although she had been employed at the Brooklyn office of the Columbia Finance Corporation, she "really didn't have any work to do" there. She said her duty was to send callers to the Grand Street office of the concern. The Brooklyn office door bore the inscription, "Columbia Factors, Inc.," she testified, but no books were kept and no business was transacted there. Officers of the corporation would drop in now and then, she added. Under cross-examination she admitted the Columbia Factors, Inc., was a separate concern.

Visited Vause Chambers.

In the afternoon Cruso resumed the stand and told of discussing the formation of the Columbia Finance Corporation with Sam Schuchman and William or Abraham Rayman. At that time, he said, Schuchman had informed them that Mr. Vause was interested.

In November, 1927, the witness continued, he went to Judge Vause's chambers to discuss the finance corporation with him. Cruso was then connected with another concern and was in doubt about taking the position as president of the Columbia Finance Corporation. He testified that he had given that information to Mr. Vause, then a county judge, and had also told him that $100,000 would be necessary to start the finance corporation. He quoted Mr. Vause as having answered:

"That will not be necessary. You just start it. I know ways and means to manoeuvre the books in such a way so that everything will be all right."

When Judge Vause suggested a Brooklyn office for the finance corporation, according to Cruso, Schuchman and Rayman had been present. The witness said he had expressed doubts to Mr. Vause about the possible action of the State Banking Department. He quoted Mr. Vause as having replied:

"There is no need to fear anything from that source. I have a pull there."

At still another conference, the witness said, Mr. Vause had advised him:

"Don't worry. Don't be afraid. I want you to get up some spunk. Don't be a coward. I want to show you how to make big money."

Cruso told the jury that in November or December, 1927, there was a conference at 154 Nassau Street among Mr. Vause, Schuchman, Abraham Rayman and himself at which circulars in English, Jewish and Russian were submitted to Mr. Vause for his approval. The circulars referred to Mr. Vause as a director of the finance corporation, and he was said to have objected to that and to have instructed the others that he wanted to appear in the circulars as a stockholder, as that would carry more weight.

Discussed Vause Salary, He Says.

Cruso said it had been agreed to send the circulars to certain "groups." He was to send them to his "clients" and Rayman was to send them to members of various societies. United States Attorney Tuttle introduced in evidence one of the circulars in which Mr. Vause was listed as a director of the finance corporation.

On Jan. 9, 1928, according to the witness, Mr. Vause obtained the first loan from the corporation. This was $2,500 in the form of a check made out to his brother, Louis Vause, also a defendant in the case on trial. Cruso said the collateral was a piece of jewelry, the value of which he did not give, and a note for $5,000 on a person named Timm.

Mr. Vause was executor for the estate of Henry Timm, who died in 1923. Mr. Tuttle had said previously that, under the executorship of Mr. Vause, the Timm estate had shrunk from $63,000 to $46.

Says Vause Got Stock.

Cruso, continuing under the questioning of Mr. Tuttle for the most part, although Assistant United States Attorney Henry Gerson questioned him for a time, said 300 shares of the finance corporation's stock had been given to him and a like number to Abraham Rayman, Joseph Barmack, Quigley, Schuchman and Mr. Vause.

Cruso testified to three voting trust agreements entered into by the six organizers of the corporation. Soon after the first office had been opened, he said, it had been decided to increase the stock to 10,000 shares, of which the six organizers held the majority. Later the shares were increased to 25,000, no-par common. Each of the six men held 2,035 shares of this, he said, or sufficient to insure control under the voting trust agreement. He declared Mr. Vause had held 877 shares in his own name, 877 in the name of Joseph S. Boyle and 281 in the name of Harry Sonenshine. He said Mr. Vause attended the directors' meetings regularly, these having been held on an average of twice a week.

Supreme Court Justice Druhan, in Brooklyn, yesterday denied the application of Deputy State Attorney General Watson Washburn for an injunction to restrain former Judge Vause from selling stock in the Clinton Capital Corporation. Justice Druhan held there was no evidence to show that Mr. Vause had obtained any property in the corporation by fraudulent practices.

Would Dress Up Soldiers And Aid Manufacturers

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—A dressed United States Army, clad in blue, to the incidental benefit of woolen and shoe manufacturers, was the plea today of Representative Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts.

She asked the House Military Committee to approve her bill to authorize appropriation of $1,000,000 for this purpose.

Mrs. Rogers said she first noted at the funeral of Chief Justice Taft that military representatives, wearing their wartime khaki, looked "shabby."

At many public occasions since, she added, unfavorable comment had been made that the army's enlisted men were "unsuitably dressed."

CONWAY APPOINTED TO SUCCEED VAUSE

Will Go on Brooklyn Bench July 1 —Westchester Hears Coyle Will Become Insurance Head.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 19. — Governor Roosevelt announced today the appointment of Albert Conway of Brooklyn, State Superintendent of Insurance, to be County Judge of Kings County in place of W. Bernard Vause, who resigned. The appointment is effective July 1. Judge Vause is on trial on indictments found against him in Brooklyn.

It has been rumored about the Capitol for several days that Mr. Conway would relinquish his post as Superintendent of Insurance, which pays a salary of $12,000. Mr. Conway was one of the first appointees named by Governor Roosevelt.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 19.—A scheme whereby "bad feeling" was to be patched up by making John B. Coyle of this city Superintendent of Insurance to succeed Albert Conway, appointed today to the county court bench in Brooklyn, was widely reported here today but was discredited by Coyle and by Harry T. Foley, who resigned on Monday as chairman of the Westchester County Democratic Committee because of the Governor's appointment of John E. Mack, instead of Coyle, the county organization's choice, to the Supreme Court bench to succeed the late Justice Frank L. Young.

Coyle, according to the report, was to be made the State's Superintendent of Insurance to "make up" for his being overlooked for the Supreme Court post. It was pointed out that Foley then probably would be mollified and return to the county organization's leadership.

Mr. Coyle and Mr. Foley both denied tonight that they had heard anything about the plan.

"The thing is a matter of principle with me," Mr. Foley said. "It isn't so much a personal matter. I resigned because the county had been ignored. I don't think any such scheme as the one reported today would make me reconsider my resignation."

COOLEY ON STAND ASSAILS ACCUSERS

SAYS HE IS PENNILESS

Points Out He Repaid City in Full—Defense Rests After Eleven Character Witnesses Testify.

At times apparently near a physical collapse, at others fiery with indignation, Edwin J. Cooley, former head of the General Sessions, probation bureau, took the stand yesterday to fight for vindication of the charge that he defrauded the city by keeping his sister seven months on the payroll, largely without work on her part.

He described the progressive mental deterioration of his sister, Mrs. Marguerite F. Lawler, now in a sanitarium. He told how, after a three years' separation, she had joined him here in April, 1929, happy at being, as he thought, completely relieved of her teaching duties in a Buffalo public school.

A vacant position in his bureau, he said, gave him the chance, with the consent of the judges of General Sessions, to offer her more congenial work, and they planned for her to take an examination to fill in permanently. But evidences of mental aberration beginning with the deposit of her hat and coat in the office safe culminated in acts of violence, he said, and he had to place her on sick leave in the care of their mother, hoping for her recovery through rest.

Mrs. Lawler now, according to testimony which had just been given by Dr. John W. Putnam, is in a Buffalo asylum, duly committed by the Erie county court as a victim of dementia praecox with delusions of persecution, and has only one chance in five for eventual recovery.

Denies Knowing of Sister's Jobs.

In a hushed court room, with Supreme Court Justice Albert Cohn and the jurors following him intently, Cooley said his sister had never told him she continued to draw pay from her Buffalo school post while she was on the city payroll here. He choked and there were tears in his eyes when it was pointed out to him that Patrick J. McShane, a probation officer, had testified to getting his sister a job in a Broadway drug store for a few days at the end of May last year when the city also was paying her.

"I never heard of such a job," he said. "To put my poor, deranged, gently reared sister in a uniform in a drug store distributing ice cream—that speaks volumes on the character of McShane. I don't know if she ever had such a job. If she did she never should have had it. Her condition by then was such that she could not work and I asked her repeatedly to resign from the bureau. But she told me she had herself and her baby to support and she could not resign."

Pointing out that he had resigned his own position founded on twenty-one years of pioneer work in probation and had borrowed the money with which he had repaid to the Controller all the city had given his sister, he said, "It was the only honorable thing to do." He added, "I am without position at the present time and without funds."

Mr. Cooley was silent only on his relations with Mrs. Eileen C. Coughlin, suspended deputy chief probation officer. When Assistant District Attorney Thomas A. Aurelio, who contends that Mrs. Lawler's continued absence from the probation bureau was because she had denounced Mrs. Coughlin, asked, "Were you living with Mrs. Coughlin at that time?" Cooley replied: "I refuse to answer that question on the ground that it may tend to degrade or incriminate me." Of Mrs. Coughlin he said only, "She was a very capable woman, the best assistant I have had in all my years of work."

She and his sister were always on good terms, he insisted, characterizing the row between them at the bureau on May 3, 1929, as "a nervous explosion" which his sister could not explain even on the next day.

Mr. Cooley vehemently denounced the prosecutor's question as to whether he had ever stolen $18 from the New York Central Railroad when he was working for it as a youth. He partly rose in his chair to deny also that he had personally used any money in the probation bureau's restitution fund.

"Never in my life," he cried. "There has never been a bit a truth in those wild stories in the papers. I never did it and you know I did not, because the Commissioner of Accounts has investigated and made a report to your office."

Tells of Early Career.

In his direct examination George Z. Medalie, defense attorney, led the witness over the story of his life. Cooley told of his early probation work in Buffalo, the taking charge of probation in New York, his writings and teaching on the subject.

Cooley said he had been so busy in his work here that he had seen little of his sister and mother in Buffalo. In 1929 his mother wrote him that school teaching was injuring his sister's health and they decided to establish a home together here. His sister's educational experience more than qualified her for chief clerk in his bureau, he explained.

Cooley was asked about the telegram which went over his telephone wire to the Western Union and the Buffalo school principal petitioning sick leave for Mrs. Lawler. He denied knowledge of it and said his telephone was accessible to many people including his sister.

LAWRENCE VEILLER, head of the criminal courts committee of the Charity Organization Society.

Dr. GEORGE W. KIRCHWEY, former dean of Columbia Law School.

W. BRUCE COBB, former magistrate.

Miss CLAIRE TOUSLEY of the Charity Organization Society.

GEORGE GORDON BATTLE, attorney.

Professor RAYMOND MOLEY of Columbia University.

After Cooley's testimony, the defense rested. The prosecution will present one or two rebuttal witnesses today.

111,270 Sign to Recall Detroit Mayor; Election Must Be Set Within Next 25 Days

DETROIT, Mich., June 19.—Petitions bearing the names of 111,270 citizens asking the recall of Mayor Bowles were filed today with Richard W. Reading, City Clerk, by Walter B. Cary, leader of the movement, after a conference with political leaders and business men.

The movement began a month ago, following the discharge of Harold H. Emmons as Police Commissioner, and charges that Mayor Bowles had condoned lawlessness.

Only 90,000 signatures were needed under the law, which specifies that the City Clerk, within five days of the filing of petitions, must issue a call for a special election, and the election must be held within twenty days from the latter time.

The election is held on the simple question of whether or not the official should be recalled. If the recall carries, another election to fill the vacancy must be held, with Mayor Bowles's name on the ticket.

Mr. Cary this afternoon declared the names presented came from every walk of life and, in effect, were a spontaneous outbreak of public indignation over the way the city affairs have been conducted during the last few months.

Early in the circulation of petitions, persons interested in the Mayor's retention of office had boasted that they would discredit the movement by having fake signatures submitted, with a view to challenging them after the filing.

The recall committee, which had been carefully checking all signatures, took the statement as an added reason for a very careful survey of each petition. As a result, several thousand questionable signatures were thrown aside, and the Prosecuting Attorney was notified of the facts disclosed and asked to take action against any one involved in an effort to impose fraudulent signatures on the City Clerk.

Meanwhile, Mayor Bowles was in conference with Louis J. Colombo, attorney, and it was reported that the Mayor contemplated mandamus proceedings in an effort to halt the recall election. Clarence E. Wilcox, Corporation Counsel, previously had requested that he be notified when the petitions were filed, indicating he might be interested in the court action.

PRESSES INQUIRY INTO WALSH 'LOAN'

McCARTHY IS IN HOSPITAL

Crain Says He Will Summon Him Before Grand Jury as Soon as He Is Well Enough.

Both the Federal and county grand juries, in their investigations of matters related to the Board of Standards and Appeals, will centre their attention for a time upon the reported loan of $30,000 to William E. Walsh, chairman of the board, by John A. McCarthy, a Bronx building materials dealer. McCarthy received from Mr. Walsh two promissory notes, no portion of which has been paid, according to United States Attorney Tuttle.

The cooperation of the Federal and State officials in this inquiry was shown yesterday by the fact that two Assistant United States Attorneys were witnesses before the county grand jury. These assistants, Lowell Wadmond and John A. Wilson, were sent by Mr. Tuttle on a request from Assistant District Attorney Albert B. Unger for all available information about the reported loans.

District Attorney Crain learned yesterday that Mr. McCarthy is in the Presbyterian Hospital, Mr. Tuttle having disclosed that his assistants had questioned Mr. McCarthy there. As soon as he has recovered sufficiently to testify, Mr. Crain said, Mr. McCarthy will be subpoenaed to appear before the county grand jury and to produce the two promissory notes said to have been given him by Mr. Walsh.

Mr. Crain has been informed that soon after Mr. Walsh received the money from Mr. McCarthy he deposited it with his brokers, Logan & Bryan, at 42 Broadway. Mr. Tuttle said last night:

"I am pressing the inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining all possible facts concerning these loans, said to have been made on demand notes for $30,000 without interest. I am seeking to obtain possession, if possible, of the notes and to get in touch with all persons who may know about them; also to learn in what manner the cash was raised by McCarthy. In that matter I am in close cooperation with District Attorney Crain, who conferred with me today by telephone."

Witnesses before the county grand jury yesterday, in addition to Mr. Tuttle's two assistants, included George M. Cohan, of the Kelvale Realty Company, Inc., an objector in a permit case that came before the Board of Standards and Appeals; Stella S. Epstein, of 1,738 Crotona Parkway, the Bronx, and Ida and Aaron Stromfield, of 105 Jamaica Avenue, Jamaica, Queens, all three of whom were said to have been represented on applications before the board by Dr. William F. Doyle. Edward A. McShane, an attorney, of 54 West Fifty-fifth Street, was also a witness.

THREE ACQUITTED IN ELLIOTT CASE

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., June 19.—Harry Kuller, Joseph Jackovicz and Joseph Bongiorno were acquitted this afternoon by a jury in the Court of Quarter Sessions here of conspiracy to kidnap Willard H. Elliott, Passaic banker, a year ago this month. A fourth defendant, Angelo Lapaduro, had been acquitted by direction of Judge Joseph A. Delaney yesterday.

All four are now at liberty under $25,000 bail.

REALTY TO BE SOLD IN DEFAULT OF BAIL

Crain Orders Auction of Six Pieces of Property Pledged for $31,650 in Bonds.

Drastic Action Is First of Kind to Redeem Forfeitures Here—Sale to Be Held July 21.

District Attorney Crain ordered yesterday that six pieces of real estate which had been pledged as collateral for forfeited bail bonds be sold at public auction. It was the first time in the memory of attachés of the Criminal Courts Building that such a move had been made by a prosecutor.

Assistant District Attorney Miles M. O'Brien, in charge of the Bail Bond Bureau, said that the property, which is to be auctioned on July 21 at 56 Vesey Street by Henry Brady, auctioneer for Sheriff Farley, has a total assessed valuation of $250,000, with mortgages against it amounting to $121,000.

Among the houses to be sold is that at 20 West 113th Street, of which Bernard Simon is the reputed owner, on which $23,650 in bail bonds had been furnished and forfeited for twenty-three persons in one police station. This property has an assessed valuation of $29,000, with a mortgage of $14,000.

Another house is at 148-152 Ridge Street, said to be owned by Joseph Marks, with an assessed valuation of $20,000 and an outstanding mortgage of $9,000. The property had been given as surety for two bail bonds which were forfeited, Mr. O'Brien said; one for $2,000 and the other for $1,000.

The property at 358 West Twenty-eighth Street was ordered sold because James Brown, the reported owner, had failed to pay $500 to the city on a forfeited bail bond. It has an assesssed valuation of $25,000 and a $10,000 mortgage.

John Jones was named as the owner of the property at 234 Eighth Avenue, which was ordered sold on the forfeiture of a $1,000 bail bond against it. The assessed valuation was put at $100,000, but there is a $50,000 mortgage. Two bonds, one for $1,000 and the other for $500, were forfeited against the property at 218 West 116th Street, of which Salvatore Farenga was reported to be the owner. The assessed valuation was $24,000 and the mortgage $10,000.

The house at 108 Avenue B, owned by August Vazac, the occupant, was ordered sold because he paid only $500 on a $2,500 bail bond which had been forfeited. Its assessed valuation was $55,000 and there is a $28,000 mortgage against it.

Mr. Crain's action followed the recording of judgments against each of the properties in County Clerk Finn's ofice. The District Attorney ordered the sales as a result of the recent bail bond exposures in the magistrates' court under the Code of Criminal Procedure and the Greater New York Charter.

GIRL SCOUT DIRECTOR QUITS

Mrs. J. D. Rippin Held National Post for Eleven Years.

Announcement of the resignation of Mrs. Jane Deeter Rippin as national director of the Girl Scouts, Inc., which post she has held for eleven years, was made yesterday. The resignation has been accepted by the executive committee with a vote of appreciation and regret, providing for a six months' vacation with pay.

Mrs. Rippin resigned, it was explained, to devote herself to writing her observations and reflections on girls and women. From the post of high school principal in a Pennsylvania town, Mrs. Rippin went into social work in Philadelphia. During the war she was director of the section of women and girls of the Commission on Training Camp Activities.

Emil Ludwig Contrasts
Two Thunderous Revolutions

THE great social and political upheavals in France in 1789 and in Russia in 1917 are studied by the noted German writer. While admitting that "certain resemblances are at least unmistakable," Mr. Ludwig points out essential dissimilarities. In endeavoring to answer the universal question: "What will follow the present regime in Russia?" he believes that the solution "is not to be sought in the history of the French Revolution, for the two movements are different."

PLANS FUND FOR PAY IN UNEMPLOYMENT

EMPLOYE-COMPANY SHARE

Payments on Percentage of Earnings Will Create Trust on Which Worker May Draw.

Special to the New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, June 19.—An unemployment plan for General Electric workers, designed to make funds available for employes during times of need or unemployment, was announced here today by President Gerard Swope. The money will be raised through equal contributions by the employes and the company. Many provisions in the plan are a result of suggestions from committees of leading workmen.

At the same time Mr. Swope announced a plan for the stabilization of employment by reducing to a minimum its cause and effect. Rules are set down for all plants of the company as to what to do and what not to do when business is either on the increase or work is falling off.

The unemployment plan may be adopted by any works, regardless of the action of other plants, and the company will participate upon an affirmative vote of 60 per cent or more of the eligible employes of that works. Any employe with continuous service with the company of a year or more is eligible for membership.

By enrolling, the participant agrees to pay into a trust fund created by the plan about 1 per cent of his earnings for a period of three years, so long as they are 50 per cent or more of his average full-time weekly or monthly earnings.

In abnormal times of unemployment, normal contributions by participating employes would cease and all employes would be called upon to contribute. Thus employes who are subject to lay-offs would aid themselves as much as possible, and, when they could no longer do this, employes who are still working would contribute toward the aid of the men who are laid off. The General Electric Company would itself contribute in both instances to an equal extent to that of the participating employes.

The funds will be in charge of a board of trustees and the company will guarantee 5 per cent interest.

Under the plan for stabilizing employment, regulations set down by Mr. Swope are:

WHEN BUSINESS IS INCREASING.

Increase the working force by adding employes as slowly as possible.

Increase the number in especially busy departments by transfers from other departments.

Resort to overtime in particular departments and generally before increasing the working force.

Postpone plant renewal and maintenance work as much as possible, employing the men on regular production.

WHEN WORK BEGINS TO FALL OFF.

Cease hiring at once.

Cut out all possible overtime and bring departments down to the normal week.

Transfer people from slack to busier departments.

Stimulate the sales department to obtain cooperation from customers and get business for future delivery.

Build standard apparatus for stock up to appropriate number of months' shipments, based on average of last three years' sales, adjusted to expectation of next two years.

See that stocks at all factory and district warehouses are brought up to this maximum.

Use men on maintenance and repair work, bringing the plant and equipment up to a high standard.

Cut the normal week as generally and gradually as possible by departments (down to 50 per cent. of the normal week).

Proceed with construction of increased plant facilities previously planned, using our own men as far as possible.

Drop new employes with less than a year of service, single people with no dependents and who are most easily spared first, always with not less than one week's notice.

In accordance with our custom, established for some time, employes should be told whether it is a temporary lay-off due to lack of work, or a permanent lay-off, and in every instance of permanent lay-off the usual compensation, if any, should be paid, depending upon character of work, age and length of service.

DENIES HE AIDED CHANDLESS IN LOAN

Controller McCutcheon Says He Did Not Get Senator's Letter of Thanks for $200,000.

HACKENSACK, N. J., June 19.—State Controller John B. McCutcheon and State Treasurer Albert C. Middleton were questioned today at the hearing before Supreme Court Commissioner Harold Price regarding the financing of the $200,000 Lodi sewer project. There were frequent clashes between counsel.

Mr. McCutcheon denied that he had helped Senator Ralph W. Chandless get a State loan of $200,000 to enable the Little Ferry National Bank to purchase the sewer bonds.

Mr. Price produced a letter purporting to have been written by Senator Chandless to the Controller in which the Senator thanked Mr. McCutcheon for helping him get the State funds. The Controller repeated that he did not recall having received such a letter, and said, "To the best of my recollection I did not."

"Will you deny the statement in the letter?" the commissioner asked.

Jack Rintzler, counsel for the Lodi officials accused of illegal acts in the sewer project, objected to the commissioner's attempts to get a "Yes" or "No" answer from the witness, and was sustained. Later the Controller admitted that Senator Chandless had approached him on the subject of the $200,000 deposit.

"But I told the Senator to see the State Treasurer, who alone could grant the request," he testified. "I have no authority in such matters."

Mr. McCutcheon will be recalled tomorrow.

In the morning Mr. Middleton denied that the New Jersey Sinking Fund Commission, of which he is a member, had been asked to buy the Lodi sewer bonds.

PRITCHETT YIELDS OFFICE.

Retires as Head of Teachers' Annuity Fund—Glover Succeeds Him.

The trustees of the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association announced yesterday the retirement of Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the association since 1908, when he founded it in cooperation with Andrew Carnegie.

Professor James W. Glover, chairman of the Department of Mathematics of the University of Michigan, has been chosen to succeed Dr. Pritchett. He was chairman of a committee of the American Institute of Actuaries, which cooperated in inaugurating the association and has been a trustee of the association since its establishment.

Dr. Pritchett's retirement from the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, effective Aug. 1, was announced on Wednesday.

Mr. Rogers Has Breakfast With a Successful Candidate

Just had breakfast this morning with the Morrows and the Lindberghs.

They are all feeling mighty fine over that election. He made a pretty fair race without using Lindy at all. If he had used him those other poor fellows wouldn't have even carried their own wives' vote.

He is anxious to get to Mexico now, and is leaving in a few days. If I was his opponent in November, I would get a one way ticket to Siberia.

See where the Senate voted to investigate the rates in the tariff. That's holding an autopsy on the body.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

DRAFTS PLAN TO AID JOBLESS IN STATE

Committee Submits Program to Improve Service of Free Employment Bureaus.

URGES TRAINED PERSONNEL

Points Out That Small Salaries Fail to Attract Leaders—Miss Perkins Accepts Report.

A five year program for the improvement of the State employment service together with a study of the present operation of the service was submitted yesterday to Frances Perkins, State Industrial Commissioner, by the Advisory Committee on Employment Problems appointed by Miss Perkins last October. The study, conducted by Miss Mary La Dame, was framed as a report by the committee, headed by F. H. Silcox, chairman.

The report pointed out that the handicaps under which the State Employment Bureau has operated during the last fifteen years have prevented it from making any significant contribution to regularization of employment and to the organization of the labor market.

"During the process of the study of State Employment offices, weaknesses in the management of these offices were brought to the attention of the Industrial Commissioner," the report said. "We are glad to report that steps for the correction of many of these conditions are now under way and that in some instances considerable progress has already been made."

After pointing to the meager salaries paid to employment superintendents, twelve of whom get less than $2,600 a year and the highest salary being $3,000, the report stated that under the circumstances the bureau has not been able to command the leadership and abilities required by the work.

Among the recommendations for immediate action were:

"That the Bureau of Employment be under one capable, trained executive directly responsible to the State Industrial Commissioner.

"That systematic clearance among the employment offices be established.

"That a manual of practice be prepared.

"That definite provision be made for organized training of the pesronnel of the bureau, particularly new employes, and that $50,000 be made immediately available to bring about improvements in the bureau."

The proposed five-year program suggested that it be the function of the bureau to assume leadership in improving and co-ordinating the work of public and non-commercial employment agencies, including those maintained by employers and labor unions, and to cooperate with acceptable commercial agencies.

Commissioner Perkins, in accepting the report, discussed the activities of the State Employment Bureau since February. She told of the expansion of the work along several lines, of the cooperation with the Welfare Council and of arrangements with commercial and charity organizations whereby the bureau is attempting to work out the employment problems of those organizations.

Despite the fact that general employment conditions have not been satisfactory, the number of placements by the State Bureau have measurably increased since January, Miss Perkins told the committee. She thanked the committee for its work and hoped it would be reorganized as a permanent body.

TUTTLE TO BE HONORED BY YOUNG REPUBLICANS

Leaders of Party to Attend the Dinner, but It Is Not Meant as Start of Governorship Race.

Charles H. Tuttle, United States Attorney and potential candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, will be honored by the Young Republican Club at a dinner to be given at the National Republican Club next Thursday evening.

Many influential Republican leaders, including Republican National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles, Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, associate of Mr. Hilles on the National Committee; Samuel S. Koenig, president of the New York County Republican Committee; Meier Steinbrink, G. O. P. leader in Kings, and Alan Fox, described by the club's publicity man as the "original Hoover man in New York State," have accepted invitations to the Tuttle dinner.

An impression which has gone abroad, that the dinner might be the occasion for formal launching of a Tuttle Gubernatorial boom, was discouraged by promoters of the event, who explained that the membership of the club was diversified in its affiliations to the several persons who have received mention in connection with the Gubernatorial nomination.

"The dinner to Mr. Tuttle," according to a statement accompanying the announcement, "is in accordance with the fixed policy of the club in recognizing those members of the Republican party who so conduct their administration of public offices conferred upon them that they become leading exponents of the Republican ideal of public service."

ALDERMEN ASSURE SALARY RISES TO 200

INCREASE CALLED 'OUTRAGE'

Steinbrink, Baldwin and Thomas Lead Opposition, Citing Needs of Minor City Workers.

LIVELY TILTS MARK SESSION

J. P. Ryan and Other Trade Union Heads Favor Salary Advance for Higher Officials.

After a public hearing yesterday at City Hall, in which fifteen opponents of the city's proposed salary increases for 200 high officials denounced the move and four spokesmen voiced their approval, the Board of Aldermen's Committee on Salaries and Offices announced that it would report favorably on the matter at Tuesday's meeting of the board.

Meier Steinbrink, Republican leader of Brooklyn; Alderman Joseph Clark Baldwin 3d and Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, took the lead in the fight against the proposal. John E. Eastmond engaged in a lively tilt with Alderman Edward W. Curley, chairman of the committee, by saying that his experience in public life convinced him that high salaries do not keep public officials honest.

"The party in power must answer to the people for the calibre of men in its administration," Alderman Curley said.

"God help the Democratic party if it is to be responsible for its recently accused members," Eastmond retorted.

"There is agitation for the abolition of the Board of Aldermen on the ground that it is a 'rubber-stamp' body," Mr. Eastmond continued. "This is your opportunity to show that the board is not a rubber stamp. No emergency exists for these increases. No business corporation in the country today is raising the salaries of its officers; the contrary is the case. If increases are to be given they should go to the low-paid employes."

Sees Budget Policy Violated.

The same attitude was echoed by John C. Dolan of the West Side Taxpayers' Association and Daniel J. Mahoney, who appeared as an individual taxpayer. R. E. McGahen, secretary of the Citizens Union, attacked the proposed increases on the ground that their adoption would be a violation of the city's budget policy.

"It is inconceivable in times like these how salary increases can be granted," Mr. Steinbrink said. "Any member of the Board of Aldermen could use the $500,000 to be paid in increases for public improvements in his own district.

"Ask in your clubhouses, you Aldermen, which of your constituents in city service have received increases in the last six months. This proposal is a shocking outrage. It makes no difference whether the party in power be Republican or Democratic—if one becomes so strongly entrenched that it brooks no opposition, it is time for something to be done about it."

Baldwin Cites the Unemployed.

Alderman Baldwin, leader of the minority, declared that the proposal was "an outrage on the public when times are so hard."

"When we wanted help for the unemployed we were told that there were no accruals to spend," he said. "When we wanted funds to increase the pensions of policemen's widows we got the same answer. When we asked that the $4 a day employes of the city be paid on holidays, the same answer was given. Even veterans in city employ could not be paid on Memorial Day, supposedly for the same reason."

Alderman Curley broke in with a reminder that the Republican minority had approved pay increases in 1925, and asked Alderman Baldwin why he was not following their policy.

"I am not bound by what was done in 1925," the Alderman replied. "Can it be that the Democratic party is still bound by the Tweed policy of building court houses at about $100,000 a stone?"

Alderman Curley then asked why the Republican party was laying off employes in the Navy Yard.

"Ask Mr. Hoover about that," Mr. Baldwin replied.

Pleads for Minor Employes.

Mr. Thomas told the committee that the proposed increases were not only a violation of "the sound principle of budget-making" but were also "singularly untimely" and "outrageously inopportune."

"If any one of these officials were to resign because he did not get the increase," the Socialist leader said, "Mayor Walker would need police protection against the applications of those of about equal ability. The city has not taken one constructive step toward the relief of unemployment. Increases should be given to those city employes earning $1,900 a year and less. This board has a remarkable opportunity to justify its existence, and its approval of these increases would be bad political strategy."

Joseph P. Ryan of the Central Trades and Labor Council said 750,000 trade unionists approved the increases because they consistently favored higher salaries. Bernard Nolan of the Civic League and Phil O'Brien of the United Auto League spoke in favor of the rises. Mr. O'Brien said he approved all the proposed increases except that of Park Commissioner Herrick, making that exception because Mr. Herrick had leased a cab concession in Central Park to the Yellow Cab Corporation. W. F. O'Connell, representing Budget Director Kohler, defended the increases and the manner in which they were acted on by the Board of Estimate last Friday.

After a short executive session Alderman Curley announced that the committee would recommend favorable action on the increases by the Board of Aldermen on Tuesday. Alderman Fred Moore, the one Republican on the committee, was absent, as were Aldermen Edward Cassidy and Charles J. McGillick. Those who voted on the committee's report were Aldermen Bernhard Schwab, Thomas J. MacDonald, John J. Lenihan, Dennis V. Corcoran, Thomas G. Ryan, John J. McCusker, James F. Carroll, John J. Barrett Jr., Peter Donovan, Louis Wronker, William L. Weber and Alderman Curley.

By MAJOR GUY C. CAMPBELL.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HOYLAKE, England, June 19.—At the half-way mark in the British open golf championship, Bobby Jones, with 142 for thirty-six holes, is leading by one stroke. Fred Robson, English pro having 143. Furthermore, out of the first nine places, six are held by United States golfers.

Horton Smith follows Jones and Robson at 145. Don Moe, Leo Diegel and Macdonald Smith come next with Archie Compston and Philip Rodgers at 147. Jim Barnes is one stroke worse and Henry Cotton is 149. That is a pretty strong position for the United States.

The weather has been lovely; hot, clear and sunny, after the storm. Today the order of play was reversed.

Compston's Play Erratic.

From the start it was evident that Compston was not likely to set a pace hot enough to worry Jones unless Bobby broke down. Compston was erratic all through the round and achieved his figures largely by good recoveries. He went out in 37 and came home in 36, with a fine 2 at the short thirteenth. His 73 gave him an aggregate of 147, which left Jones a margin of safety.

Macdonald Smith and Jim Barnes could not find their form. Smith ruined his chances going out by taking 40, with 6s at the third and eighth, and Barnes faltered with three 5s and a 6. Both were around in 77 and that made their respective totals 147 and 148.

With these two failing, there was hope for Henry Cotton, but he obviously was feeling the effects of his strained wrist and everything went wrong. He took 41 out and 38 home and that looks bad for him.

Horton Smith Out in 37.

It was then up to Horton Smith and Leo Diegel. At first Horton looked as if he were going to do great things, for he started out 4, 4, 4, 3, but afterward shots began to slip away and he took 37 to reach the turn.

He started back with seven 4s but those at the two short holes spoiled those at the long ones and a fine 3 at the home hole only neutralized the 5 at the seventeenth. Still his round of 73 gave him an aggregate of 145 and that spelled danger for Bobby.

Meanwhile, Cyril Tolley was playing finely. He finished in 71, but even that could not retrieve his disastrous first round of 84, and so the crowd chased after Diegel. Leo began well, was out in 36 and started home magnificently in 3, 3, 4, 4, 3. Then, just when it looked as if a record was in sight, two disastrous 6s came at the sixteenth and seventeenth, caused in each case by two shots in the rough. He finished with 73 for a total of 147, and that left the way clear for Jones.

7,000 in Jones's Gallery.

Bobby started at 2:18 with a gallery of about 7,000. Luckily, this time there were no untoward incidents. After all was over he said to me: "It was one of the hardest rounds I ever had to play, and as I always have one such in a tournament, I hope it is over and done with."

Nevertheless, he finished in 72, sufficient testimony to his powers. Time and again he had to hole putts of doubtful length to get his figures and time and again he did it. His start was anything but impressive.

Bobby took a 5 to the first, where his second shot was just in the rough and then just failed to hole his putt. At the second his approach narrowly escaped a trap on the right, but at the third he pulled his drive into the rough, cut his second into a bad spot in some rushes, and finally took a 6.

After that he improved with 3, 4, 4, 3, 4, 4, and reached the turn in 37. The figures were not won easily. In fact, he was fighting all the way. Coming in, it was much the same story. He got home in 35. At the tenth he did nearly get a 3, but to the short "Alps" he pulled his second over the bank, played a wonderful chip back and holed a four-foot putt for his 3.

Holes Long, Downhill Putt.

At the "Hilbrae" he had a long, difficult, downhill putt. He could not lay the ball dead, and again he had to hole a long one. At the short thirteenth he was not on the green off the tee, but he got down from there in 2, and at the fourteenth he laid a chip dead to get his 4.

At the fifteenth came one of the best shots of his career. His second to the green took a bad jump and left him in long grass. From there he got his 4—a great performance. At the sixteenth he took his little spoon, for fear of over-running the the green with his second, was short, then eight feet past with his run-up, and failed to hole his putt for a 4.

Again at the seventeenth he had to hole a long putt for his 4, and did, but at the eighteenth he got his 4 easily, and was safe in port with a 72—a great achievement, for, in spite of such difficulties as might well have wrecked his score, he showed he was master of his fate.

There still was Fred Robson to come in, and Robson seemed the chief threat. So it proved. Playing easily and confidently, Robson reached the turn in 37, and with 4, 3, 3, 3 drew level with Jones, being two under 4s. Five 4s to finish would give him a 70 and the lead by one stroke. However, Robson is not Bobby Jones.

At the fourteenth he got a bad lie off his second and took 5. He had a good 4 at the fifteenth and another at the long sixteenth, where he laid a run-up to the lip of the hole from fifty yards, but at the seventeenth he was twenty-five yards short in 2, five feet past in 3 and missed his putt. He had a last chance at the home hole to tie on aggregate. He just failed to sink his putt for a 3, and that left Bobby in the lead.

All Over 158 Drop Out.

HOYLAKE, England, June 19 (AP).—The British open golf championship was still a "hoss race" this evening as the field rounded the halfway post.

The qualifying gate again closed tonight, cutting off all except the sixty leaders and one tie for sixtieth place. George Von Elm, with a thirty-six-hole total of 160, was the only American shut out of the two-round finish tomorrow. He had 81 yesterday and 79 today. A score as low as 158 was necessary to remain in the competition. F. C. Stevens Jr., of Los Angeles just slipped in.

The showing of Robson today greatly cheered the British. Had he been able to hole putts as Jones did today he would have smashed the Hoylake course record. At St. Andrews in 1927, when Jones won, he tied for second. Robson captained the winning British Ryder Cup team last year.

Archie Compston, Henry Cotton and Charles Whitcombe probably are too far back to be considered very dangerous, for if the present weather continues, predictions are being made that Jones's record score of 285 for the event will be broken.

Horton Smith will be the first American out in the third round tomorrow morning, followed by Moe, Stevens, Jones, Barnes, Diegel and Mac Smith. They will play in the same order in the fourth and final round in the afternoon.

ST. ALBANS, L. I., June 19.—Of all the notable golfers who set forth this morning with high hopes of adding to their prestige by winning the metropolitan amateur championship there are only a few outstanding survivors at the end of the second round.

Seldom has such havoc been created in a district championship as occurred today at St. Albans, where the 1930 event is being played. The upsets began with the defeat of Eddie Held, the Canadian amateur champion, and Paul Haviland, the New England titleholder, this morning and ended with defeat of George Voigt, Walker Cup star; T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion, and Captain E. F. Carter, former Irish amateur champion, this afternoon.

Birch Eliminates Voigt.

Voigt, who was a semi-finalist in the British amateur championship only a few weeks ago, lost to C. Ward Birch of Stamford; Perkins was defeated by W. Neal Fulkerson of Cherry Valley and Carter went down before the fine playing of Eugene Homans of Englewood, after being 2 up at the end of the first seven holes.

Surviving for the third round of the district championship are Homans, finalist in the 1928 event at Fenimore, and Maurice McCarthy Jr., defending champion, who meet tomorrow morning; Johnny Riddell Jr. of Cherry Valley and Sidney W. Noyes, former interscholastic champion, in the upper half, and Fulkerson, Moffett, Pennington, Miller-Jones of Green Meadow, recent winner of the Westchester amateur title, and Birch in the lower.

Riddell, medalist in yesterday's qualifying round, was not forced to extend himself in either of his matches today, his first-round engagement with P. E. Furber of Wee Burn ending on the thirteenth green, which was also the spot where he accepted the congratulations of Johnny Hines of Salisbury in the afternoon.

Birch Gains Lead of 4 up.

Of all the surprises that occurred at St. Albans today none surpassed the one that saw Voigt, fresh from his great match against Bobby Jones in the semi-final round of the British amateur championship, defeated.

Voigt was two over par on the first six holes, while Birch was two under to gain a lead of 4 up at that particular point.

George had a bad break on the seventh, where he found his ball in a bad lie on his drive and hit his brassie into a trap, costing him the hole and leaving him 5 down. The kind of a golfer he was up against was demonstrated on the eighth and ninth holes. On the eighth Birch was bunkered from the tee, but nonchalantly played from the sand to put his ball on the green and to win the hole when Voigt, who was on the green in 2, left himself short on his first putt and missed the second.

Birch was bunkered on the ninth, while Voigt was on the green, but the former got a half in par figures, coming out within a couple of yards of the hole and sinking the putt.

Voigt Wins Eleventh.

The only hole Birch lost was the short eleventh, where he missed the green and was bunkered. Even then he almost halved the hole as he hit the cup on his try for a 3. Only 5 down now, Voigt contributed to his own defeat by knocking Birch's ball into the hole while trying to putt around a half-stymie on the twelfth. The finish came on the thirteenth when Birch came out of another bunker to get a half.

The cards:

Out—
Birch ....4 2 4 4 5 3 5 4 3—34
Voigt ....5 3 4 4 6 4 6 5 3—40
In—
Birch 4 4 4 4
Voigt 4 3 5 4

Next in importance to Voigt's downfall was that of Perkins. Having been so successful in metropolitan district tournaments this year, Phil was expected to go a long way in the championship.

Five up against Lauren Upson of Englewood at the turn in the morning, the bespectacled Briton found himself 3 down to Fulkerson at the same point in the afternoon, Phil having lost the first, third, seventh and ninth holes to the Cherry Valley youngster and offset his losses by winning only the sixth.

After halving the tenth in 6, two over par, Perkins won the eleventh with a birdie 2, lost the thirteenth and fourteenth to par figures, won the fifteenth with another 2 and lost the match on the sixteenth, which was halved in 5s.

Out—
Fulkerson ....4 3 5 4 5 5 5 4 3—38
Perkins ....5 3 7 4 5 4 6 4 4—42
In—
Fulkerson 6 3 4 5 3 5 5
Perkins 6 2 4 5 6 2 5

McCarthy Finishes Strong.

McCarthy's hardest match was the one against R. A. Jones Jr. of Westchester Hills in the opening round. The play was all even for fourteen holes, but after that the defending champion had three 3s in a row, two of them birdies which resulted from the holing of a six-yard putt on the sixteenth and a four-yarder on the seventeenth. Playing out the home hole Maurice had another 3 which gave him a 34 on the incoming nine.

Schooner Fame Finishes First in 80-Mile Run Of the American Yacht Club to New London

By JAMES ROBBINS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—In a soupy fog that stretched over the easterly end of Long Island Sound, the sailing yachts in the American Yacht Club's race from Rye, N. Y., to this port straggled in past Sarah's Ledge this morning.

First to arrive, after leaving Rye at 5 P. M. yesterday, was J. D. Thompson's schooner Fame, which finished at 2:43 A. M., having covered the eighty miles in 9 hours and 43 minutes. Second was Rowe B. Metcalf's schooner Sachem, 50 minutes and 15 seconds behind Fame, with Horace B. Merwin's schooner Dauntless third, 20 minutes and 45 seconds after Sachem.

These three, along with George W. Smith's cutter Skal and W. Finlay Downs's schooner Malabar VIII, are to compete in the race to Bermuda, which starts here on Sunday morning. Skal arrived at 6:25:15 and Malabar VIII at 6:43:30.

Until the measurement certificates for the Bermuda race are filed the winner among them in the contest through the Sound will not be determined. They competed with time allowance in the cruising trim they will use in the thrash across the Gulf Stream to the coral islands. They were in what was designated as Class II.

Of the craft in Class I, Robert Fulton's Larchmont O boat Gray Dawn finished first at 5:22:35. H. R. Robertson's Varuna, another Larchmont O boat, was 1 minute and 55 seconds in her wake, and Roy Manny's ten-meter Synthetic arrived at 7:25:30.

The others came straggling along during the morning. They were W. S. Gould's 29-footer Ulua, Carroll Alker's 10-meter Nautilus, sailed by Jack Shethar; D. C. Stanley's Class Q boat Hawk, R. G. Rockwell's sloop Betsy Anne and Julius S. Prince's Victory Class boat Red Arrow, the smallest craft in the race.

When the yachts started from Scotch Caps buoy, off Rye, a southerly breeze was blowing. They began reaching. As night came on the wind hauled westerly and sails were eased off for a broader reach. Despite the fog the breeze held and enabled the boats to make good time.

The race committee of the American Yacht Club, after starting the contest, came here on the motor yacht Ranora, owned by Frank C. Munson, chairman of the committee. The other officials on board were William Remsen, David Bonner, Roger Sherman, Eric E. Sproule and G. V. Cutler.

MISS SINGER WINS, GAINS FINAL ROUND

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISON, N. Y., June 19.—Last year's finalists, Miss Catherine Singer of the Westchester Country Club, the defending champion and winner of the qualifying medal, and Mrs. Thomas Hucknall of the Woodway Club, who bowed to Miss Singer, 4 and 3, in 1929, and who last Friday won the Connecticut State women's championship, will meet tomorrow for the Westchester and Fairfield Women's Golf Association title over the Green Meadow Country Club links.

Miss Singer and Mrs. Hucknall today gained the final of the eighth annual tourney. Miss Singer eliminated Mrs. Edward Stevens of Round Hill, whom she also vanquished in the 1929 quarter-finals. Today's match was a bit closer, Miss Singer winning, 2 and 1, as compared to the 4 and 2 score of last season. Ahead of her opponent throughout their encounter, Mrs. Hucknall disposed of Mrs. Benjamin Briggs, Pelham, 3 and 2.

One down at the turn, Miss Singer squared the match at the tenth. Both had poor second shots, but Mrs. Stevens missed her third and needed 4 to get on the green, while Miss Singer bagged a 6 to win the hole.

Halve Next Three Holes.

After they halved the next three Mrs. Stevens hooked her third shot on the fourteenth, which Miss Singer won with 5. Mrs. Stevens took 4 to get on the fifteenth green, the result being that Miss Singer carded a 5 to increase her lead to 2 up. Each tallied a 4 on the sixteenth and each took 6 on the seventeenth, the result of poor second and third shots.

Fine approach shots were the most notable characteristic of Mrs. Hucknall's play. She completed the first nine in 41 and led, 3 up, at the turn. Mrs. Hucknall scored a par 3 to take the sixteenth and the match.

MISS HICKS GAINS FINAL IN TOURNEY

FAVORED TO RETAIN CROWN

Inwood Star Defeats Mrs. Heckscher and Mrs. Federman Puts Out Mrs. Anderson.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN HEAD, L. I., June 19.—Opponents only a few weeks ago in the fifth round of the Women's British Championship, Miss Helen Hicks of Inwood and Mrs. Leo Federman of Fresh Meadow will play the deciding match tomorrow for the women's Long Island golf title.

On her record this week, to which she added a 7 and 6 victory this morning over Mrs. Vanderhoef Heckscher of Piping Rock in the semi-final at the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club links, Miss Hicks is favored tomorrow to repeat her triumph over Mrs. Federman and retain the Long Island crown she now holds.

Not one hole did she lose this morning in her match with Mrs. Heckscher and she kept scoring at the same pace that has eliminated opponents this week. Over the first nine, she had a lead of 6 up with an excellent 38 and then finished the next three holes, 4, 4, 3, to end the match.

Even at that there were one or two strokes she might have saved for she hooked her tee shot out of bounds at the first hole, but sank her 5 there for a half. Following with two regulation 4s and a 3 at the fourth, which won all three holes, she three-putted the fifth for a 5.

After that she won the sixth with a 5, the 225-yard seventh with a birdie 3 and halved her third hole of the nine. The eighth, as her second shot, was bunkered. With a concluding 4, she ended the first half, six up.

An eight-foot putt earned Mrs. Heckscher a 4 to halve the tenth, but at the next tee she sliced her drive and did not find the ball, so that Miss Hicks won the eleventh with a 4, and they finished the match by getting a 3 each at the short twelfth.

Mrs. Federman, however, had a closer match with Mrs. J. Laroque Anderson of Cherry Valley, who finished second in the Women's Eastern and was runner-up in the recent metropolitan championship. Coupled with occasional unsteadiness from the tee and the failure to sink a number of holable putts, Mrs. Anderson found herself 3 down at the turn.

Mrs. Federman, who played one of her best rounds of the tournament, was out in 42 and then started back with a 4 at the tenth. At the eleventh the siren of a passing automobile disturbed her and she missed a short putt for a half. After that, however, she ran down a ten-footer for a birdie 2 at the twelfth to regain her lead of 3 up.

Gets on Green With Spoon.

After Mrs. Federman's spoon shot had carried to the elevated green at the thirteenth, Mrs. Anderson, using an iron, was bunkered on her second and finally lost the hole to Mrs. Federman's 4. Despite a hooked drive, Mrs. Federman halved the fourteenth with a 6 as Mrs. Anderson took three from the edge of the green, but the Cherry Valley player's 5 captured the fifteenth as her opponent, who overplayed, almost holed her 5, but her long putt hit the cup and stayed out.

Dormie three, Mrs. Federman ended the match rather sensationally at the short sixteenth. She pushed her tee shot in a bunker, and although Mrs. Anderson was only five yards from the pin, Mrs. Federman recovered from the trap and then holed a downhill sloping putt of twenty-five feet for a 3 which halved the hole as Mrs. Anderson's attempt for a two just slid by the cup.

Mlle. de la Chaume Captures Her Fifth French Golf Title

ST. GERMAIN, France, June 19 (AP).—Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume today won the French international golf championship for the fifth time, defeating Mlle. Diana Esmond of Chantilly in the final 36-hole match, 5 and 4.

Mlle. Thion de la Chaume blazed a brilliant trail through the tournament, which attracted a large field of international stars but which resolved itself into an all-French final. Of the English players, two reached the semi-finals, but there fell before the superb golf of their French opponents, Miss Fairbanks losing to Mlle. Thion de la Chaume, 4 and 3, and Miss Uthops bowing to Mlle. Esmond, 6 and 4.

CAVANAGH, WITH 72, LEADS FIELD OF 193

Special to The New York Times.

BAYSIDE, L. I., June 19.—The largest golfing army that has as yet competed in a one-day tournament in the metropolitan district played over the Oakland Club links today in a Long Island Golf Association event.

A total of 193 players teed off and it was after 7 o'clock tonight when the late starters finished. The honor of leading the record field went to Paul Cavanagh, the young Southward Ho star, who was runner-up to T. P. Perkins in the Lido invitation tourney.

Cavanagh won the low gross prize with a 72, one over par, with an outgoing nine-hole total of 33, three under par. E. H. Griffin of Brookville was second with a 75, while Don Richardt of Old County, and F. D. Carbone of Salisbury followed with 77s.

The first low net award went to Robert G. Lake of Old Country after he and William Chrystal Jr. of North Hempstead tied with 66 each. By matching cards Lake took the first prize and Chrystal the second, as the Old Country Club player had a 5 to Chrystal's 6 at the first hole. Lake's card was 78—12—66 and Chrystal's 82—16—66.

TITLE RECOGNITION GIVEN TO SCHMELING

MULDOON OPPOSES ACTION

3 Proposals to Thwart Move Fail—Board Proposes Return Match With Sharkey in September.

By a vote of two to one, the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday recognized Max Schmeling of Germany as the heavyweight champion of the world. This action was the sequel to the Schmeling-Jack Sharkey fight last week in which Schmeling was the winner on a foul in the fourth round.

Chairman James J. Farley and Commissioner John J. Phelan favored recognition of Schmeling as the successor of Gene Tunney, retired, while the dissenting vote was cast by William H. Muldoon, the third member of the board. The National Boxing Association previously recognized Schmeling as champion.

Whether the commission's action in declaring Schmeling champion will result in the German boxer's name being inscribed on the Muldoon-Tunney trophy is not known. The trophy committee, of which Bernard F. Gimbel is chairman, will decide this next week. Herbert Bayard Swope, a member of the committee, stated that he is opposed to placing Schmeling's name on the trophy, asserting Schmeling is only a "technical" champion.

Says Jacobs Influenced Referee.

Three motions were presented by Mr. Muldoon in his effort to keep the title from passing to Schmeling. He first moved to have the latter's victory overlooked, claiming that Jim Crowley, the referee, reversed his opinion as a result of apparent persuasion by Joe Jacobs, the German boxer's manager. But Commissioners Farley and Phelan objected, pointing out that the referee's decision was made in full accordance with the boxing rules; that he consulted the one judge that saw the foul before he declared Schmeling the winner.

Then Mr. Muldoon proposed that the bout be declared no contest, because of the turmoil and disorder in the ring from the time the foul blow was delivered until the moment the referee awarded the verdict to Schmeling. This suggestion was not favored, so the venerable commissioner set forth that since the heavyweight title was held by neither man before the bout, and that inasmuch as the title should be bestowed upon the boxer who unquestionably has proved himself the world's foremost boxer, the commission, acting as the representative of the people, should not allow the title to pass to one who has not proved himself a boxer of championship calibre.

After all of Mr. Muldoon's proposals failed Chairman Farley made a motion which was carried.

The resolution adopted follows:

"Resolved, That Max Schmeling be and is hereby accepted as heavyweight champion of the world, in view of the fact that the match was made with that understanding."

Phelan Votes With Farley.

Commissioner Phelan sided with Chairman Farley and his vote made possible the passing of the motion. Only the boxers, Schmeling and Sharkey, and their managers and representatives were at the meeting, besides the commissioners, and they accepted the commission's decision.

A suggestion was made by the commission that a return match between the fighters be held in September, and Sharkey expressed a marked willingness to comply. Jacobs, however, said that he would take the matter under advisement and would probably announce his plans today.

Sharkey offered to box for 12½ per cent of the gate receipts, allowing Schmeling the champion's end, 37½ per cent. The Boston heavyweight also declared that he was in favor of lowering the prices for the event.

Sharkey suggested an end to any foul controversy in the future by a "rain check" consideration for fans. He advocated that in the event of a foul, a return battle be staged on the succeeding night free of charge.

PAULINO OUTPOINTED BY RISKO IN DETROIT

DETROIT, June 19 (AP).—Johnny Risko, Cleveland, outpointed Paulino Uzcudun, heavyweight from Spain, in a main ten-round bout tonight. Risko weighed 199¾ pounds, Paulino 195½.

It was Risko's second decision victory over Paulino.

Only in the sixth round did the Basque show anything that disturbed the Cleveland boxer. In this session Paulino fought viciously, landing a stinging right and left to Risko's body.

It was only a momentary flash of his old-time skill, however, and Risko began just where he had left off in the fifth round, hammering Paulino at will. Risko landed three or four blows to every one the Basque could send through and consistently outspeeded and outsmarted his rival.

Knocks Out New Yorker in Fifth Round of Bout in Newark.

Joe Zelinsky, Binghamton middleweight, floored Izzy Grove of New York five times and finally stopped him in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round bout at Dreamland Park, Newark, last night. Grove weighed 160 pounds and Zelinsky 162. About 5,000 saw the bout.

In the opening scheduled ten-rounder Jay Macedon, South Orange, 145, knocked out Irish Johnny Curtin, 146, Jersey City, in the sixth round. Baby Joe Gans, California, 140, knocked out Paddy Creedon, 142, Union City, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-rounder.

BLUE LOSES FIRST EVENT

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—Starting tonight with the Harvard banner flying high in the air as a symbol of having won the first event, the crews of Yale and Harvard resumed their racing with each other. In the opening race of this sixty-sixth meeting of the two rivals in the past three-quarters of a century, Harvard's combination boat raced down stream over the upper two miles of the course to a clear-cut victory over Yale's boat.

Taking the lead from the start, the Crimson substitutes held to that lead and built up enough of it in the first part of the race to hold off Yale even after A. H. Parker Jr., the Harvard stroke, had rowed himself out and hung on by sheer courage through the closing stretches of the race. The winner's time was 11:40, with Yale about two lengths behind.

Rowed in the late afternoon after a torrential thunderstorm had held things up, the Crimson's victory was not unexpected. Harvard ruled the favorite in this race, as it does in the opening one tomorrow for the freshmen. Tonight there was never much doubt about the eventual winner after William A. Meikleham sent them away from Bartlett's Cove on the start of the journey.

There is not nearly enough interest in these races, for they are well rowed. But the main crowd waits until tomorrow and the three events ending with the final climax of the varsity race of the early evening.

Prepared for Celebration.

Yale is ruling the very strongest sort of a favorite. The Yale men who have been pouring into town all day and since early the night before are coming confidently prepared for another of the celebrations which they have been holding, with one exception, through the streets of this old town every year since 1920.

Out at Gales Ferry the Yale camp was crowded with visitors this morning as Referee Meikleham took the three boats out for practice starts. This afternoon, as the combination boat rowed away for the start of its race, there was a burst of cheering, and even its return defeated failed to cut the atmosphere of optimism.

At Harvard's Red Top camp there were plenty of visitors also, and the crew men themselves seemed to be in splendid shape physically and mentally. But there was a more dogged air and none of the jubilant optimism of Yale.

Tonight, with the hotel lobbies jammed, the streets filled with cars bearing license plates from a half dozen States, the consensus seemed to be that Yale was to be favored in the varsity and junior races and Harvard in the freshman.

Will Row Two Miles.

The answers to all this guessing will be written in the blue waters of the Thames, starting at 10 o'clock, Daylight Time, tomorrow morning. At that hour the freshmen will start their two-mile race downstream over the upper two miles of the course, to be followed a half hour later by the second crews.

Then will come the long wait for evening and the varsity event which is not due until 7:30 P. M. daylight time, also to be rowed downstream and over the full four miles from Bartlett's Cove to the bridge above New London.

As they have rowed here in training there can be only one reasonable favorite for the varsity event. This Yale crew, superbly stroked by Woodruff Tappen and with Captain Gus Blagden setting the starboard pace behind him, has been a thing of beauty the past few days.

When Yale finished its early Spring season there was a feeling that this crew was not quite as fast as last year's eight. But the men have come along beautifully down here and in this morning's light work the shell was riding along at a fine pace, the men rowing as smoothly and apparently as effortlessly as wound-up toys.

Men in Fine Shape.

Yale is sending to the race a typical Leader-coached crew, one that is very well perfected in the technical details of the thing. The men are in fine shape. Tappen appears in better condition than he has ever been. Rogers and Ladd, the two heavyweights of the middle of the boat, lend a terrific amount of power, but there is more of it present elsewhere. Garnsey and McCalmont, at 4 and 3, are a very powerful pair, though not so smooth as some of the others.

It is a veteran boat. Five of the men are seniors, rowing their last race for Yale. The others, including Bill Gillespie, the coxswain, are juniors.

Yale gives every indication of being a good many seconds faster than Harvard in the varsity event, perhaps four or five lengths. And this in spite of the fact that Harvard undoubtedly is sending a better varsity crew into action than was the case last year. It is simply that the Crimson is running into a fine crew, perhaps a great one.

The total poundage of the two crews is about the same as they rest on their oars tonight ready for the start. But Harvard has not given the impression of controlled power that is visible in the Yale shell. The men row well and with a fine spirit, but they do not give the feeling of the same amount of strength that is in the Yale craft.

The Crimson is to be stroked over the four miles by Franz Colloredo-Mannsfeld, who has set the pace in all of the races this year. He is within a pound of Tappen, but he does not seem to have the same length or the marvelous sense of rhythm which has made the Yale stroke such a fine pace-setter.

None of the men in the Harvard varsity has rowed a four-mile race with the exception of Captain Lawrence Dickey at 7 and Johnson, the biggest man in the boat, at 5. But there is real fight in this eight, fight of the racing sort, and if the men get their shell running properly they may surprise some of the thousands who have come prepared for a decisive Yale victory.

Harvard's junior varsity has been a more settled proposition during recent weeks than has Yale's, but the Blue boat is not a bad one by any means, and with quite a few veterans aboard is to be favored over the Crimson, though not by the margin at which the varsity is rated. The Harvard freshmen have been regarded as the best bet for the Crimson ever since they came into camp. But they have yet to go through a race in which they have been forced. They have made their undefeated record against crews which never pressed them.

Yale Cubs Have Improved.

Yale's youngsters have been through a very hard season, running into real opposition and losing. Since their arrival here for training they have improved a good deal and Fred Spuhn is sending out a good yearling eight to meet Bert Haines's Harvard boys. There is every expectation of a good race there, at least for a good part of the way.

Regardless of how the racing tomorrow turns out New London is again in the midst of its great holiday of the year. The streets of the town are reverberating with automobile horns as all of the local police and firemen, aided by State troopers, wrestle with the traffic. Cots have been put in all the hotel rooms in an effort to take care of the overflow and the river even tonight was a flaring stretch of marine color.

For the early part of the day a thick blanket of fog gripped the harbor and lower river. Through this the yachts crept, their fog sirens wailing and moaning, and when it lifted this afternoon nearly all of the last mile of the course was already lined with craft. Julius Fleischmann's black-hulled Camargo, which last Sunday took out the Yale oarsmen, was already set at the start of the last half mile, and surrounding her big black hull were dozens of other craft; including J. P. Morgan's new Corsair and the America's Cup yachts.

There is every expectation of the biggest fleet in this event's history and the yacht pilots have sensed this and moved up to anchorage much earlier than usual.

EWING'S GOAL WINS FOR EASTCOTT FOUR

By VERNON VAN NESS.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 19.—Eastcott scored a last-minute victory over the United States Army four on Mitchel Field today in the final first-round match of the Westbury challenge cup polo tournament. The score was 11 to 10.

With only thirty seconds to go and the score tied, Cyril Harrison, riding at 2 for Eastcott, made a 40-yard drive for the goal, but the shot was ten yards short. Captain C. A. Wilkinson was speeding upon the ball to send it away from the danger zone when Tommy Ewing Jr., Eastcott's hard-riding No. 1 man, came slashing up and smashed the ball between the posts for the deciding tally.

Ewing's timely hit ended a game that began slowly but finished in a blaze of brilliant shooting and fearless riding. Eastcott took a two-goal lead at the end of the second period but slowed down and missed many fine chances to score, getting only one more goal by the end of the fourth period, while the Army made 3 to draw within one goal of a tie. As the fifth period began it was apparent that both teams had succeeded in marshaling their team play, and from then on it was a real battle.

Entering the seventh period the Army four was trailing by 8 to 6, but when the session closed the Army had scored three times to make the count even at 9-all. By this time both teams were riding their hardest and displaying deadly mallet work.

Harrison missed a 60-yard shot, and then the Eastcott riders rode off Army and concentrated on a passing attack, with Harrison and Richards feeding the ball until Ewing had it centred and put it neatly between the posts.

Half a minute later Wilkinson, who had been doing yeoman's work all through the game, took a pass from Jones, rode the ball through two Eastcott defense men and smashed it home to deadlock the contest. Then came Ewing's deciding play.

The line-up:

POLO RESERVATIONS ESTABLISH RECORD

Although the international polo matches between England and the United States at Meadow Brook are still more than three months away, advance reservations are now more than three times greater than at any similarly early period for international matches, it was announced yesterday by F. S. O'Reilly, secretary of the United States Polo Association.

Besides a gratifying response from polo followers in the United States, Mr. O'Reilly stated that the reservations from England, France, Spain, Germany, Australia and the Argentine were numerous. Indeed, there were enough requests from South America alone to make the charter of a special ship probable to bring polo enthusiasts from that continent to New York.

The Hurlingham Club of England, too, will be well represented in the September matches and the possibilities are that several hundred will be present at the games from that group. So great has been the response of polo followers that a strong possibility exists that additions and enlargements will be made to the already spacious grandstands of International Field at Meadow Brook, where the contests will take place.

OARSMEN LARGER THAN IN OLD DAYS

Present College Crew Man Is Taller and Heavier Than His Predecessor.

By The Associated Press.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 19.—The present type of college oarsmen, encamped on the banks of the Hudson for the thirty-third annual intercollegiate regatta June 26, averages from five to fifteen pounds heavier and from an inch to three inches taller per man than his predecessor of pre-war days.

The present Naval Academy eight, for instance, is listed as averaging 183 pounds and 6 feet 1½ inches, whereas the Cornell crew of 1901, which set a course record that stood for twenty-seven years, registered only 165¼ pounds and 5 feet 9½ inches. Few of the famous Cornell crews were more than five or six pounds heavier.

Dick Glendon's 1930 Middies probably will reduce to around 179 or 180 by the time they go to the starting line, but, even at that, their physical advantage over the Cornellians of heroic memory is huge.

Virtually all of the crews in training here are up around the 176-pound mark. Cornell's present array, with a 6-foot 5-inch 200-pounder at the 6 oar, exceeds even the Navy in poundage. California, averaging 180 pounds and 6 feet 2 inches, has two men of 6 feet 4 inches or more in altitude.

Nowhere is the difference more marked than in the stroke oars, old style and new.

Jim Ten Eyck Jr., son of the famous Syracuse rowing coach, weighed 168 and measured 5 feet 8½ inches when he paced the Orange to victory in 1908 in one of the feature races rowed on this historic course.

Cornell in 1898 was stroked by E. A. Briggs, who was 25 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall and scaled only 138 pounds, although most of Courtney's stroke oars were around the 170-pound mark.

In this present age of beef and brawn in the pace-setter's seat, the only job that a man of Briggs's diminutive proportions could get in a Poughkeepsie varsity crew would be the coxswain's assignment. Compare his modest measurements, for example, with the 6 feet 4½ inches of Duncan Gregg, California stroke; the 190 pounds of burly H. E. Shelton, Navy pace-maker, or the bulk of big Bill Blesse of Columbia, 6 feet 3 inches and 190 pounds.

Yet, despite the great discrepancy in favor of the present generation, the records indicate considerable doubt as to whether the modern eights are faster. Of the six fastest winning times ever made over the four-mile Hudson River course, five were registered by Cornell crews between 1901 and 1912, although California's Olympic crew of 1928 holds the record.

WASHINGTON COACH MAKES TWO CHANGES

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 19.—With his Huskies the focal point of regatta interest today, Coach Al Ulbrickson handed race observers a severe jolt when he took two important cogs out of the machine that rowed a record-breaking race against Wisconsin on Tuesday. Odell went in at 7 and Alcorn at 4 in place of Litchfield and Morris, who were in the Washington varsity shell in the race at Madison.

This shift provided the chief interest in an otherwise dull day among the crews training for the I. R. A. regatta next Thursday.

With the arrival of the M. I. T. freshman eight today the full quota of twenty-three crews was reached and before the day ended all were on the water.

Arrival of the last of the crews was the signal for a general improvement in training conditions. The Hudson River, which had churned and foamed for almost a week to thwart any attempts at fair time tests, was calm and almost unruffled today. The wind, too, was negligible when the flotilla went out for its afternoon trials.

Two training problems appeared definitely settled today with the announcement from Coach Richard J. Glendon that Blesse was set as stroke of Columbia's first boat and the announcement from Rusty Callow that Thrasher will stroke the Penn varsity a week from tonight.

When Jim Wray took his Cornellians out on the water today Commodore Shoemaker, who was at stroke in the Ithacans' junior boat yesterday, was missing. Wray said that Shoemaker was not fit and probably would not appear in a shell again this year. Shoemaker suffered an injury several days ago and went back into the shell too soon.

Ky Ebright finally appeared satisfied with his Golden Bears today and for the first time in three days made no changes in his first California boat. He announced that the varsity oarsmen went over the course late last evening in average time. Although he announced no time, it was believed to be under twenty minutes.

Coach Mike Murphy's Wisconsin Badgers apparently have put their defeat earlier in the week by Washington well behind them. The only change in the varsity was a noticeable desire to get revenge, and Murphy and his oarsmen believe that a week of intensive practice may make it possible.

The Young Man Considers His Vacation

"Railroad tickets—accomodations —clothes." He must have some clothes. BEST'S, of course, for them. Ever since he was a small boy he has depended on Best's to give him the clothes he wanted, and now that he wears size 36 or 38 or 40 or 42—what satisfaction to know that Best's won't fail him! Styles that are right up to the moment but not extreme. Fabrics from the finest looms in this country and abroad. A precision of tailoring and fit that delight even his super critical eye. And what convenience to have everything right there together on the seventh floor . . .

RUTH'S NO. 22 HELPS YANKS BEAT TIGERS

WELLS RETIRES IN FIFTH

By JOHN DREBINGER.

Returning home from their triumphant procession through the West, the Yankees marched out on the green of the Stadium yesterday, bowed their acknowledgments to a gathering of 15,000 and forthwith bowled over the Tigers, vanguard of the West's second invasion of the Ruppert citadel, by a score of 5 to 4.

Accomplishing this admirable feat, however, was not quite so simple. In fact, it is even possible that it might nto have been accomplished at all had not Babe Ruth, along in the seventh inning, chosen to drop his twenty-second homer of the campaign into the well-populated right-field bleachers. That blow had a far-reaching influence.

At the time it fell, the Yanks were running in front, 4 to 3, so that for the moment it appeared merely ornamental and a sort of triumph for the great man over George Uhle, who in three previous innings had fanned the Babe in a most exasperating manner.

Tigers Score in Sixth.

But in the very next round, Vernon Gomez, who back in the sixth had replaced Eddie Wells as the Yankee hurler, allowed himself to get bumped for a run on a triple by McManus and a sacrifice fly by Alexander, so that from that moment on the Babe's circuit clout became a very important factor. Suffice it to say, young Gomez protected the margin to the end.

Wells, opening this game on the mound for Manager Shawkey, did a good job after going down for a short count and three runs in the second, but an annoying blister on his pitching hand forced his retirement in the fifth.

A triple by Uhle with two men on and a misplay by Chapman, who fumbled the relay on Uhle's long smack, accounted for the three Tiger runs.

This lead, however, the Yanks wiped out with rare swiftness. A pair of singles and a well-executed double steal by Lary and Lazzeri had given the Yanks one tally in the first and in the second they rushed Uhle for three more on an error by Koenig, a pass, a double by Combs and a pair of surprise bunts by Lary and Lazzeri that deftly inverted the Tiger infield on its head.

Rice Makes Stellar Catch.

It did not take Rice very long to put himself in solid in his new home surroundings. Making his first appearance as a Yank at the Stadium, the ex-Tiger threw the crowd in an uproar on the opening play of the day by racing clear to the running track in left centre to haul down Johnson's tremendous smash.

Manager Shawkey released Pitcher McEvoy on option to Oakland and then in something of an involved transaction obtained Outfielder Walker from the Greenville club, the Oakland club sending Pitcher Andrews to Birmingham. The key to this one is that Walker up to now had been the property of Birmingham.

In still another deal, the Yanks obtained Meryl Hoag, Sacramento outfielder, for cash and players, the latter, however, not to be announced until a later time, as Hoag will complete the season with Sacramento.

MACFAYDEN HURLS RED SOX TO VICTORY

Yields Only Three Hits, Two of Them Made by Goslin, in Defeating Browns.

BOSTON, June 19 (AP).—Danny MacFayden gave the St. Louis Browns only three hits today and the Red Sox won the first game of their series with the Westerners, 4 to 1. Two of the hits were by Goose Goslin, one a home run drive into the right field pavilion which saved Bill Killifer's outfit from a shutout.

The Red Sox collected eleven hits. Eight of them, and all of their runs, were made off Rip Collins in the first five innings. The game was errorless although it was played mostly during a drizzle.

ALEXANDER SIGNED TO PITCH FOR DALLAS

Will Receive More Than $1,500 Monthly, Record Salary for Texas League Player.

DALLAS, Texas, June 19 (AP).—Grover Cleveland Alexander, star right-hander of the National League for two decades, has been signed by the Dallas club of the Texas League, it was announced tonight by Bob Tarleton, vice president of the local club.

Tarleton said Alexander would receive the highest salary ever paid a player in the Texas League, something over $1,500 a month, for the rest of the season. Alexander, released unconditionally by the Philadelphia Nationals recently, is to report next Sunday or Monday.

Not counting his work with the Phils this year, Alexander has twirled 687 games in the National League, ranking second only to Walter Johnson, who has 802 contests to his credit. He led the league in low earned runs averaged for four years, 1915, 1917, 1919 and 1920.

MONTREAL WINS IN 12TH.

BALTIMORE, June 19 (AP).—Urbanski's freak home run in the twelfth inning with two men on base gave Montreal a 6 to 4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles today. The drive hit the fence near the foul line and bounded into the bleachers. Urbanski also starred in the field, accepting fifteen chances.

KOLP ADMINISTERS SHUTOUT TO ROBINS

Fielding Lapses Figure in Winners' Runs—Brooklyn Lead Cut to Two and Half Games.

By ROSCOE McGOWEN.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—Ray Kolp, red-headed right-hander of the Reds, shut out the Robins while his mates were accumulating five runs off Señor Adolfo Luque, and Brooklyn lost the first game of their second Western invasion, 5-0, today. Kolp held the Flatbush sluggers to seven widely scattered hits and on two occasions with two Robins on base slipped over strikeouts to retire the side.

The Robins' slow and erratic fielding improved every scoring opportunity the Reds had. Errors charged to Jake Flowers and Del Bissonette figured directly in the scoring and a pair of potential double plays that became mere forceouts at second also had some bearing on the situation.

Even Johnny Frederick failed to haul down two long flies from the bats of Leo Durocher and Kolp and they dropped safely over his head for two-base hits. In the first instance a tally resulted.

Luque Makes Wild Pitch.

Luque added to the hilarity of the sparse crowd of fans by making a wild pitch in the third inning which let in a run. Luque covered the plate to take Lopez's return of the pitch and insisted he had tagged Sukeforth, but Umpire Moran ruled otherwise.

Luque collected a pair of singles off Kolp before being removed in the seventh for a pinch hitter, but his mates, outside of Babe Herman, gave him little support at bat. Morrison pitched the last two innings and was not scored on.

The Robins were left stranded on the paths, as every hitter failed in the pinch to solve Kolp's delivery. Thirteen flies were sent into the gloves of the outfielders, Bob Meusel in centre getting seven putouts—one more than Kelly made at first base.

Durocher Makes Fine Catch.

A fourteenth fly was taken by the fleet-footed Durocher, who in the sixth scampered far into centre field to nab Herman's high one. All of which gives ample indication of the excellent pitching Kolp turned in.

Today's defeat, with the Cubs' victory over the Braves, cut the Robins' league lead to two and one-half games, a condition not at all pleasing to Manager Wilbert Robinson, who had confidently expected to improve his club's standing at the expense of the tail-end Reds.

NEWCOMERS STAR AS SENATORS WIN

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—The newcomers on the Washington baseball team made themselves right at home today. Art Shires, Heinie Manush and Alvin Crowder introduced themselves to the home fans by contributing strongly to the Senator's 3—1 victory over the White Sox.

Shires, playing his first game with the Senators, got three hits out of four trips to the plate, batted in a run and was on the end of two fast double plays. Manush got two singles in three attempts and Crowder let the Sox down with four scattered hits and a lone tally.

Chicago scored its one run in the fourth on a long homer by Reynolds.

CUBS' EARLY DRIVE CONQUERS BRAVES

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP).—A vicious assault on Socks Siebold in the first two innings, which included home runs by Hack Wilson, Woody English and Kiki Cuyler, and excellent pitching by Guy Bush gave the Cubs a 10 to 4 victory today.

The Cubs amassed their lead off Seibold, but were tamed by Willie Sherdel, who replaced Seibold. He pitched the rest of the game for Boston. Bush held the Braves to six hits, four of which were bunched in the eighth for three runs. The Braves' eighth inning rally included a homer by Buster Chatham.

GROVE IS HIT HARD, BUT STOPS INDIANS

VICTORS GAIN EARLY LEAD

Score Two Runs in First Inning—Hodapp Connects for Blow in 22d Straight Game.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19 (AP).—The world's champion Athletics bunched their hits effectively against Willis Hudlin today and took their second straight from the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 2. The defeat was the fifth in a row for the losers.

A two-run attack in the opening inning gave the Mackmen a lead the Indians were never able to overcome, though they outhit the victors by 11 to 8. Lefty Grove went the route for the Athletics, winning his ninth game of the season.

By rapping a single through McNair in his third time at bat, Johnny Hodapp ran his hitting streak to twenty-two consecutive games.

LEAFS GET 4 RUNS IN 4TH

Al Mamaux and Ed Harvin were both hit hard by the victors, while Frank Barnes, who hurled for the Leafs, allowed only three safeties during the first seven innings.

In the fourth inning an error by James paved the way for a batting bee by the Leafs. Four hits, coupled with a perfect double steal by Manager O'Neill and Pitcher Barnes, gave the visitors four runs.

The Bears escaped a shutout by scoring twice in the eighth and once in the ninth. Harry Layne, after going hitless for five games, drove a homer.

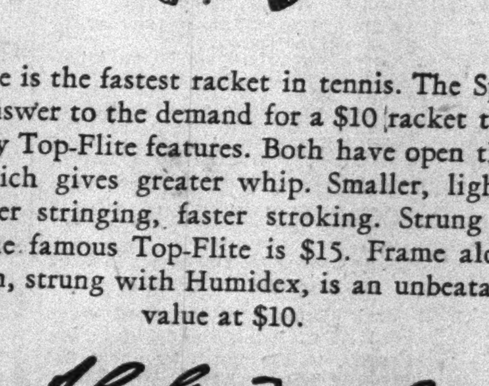
Have you met these famous brothers?



The Top-Flite is the fastest racket in tennis. The Speedwin is Spalding's answer to the demand for a $10 racket that would embody many Top-Flite features. Both have open throat construction which gives greater whip. Smaller, lighter heads permit tighter stringing, faster stroking. Strung with the finest gut, the famous Top-Flite is $15. Frame alone $8.50. The Speedwin, strung with Humidex, is an unbeatable racket value at $10.

Spalding White Flannels are correct for both dress and tennis. Made of the finest materials. Roomy but not baggy. $10.

Morshion and Mate Run Dead Heat in Fifth at Aqueduct

MATE AND MORSHION RUN A DEAD HEAT

BEST MAN, 12 TO 1, SCORES

Annexes Speculation Claiming by Beating Coin Collector—Kildare, Favorite, Is Fourth.

By BRYAN FIELD.

The first dead heat of the 1930 metropolitan season was run at Aqueduct yesterday when A. C. Bostwick's Mate and Benjamin Block's Morshion came to the wire so close together that the judges could not separate them and the double ciphers were posted on the board to indicate equal honors.

In the whole of North America there were only two dead heats in 1929, one at Empire City on July 24 between Prince Toy and Night Extra and the other two later in Hastings, British Columbia, when Wooly Meteor and Thistle Glad could not be separated.

Sonny Workman rode Mate and George Ellis was up on Morshion and both received a warm reception from the crowd when they saluted together at the stewards' stand.

For those who wager on the races the admirers of Mate will come off the better, as he was 9 to 2 in the betting against the 11 to 10 which made Morshion the hot favorite.

Favorites Fare Poorly.

The favorites did poorly again yesterday, and one wag remarked that a public choice was lucky to get into a dead heat. Morshion and Mate met in the fifth race and up to that time Voltear was the only favorite to win and he had broken a sequence of nine losing choices that had lasted since the last race on Tuesday.

Morshion under 119 pounds had a pound the worst of the weights, but as the race was run Mate was far the better horse. The barrier failed to work smoothly on his end and he was the extreme outsider in the field of eight. Morshion, on the other hand, had a good post position and was away like a flash. Mate was slowest of all to get under way, but he rapidly cut down the advantage of the leaders.

He raced up on the others and at the elbow was in a contending position. Morshion was still several lengths ahead, but Mate wore away this margin as the stretch run continued. Ellis came out of his course with Morshion, and Mate had to cover extra ground to avoid interference.

Voyage, Favorite, Is Fourth.

He continued to gain and fifty yards from the wire poked his nose in front. Ellis got another notch of speed out of Morshion, however, and at the wire she was on even terms. Ellis was set down by the stewards for five days on account of his ride. The time of the race was 1:00 1-5. George D. Widener's Condescend was third.

Following the dead heat, Voyage, favorite in the nightcap, ran fourth, giving the favorites one victory and a half on the day.

The richest race of the afternoon was the Speculation Claiming Handicap, worth $4,300. The Wheatley Stable's Best Man, winner of the Rockaway Claiming Stakes at long odds last Thursday, came rolling down to the finish first to pay 12 to 1. With Jimmy Burke riding, he beat Coin Collector by two lengths. Imperial Air was third, forcing Kildare, the favorite, out of the money.

Parke, Once Star Jockey, Wins Aqueduct Chase in Comeback

Ivan Parke, well known as a leading jockey some years ago, returned to the saddle in the second race at Aqueduct yesterday. Parke was a flat-riding star when he was known to thousands of racegoers of old, but came back yesterday as a steeplechaser rider. Increasing weight caused the shift. Parke had the leg up on the Greentree Stable's Bold Knight, and despite the fact that it was his first race through the field he got his horse home a winner. Parke was praised for his victory, particularly as he still is a bit green and nearly was unseated at three jumps.

Principio suffered interference at the elbow.

LORD DERBY'S ENTRY CAPTURES GOLD CUP

KING APPLAUDS VIGOROUSLY

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—Under brilliant skies in contrast to yesterday's deluge, Lord Derby's Bosworth captured the Gold Cup at Ascot by a length this afternoon. This was the first time in his long career as a racehorse owner that Lord Derby won the famous trophy. The French colt Hotweed was second and Lord Roseberry's The Bastard third.

It took more than thunderstorms to prevent the women from wearing their Ascot frocks, and in spite of the hundreds of dresses ruined in yesterday's downpour, there again was a parade of shimmery creations, although they were less in evidence than on the preceding day. The course was refreshened in great fashion, due to an army of workmen toiling all night. However, the course was still too soft to permit the royal procession. The King and Queen arrived by motor from Windsor.

The Gold Cup was a slowly run race, with J. B. Joel's 5-year-old Friendship leading Bosworth and The Bastard. Friendship eventually was beaten and Bosworth took the lead just before the field entered the straightaway. Hotweed, a joint favorite with Bosworth, came along on the outside. Bosworth had to be driven hard, but ran gamely to hold the French entry, and won by a length.

Lord Derby was very happy as he returned to the paddock beside his horse and was scarcely able to cope with all the hand shakes.

"I am pleased beyond measure," he said. "This is the first time my family ever won this race."

The King vigorously applauded the victory.

Gentleman's Relish, which was third in the Manchester Cup, won by four lengths from Boldero in the first race, the Bess Borough Stakes. There was a surprise in the Churchill Stakes, which an outsider, Putney, annexed by three lengths from Luffness.

Déolite, the past Derby favorite, was beaten into third place by Stingo and Friar Vine in the Fernhill Stakes. The crowd received a big thrill in the Granville Stakes when Cedarwood, which had slipped smartly away to the front, was caught in the last stride by The Washer.

JONES STOPS LEWIS IN COLLEGE TENNIS

Columbia Star Wins, 6-3, 6-2, to Reach Semi-Finals in Eastern Intercollegiates.

SELIGSON ALSO ADVANCES

Conquers Bayon, 6-3, 6-2, to Gain at Crescent A. C. Along With Dworkin and Sutter.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

The esteem in which David Jones of Columbia has been held for the past two seasons as the finest tennis prospect on Morningside Heights since the days of Jerry Lang and Frank Anderson was considerably heightened yesterday when the young convert from the ranks of the Blue and White oarsmen defeated Elbert Lewis of the University of California, Los Angeles Branch, in the Eastern intercollegiate championships at the Crescent A. C. in Bay Ridge.

Opposed to the holder of the Pacific Coast intercollegiate title, a player who had given evidence of sound training in the fundamentals, the stalwart Columbian turned loose the full power of his stylish strokes and went straight forward to victory at 6—3, 6—2.

Except at the very outset, when he was overhitting the baseline and fell behind at 0—2, there was never any question as to the adequacy of Jones's weapons. His length on both forehand and backhand left little to be desired and that little was made up for by the pacefulness of his drives, while the smoothness and facility with which he handled himself and his racquet at the next afforded few openings.

Sutter to Play Dworkin.

This victory put Jones into the semi-finals and there he was joined by Julius Seligson of Lehigh, Leonard Dworkin, team-mate of Lewis, and Clifford Sutter of Tulane. This afternoon Sutter will meet Dworkin and Seligson will oppose Jones, the play starting at 2:30.

Seligson, with his ground strokes functioning in their best manner, accounted for Maurice Bayon of Tulane at 6—3, 6—2. Bayon attacked with the utmost aggressiveness and employed the greater variety of strokes, but for all his activity and devices he could make little headway in the face of Seligson's sharp-shooting returns.

Sutter gained his bracket at the expense of Clifford Robbins of California, Los Angeles Branch, in a match that failed to come up to expectations. For the first set the play was of a high order, with Robbins hitting brilliantly from the forehand and Sutter working his way forward to get in his most telling blows. But after winning the chapter at 6—4, Sutter lost his control and his keenness and seemed content to concentrate on his service games.

Wins His Own Game.

Robbins had an excellent opportunity to square matters, but he too lost something in accuracy. The play was on even terms to 5—all, when Sutter broke through and then won his own game to end the match at 6—4, 7—5.

Raymond Stone of Columbia made a surprisingly good showing in losing to Dworkin at 6—4, 6—3 and might have done even better had he made the most of his assets. The hitting on both sides was sharp and clean-cut, with Dworkin holding a slight edge in accuracy, and both youths gave an excellent account of themselves at the net.

One team gained the final of the doubles. Bayon and Sutter advanced by putting out Stanley Harte and Walter Swaybill of N. Y. U., 6—3, 6—4, 1—6, 6—1. This afternoon, following the singles, Jones and Stone will face Robbins and Lewis in the other semi-final.

Tulane is leading in the competition for the point trophy with 17 points. Columbia and California, Los Angeles Branch, have amassed 15 each, and Lehigh is fourth with 7. Stanford, N. Y. U. and St. John's have 5 each; Harvard has 4; Rutgers 3, and the following have one each; Princeton, Long Island University, C. C. N. Y. and Rutgers.

MRS. KETTLES HURT WHEN PONIES BOLT

FINGHIN OG TAKES BLUE

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., June 19.—Mrs. Richard F. Kettles of Brookville, L. I., had a fortunate escape this afternoon while driving the harness ponies of her father, Charles F. Hubbs, in the show ring of the Huntington Bay Club.

She had the lines over the roan gelding Blaze of Glory and the roan mare Morning Glow, competitors in the class for pairs of harness ponies not over 14.2 hands in one of the afternoon events of the first day of the tenth annual Huntington Horse Show.

While making a turn of the ring with three others, Blaze of Glory—ordinarily the milder mannered of the two—kicked over the dashboard of the little road cart, cutting himself slightly.

Pain and excitement caused the pair to become unmanageable and they bolted. At the turn of the ring they crashed into the rails, breaking the lower panel and throwing Mrs. Kettles through. She escaped with only slight bruises. Blaze of Glory and Morning Glow, after somewhat wrecking their wagon, were caught and then withdrawn.

Star Shot-Trillo Shot.

Mrs. R. J. Goodman of Hartford, Conn., had her famous little pair, the brown gelding Star Shot and the black gelding Trillo Shot, going at their best, and they easily carried off the blue. Mrs. Marvin Y. Bell was up behind the Linger Long Farm's pair of browns, Saint and Sinner, and she drove them to gain the red over Mrs. Spencer O. Shotter's veteran chestnut mares, Moonlight and Moonbeam.

The new limited class for hunters and jumpers brought out a strong class, conditions providing that no exhibitor could enter more than two, this serving to keep the entry to reasonable proportions. At that, more than a score went after the money, and as it was a sweepstakes, a victory was distinctly worth while.

Walter Schiffer jumped the Walken Farm's Irish hunter Finghin Og without a mistake the first time around and Coolidge Chapin showed his gray mare, Grey Miss, in a faultless performance. They jumped off for first and the former won. Third went to Bernard F. Gimbel's black gelding, Black Eagle, ridden by Miss Caral Gimbel, and fourth to George A. Hurley's Sporting Chance.

Golden Fruit Triumphs.

Conformation decided the awards in the event for thoroughbred hunters, Mrs. John C. Loud had a clean performance with her chestnut gelding, Little Jeff, as did Minot Howard with his chestnut mare, Katinka, but first money fell to Mrs. Congreve Jackson of Westbury with her upstanding bay gelding, Golden Fruit, a 4-year-old. Little Jeff was second and Thomas N. McCarter Jr.'s Gay Danger, third, while fourth was the best Katinka could claim.

There was a big field of novice jumpers, with the blue falling to the bay gelding, The Boss, shown by Harvey S. Ladew of Brookville, L. I., which also carried off first money in a small class of heavyweight hunters.

Sports of the Times

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By JOHN KIERAN.

EARLY rumors from Hoylake had it that Bob Jones started badly on his second round. He was two strokes over par at the end of three holes. That's bad for him. Still, he managed to limp home with a 72. He took it philosophically.

Some violin instructors make their pupils play with a book under the bowing arm to develop technique. Perhaps that's the way they ought to make this Jones boy play golf. Not to develop technique, but just to give the other fellows a chance. Either that, or they might ask him as a matter of common courtesy to balance a sack of oats on one shoulder while hitting all shots through the fairway.

When the second round started Robert the Robot, golf's mechanical man, was tied with Macdonald Smith and Henry Cotton. Mac Smith, a product of Carnoustie, tied for the national open championship with his brother Alex and Johnny McDermott at the Philadelphia Cricket Club in 1910, at which time Robert Tyre Jones Jr. was just 8 years old. So Mac can be counted a hardened veteran. Henry Cotton is one of England's younger hopes on the links and a very good player.

Thus Jones went off on even terms with a sturdy veteran and a rising youngster. He came in far ahead of both. To a limited extent, both "blew," but not so far that they haven't a chance to come back.

The Third Round.

Over here there is a curious belief, not entirely supported by mathematical evidence, that Jones usually wins his open victories with his third rounds. If that's any comfort to those who are trailing him at the end of the second round, they can absorb it in large, healthy doses.

It's true that Jones frequently slipped on the last round, but that may have been because he was always up with the leaders, and most of the leaders slipped to some extent under the mental strain of the last round play. The fellows who are trailing have nothing much to worry about. They bang away in free and easy style, and that's why so many of them flash brilliant final rounds to cut in on the money prizes.

However, there is always the chance that what can be gained in two rounds can be lost in two rounds, or vice versa. Or even in one round. Cyril Tolley played his second round in 71, which was exactly thirteen strokes better than his first round. That first round of 84 put Cyril James Hastings Tolley, the Porthos of the links, out of the title hunt, but his second round shows what a difference just twenty-four hours can make in the matter of scoring at golf.

Rapid-Fire Duncan.

The last time George Duncan was over here, it was evident that he was over the crest and on the slippery downgrade. Too bad. His 85 in the first round at Hoylake was added evidence that the once brilliant Scot is now out of the running.

An attractive feature of Duncan's playing in his palmy days was the lack of flummery, deliberation, preparatory surveys, swings and gestures. He just walked up and hit the ball. Sometimes he went along so fast he seemed to be hitting it on the run. He played golf in polo style. Doubtless he held all speed records for top-flight players.

These deliberate players, no matter how good they may be, give most spectators what is technically known in medical circles as "the willies." There should be a law permitting any spectator to shoot a player, no matter how prominent, after his twenty-eighth waggle. George Duncan held to the heights for years and probably didn't average one waggle per year.

Simple Styles.

For that matter, Bob Jones doesn't go in for waggles. He may study a shot for a moment or two before he takes out a club, but otherwise his motions are simple and direct.

On the tee Jones puts down his wooden peg, places the ball on it, addresses the club lightly and hits the ball. That's all there is to it. No waggle. Occasionally, a short practice swing, but not very often.

Horton Smith is another simplified golfer. He doesn't waste time or energy in preliminary motions. Many years ago we sent over a golfer who played in the British amateur along with Francis Ouimet, Jerry Travers, Chick Evans and Johnny Anderson. He did well, too, and lasted longer in the tournament than any of his more famous (and more skillful) teammates, but they still preserve in British clubs the cartoons that were drawn of this chap in action. One famous cartoon showed him studying the line of putt on a green with cobwebs over the hole and his opponent, the caddies, the officials and all the spectators fast asleep around him.

Chips and Putts.

The rain that fell at Hoylake should help the players from this side of the Atlantic. Our players are used to greens that are watered daily, while in Great Britain it is considered the height of luxury to have all the greens piped. If it doesn't rain, the greens become hard and keen. British golfers are accustomed to such conditions, whereas our players are not.

Leo Diegel is in a favorable position. He may unleash one of his startling rounds today, and no better time could be picked out for such a performance. Where Leo usually goes wrong is in flashing his best round too soon. In four rounds he should produce one 70, and he hasn't done it yet, which is a good omen. His 70 in the qualifying round should not be counted. In fact, it won't be counted, no matter what happens.

Arnaud Massey, who had a total of 159 for two rounds, is the same Arnaud Massey who won the British open championship at Hoylake in 1907, or just twenty-three years ago. That speaks well for Arnaud and for golf, too.

Incidentally, Monsieur Massey is the only Frenchman ever to win the British open championship. He learned his golf in England, however, serving his term as clubmaker and assistant under one of the famous British professionals. Just which one escapes memory at the moment.

Except for George Von Elm, who skidded badly, all the players from this side of the water who were expected to do well are perched in prominent positions at Hoylake. Bob Jones and Horton Smith are leading our delegation, enabling entirely too many people to say in loud, clear tones: "I told you so!" It doesn't seem possible that golf can continue to run that true to form. Look out below!

BOWMAN TRIUMPHS IN EASTERN TENNIS

Beats Aydelotte, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, to Reach Semi-Finals in Clay Court Play.

Bowman, the defending champion, who has two legs on the cup as the result of victories in 1927 and 1929, advanced another step toward gaining permanent possession of the trophy in the Eastern clay courts men's tennis singles championship tournament by defeating William Aydelotte in their quarter-final match at the New York A. MANGIN BEATS DOEG IN TENNIS UPSET

ALLISON GAINS SEMI-FINAL

Advances by His Victory Over McCauliff, Also of the United States, by 6-2, 6-4.

LONDON, June 19 (AP).—John Doeg, member of the United States Davis Cup team, today was eliminated from the London lawn tennis championship by Gregory Mangin, America's No. 10 ranking player. The score was 7—5, 6—1.

Doeg, who was made a strong favorite to win the title after Bill Tilden had withdrawn, was erratic throughout and seemed somewhat upset by several line decisions. The defeat of America's southpaw star came as a surprise, as Doeg ranks No. 3 in the United States.

Wilmer Allison, also a member of the United States Davis Cup squad, entered the semi-final round in the top quarter of the draw by defeating E. H. McCauliff, a fellow-American, 6—2, 6—4. Many of the prominent players withdrew from the tournament because of bad weather and preoccupations about Wimbledon.

Allison to Play Moon.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 19 (AP).—An international duel between Wilmer Allison of the United States Davis Cup forces and E. F. Moon of the Australian team heads the list of feature matches announced today for the opening of the British tennis championships on Monday.

On the No. 1 court H. Satoh, Japan, is pitted against Lyttleton Rogers, the towering Irish player; John Doeg, United States, vs. Nigel Sharpe, Britain; Jean Borotra, France, vs. F. Crosbie, Ireland, and William Tilden, United States, vs. Dr. A. A. Fyzee, India.

SERVICE CHARGE UP AT GAS HEARING

CITY HOLDS IT FORBIDDEN

Counsel Asserts Proposed "Initial" Charge Is Same Thing—Protest to Governor Is Read.

An attempt by Maurice Hotchner, special counsel for the city, to force Edward L. Cheney, expert witness for the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, to give a definition of a "service charge" provoked a discussion yesterday at the continuation of the rehearing before the Public Service Commission on the company's application for an initial charge of 95 cents for the first 200 cubic feet of gas. Mr. Cheney admitted that the same method of computing costs would be used as a basis for a service charge as for an initial charge.

The gas company maintains that the 95-cent rate would not be a service charge as defined by law, but merely an initial charge, while the city contends that the rate is really a service charge and, therefore, forbidden by law.

"As I understand it," Mr. Cheney said, "a service charge is a charge made per customer per month separate from any charge for the quantity used or for any other purpose. That is my understanding of it. The term 'service charge' is used rather loosely."

Dr. John Bauer, city expert, asked whether the same method of computing costs would be used by Mr. Cheney if he were asked to lay a basis for either a service charge or an initial charge, and Mr. Cheney said it would, adding:

"The cost of supplying a customer with gas is the same no matter for what purpose you wish to use the cost figures."

Mr. Hotchner also sought to show that Mr. Cheney had erred in his previous testimony that the cost of supplying gas to apartment dwellers was relatively high compared to the cost of supplying private homes. Mr. Cheney explained that bookkeeping costs for apartments were higher because tenants constantly were moving.

A letter to Governor Roosevelt censuring Public Service Commission decisions was made public at the close of the afternoon hearing by Jacob Brenner, attorney of the Ridgewood Taxpayers' Association. It was signed by Robert J. Schneider, chairman of the association, and, after charging a general attempt by utility companies to increase rates, it criticized the action of the Public Service Commission in the recent rate increases of the New York Telephone Company. It demanded an investigation to determine "why increases are made so frequently."

STOCKBRIDGE PREDICTS NEWSPAPERS BY RADIO

Veteran of Journalism Forecasts to Editorial Association Changes Due in Fifty Years.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 19 (AP).—Frank Parker Stockbridge, veteran of fifty years in journalism, today looked fifty years into the future and gave his forecast of what the newspaper of that day may be like.

Drawing on recent scientific achievements as the basis for his picture, he told the National Editorial Association that the horoscope hints at these things:

The editor will receive his quota of general news, general advertising, pictures and features by radio, in facsimile, automatically, by means of machines.

He will set his own local advertisements, "perhaps by methods which we have not even guessed at."

His local news and comment will be written by his reporters, subeditors and correspondents, each of whom will operate a keyboard either in the office or miles away, the impulses of which will put what is written in type.

The pages of the paper will be transmitted by radio to subscribers and reproduced on sensitized paper.

"All the subscriber will see will be the completed paper rolling out of the machine, ready for him to take it out and read it."

Mr. Stockbridge, editor of The American Press, predicted an alliance between radio and the newspapers in the new day, but expressed belief that radiocasting of news as now carried on—read by an announcer—never can supplant the printed page.

PACKING CONCERNS GET $14,700,000 TAX REFUND

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Seventeen tax refunds, which with interest aggregated more than $14,70,000, in favor of Swift and Company; Libby, McNeill and Libby, and affiliated companies of Chicago, and other corporations, were announced today by Robert H. Lucas, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

All the refunds were based on decisions in the Court of Claims in suits of the Swift and Libby corporations against the government. The court ruled for the corporations that the returns might be made on a calendar year basis for 1918, and that the net loss provision of the 1918 revenue act was applicable to the income of these companies.

The net loss clause provided that losses in 1919 during the deflation period were deductible on income tax returns for 1918. In 1919 the Swift Corporation broke up. It had had a large number of subsidiaries the previous year, and the question was raised whether in such a case the net loss provision would apply. The government contended that it could not, and also that the corporations must make fiscal year returns.

The refunds and interest to the corporations were as follows:

Libby, McNeill & Libby and affiliated companies, $3,727,035.
Plankington Packing Company, Milwaukee, $1,543,797.
Omaha Packing Company, Chicago, $836,609.
G. H. Hammon Company, Chicago, $624,094.
W. F. Priebe Company, Chicago, $121,777.
Consumers Cotton Oil Mills, Nathan B. Higbie et al., trustees, Chicago, $100,407.
J. J. Harrington & Co., Inc., New York, $94,472.
National Calfskin Company, Boston, $91,985.
Swift & Co., Chicago, $68,915.
E. K. Pond Company, Chicago, $48,850.
National Leather Company, Chicago, $53,215.

Tax adjustments in favor of New York clients were:

Detective Tunney Is Cleared.

Detective Thomas P. Tunney, brother of the retired heavyweight champion boxer, was cleared yesterday by Police Commissioner Mulrooney of a charge that he had been "apparently suffering from some intoxicating agent" when he was found slumped over the wheel of his automobile while off duty April 25. Commissioner Mulrooney made no comment. Testimony at Tunney's trial before Deputy Commissioner Ruttenberg was that the detective had been suffering from indigestion and had fainted.

Accumulating A Surplus

It is the aim of prudent individuals, as well as firms and corporations, to accumulate a substantial surplus. Any part of such surplus invested in sound securities not only earns a good rate of interest, but also evidences a commendable financial policy.

General Recovery in Stocks—Time Money Rates Decline, Reserve Bank Rate Cut.

The recovery on the Stock Exchange was the paramount matter of interest to Wall Street yesterday; it proved that, at all events, a fall in prices of such exceptional suddenness and violence as that of the past two weeks could not long continue the pace. Wednesday's precipitous decline was plainly the signal for the "supporting orders" whose absence, during the preceding series of unsettled days, had been the chief source of misgiving. Some of the orders, under which yesterday's market recovered most of the ground lost in the preceding day's decline, doubtless represented purchases occasioned by the much more inviting scale of prices. Some of them as surely indicated speculative buying for a "turn" in a market where upward reaction seemed inevitable. How large a part each class of buying played, and how far it was emphasized by repurchases by speculative sellers, the market's course in the next few weeks will determine.

What was in some respects the most striking incident of the day occurred after the Stock Exchange had closed. The New York Reserve Bank's reduction of its official rate to 2½ per cent was notable as fixing the lowest rate in the institution's history. Hitherto 3 per cent, as established between August, 1924, and February, 1925, and repeated between May 1 and the present week, has been the historic minimum. It is possible that the very low rate fixed yesterday may have been designed in a general way to help the country's flagging trade; it may possibly have had in consideration the question of the foreign exchanges, as the usual season for a fall in sterling is at hand. The new rate is lower than that of the Bank of England. Except for Paris, which itself fixed 2½ per cent on May 1, it is now the lowest bank rate in the world.

But the Reserve Bank's action in reality reflects the general state of the money market, both in this country and abroad. Wall Street time money and commercial paper rates are close to the lowest figures reached at any time since the war, and the movement this week has been downward. That decline, however, has clearly reflected the greatly reduced requirements of both trade and finance, a change equally indicated by the drastic cut in European bank rates. There is no prospect that Reserve Bank credit will be diverted at these low rates into speculative loans. Yesterday's brokers' loan account reported a decrease of $211,000,000 for the week and of $487,000,000 since the end of April; stock market liquidation has cared for that. The report showed further heavy reduction in the account of other than banking lenders, which now stands $2,910,000,000 below its maximum of Oct. 9.

Recoveries on the Stock Exchange yesterday ran to 10 points or more in a number of active shares. Not all of them regained the full loss of the preceding day, but the upward reaction was substantial throughout the market, and in the main the day's improvement was maintained up to the close. There was no reason to suppose that the turn on the Stock Exchange had any reference to outside news, except for the fact that the recent fall in stocks might properly be construed as having "overdiscounted" even continuing disappointment in the field of trade. The New York stock market has got so completely into the habit of responding with excessive and often hysterical violence to indicated business changes, whether good or bad, that it is quite impossible to accept its extreme movements as a measure of probable outside developments. The wheat market barely held its ground in the movement of prices yesterday; cotton recovered somewhat sharply; the metal markets were unsettled. There may be good reason to consider the recent fall in commodity prices, like the recent fall in stocks, as having been altogether too violent to continue.

SUIT SEEKS TO BLOCK AMERICAN CABLE SALE

Trustees of Minority Stock Ask Receiver to Prevent Western Union Deal.

A minority stockholders' suit to prevent the Western Union Telegraph Company from taking over the property of the American Telegraph & Cable Company, in which it owns three-fifths of the stock, and from dissolving the cable company, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday. The action is brought by trustees under the will of John A. Sutton, owner of 1,400 of the 140,000 shares in the cable company, having a total value of $14,000,000.

The plaintiffs ask for the appointment of a receiver, an order to compel the telegraph company to turn over all the property of its subsidiary to the receiver and also an injunction restraining the dissolution.

The plaintiffs allege that the Western Union leased the cable company's property at $700,000 a year to pay 5 per cent on the capital and $2,500 a year for maintaining it as a corporation, and that on March 21 by "wrongful and improper exercise" of its control, voted to take over the cable company's property for $2,030,000 in cash and an agreement to pay all the cable company's debts and taxes.

The complaint charges that this agreement was in fraud of the stockholders of the cable company and that the consideration for the transfer was "unfair and inadequate," was a breach of trust, and a step in pursuance of a scheme of the telegraph company to acquire the cable company's property for a "grossly inadequate" sum.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Extending the recovery which started in the late dealings on Wednesday, the stock market acted yesterday in such a manner as to cause dismay among speculators for the decline. At the same time, those patient holders of stocks who clung to their position throughout the recent wide declines were able to breathe easy for the first time. The general list on the Stock Exchange rallied briskly, showing net gains of from a fraction to 14 points. Trading contracted sharply, however, aggregating only 3,762,500 shares, compared with 6,425,630 shares the day before. Selling pressure was withdrawn and the partial recovery was easily accomplished. United States Steel led the upturn, and it was followed by such pivotal stocks as American Can, Standard Oil of New Jerssey, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, du Pont, Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical and New York Central.

Federal Reserve Statement.

In view of the present low volume of discounting, which was $24,078,000 in yesterday's statement of the Federal Reserve Bank, compared with $251,656,000 in the corresponding week of last year, it is not surprising that the bank felt impelled to lower its rate to 2½ per cent. The reduction in discounts in the last week amounted to $4,063,000, while bill holdings, despite the lower bill-buying rate put into force early in the week, fell off $5,079,000. Increased holdings of United States Government securities, which rose $10,946,000, reflecting the remnants of the treasury overdraft, offset these declines and brought about an expansion of $1,304,000 in the amount of Federal Reserve credit which the New York bank has outstanding.

Interpreting the Change.

It was to be expected that some sections of Wall Street, in view of the prevailing gloom, would look upon the reduction in the rediscount rate as a further confirmation of the parlous state of business. This viewpoint was disputed by bankers as much too short-sighted. The depression in business, they remarked, was too widely recognized for there to be any need of a change in discount rate to emphasize it. The rate in effect recognizes a condition in the money market which has obtained for several weeks. Obviously it is designed to help business and, if experience is worth anything, cheap money should ultimately bring about an upturn. So low a rate as 2½ per cent can hardly be expected to remain unchanged long, it is suggested. When business once begins to pick up, an early return to higher rates may be expected. In the meantime every means of stimulating trade from its present lethargy is considered a hopeful development.

The Market Turns.

Judging by surface indications, yesterday's rally had its inspiration in the market's improved technical position. Wall Street felt that the selling had been overdone, and the day's developments seemed to support that view. The large short interest found itself in jeopardy after the sweeping declines of the recent past and some rather urgent covering took place. Wall Street was skeptical as to the permanence of the market improvement, but the shift from a swift decline to a vigorous advance was warmly welcomed.

In some important quarters in the financial district it is stated that the investor perhaps suffered a greater loss in the recent break in the stock market than the speculator. Following the break last Autumn, many persons who had their funds invested in bonds and preferred stocks and had been out of the bull market of 1929 bought common stocks. However, when some of these investors realized that business conditions were not improving as anticipated, with many important companies either reducing or omitting their dividends, they determined to get out of their common stock holdings. Since the break of last Fall, the speculator has been a little more "cagey" and consequently on the first signs of weakness many of them not only sold out their holdings but went short of the market.

Comparing Market Performances.

Some students of the market who have been comparing its action since the break last Autumn with the decline in 1920-21 consider it significant that the low of the stock averages for the latter period was reached about June 20, 1921. From that date until Aug. 24, 1921, the market backed and filled, with the industrial averages working slightly lower, while the rail averages advanced about 5 per cent, which more than offset the loss in the industrials. However, during the last week of August and the first week of September the averages had a rather sharp recovery, which was more or less maintained. Although the stock averages in the current break did not reach the low point of last Autumn, it is contended that they so nearly approached the lows of that period that the analogy of the two markets would hold good, provided yesterday's rally is maintained.

"Now, why should stocks go this way at this time?" queried one victim as he watched a brokerage quotation board in the midst of the recent healthy reaction. "Because conditions are fundamentally sound," replied another patient.

Information Desired.

Current hearings by the Interstate Commerce Commission may divulge details of the transaction whereby the Pennroad Corporation, investment affiliate of the Pennsylvania Railroad, acquired control of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia from the Taplin interests. The Pennroad Corporation is due soon to publish a statement of its first year of operation, but this would not necessarily give the information. However, there seems to be no likelihood that any commission hearing will disclose what the Van Sweringens paid for the Chicago & Eastern Illinois.

MONEY.

Thursday, June 19, 1930.

A downward revision in money rates for all classes of accommodation made the day's session the most significant in some time. Ranking first in importance, although it was not known until after the close, was the announcement by the Federal Reserve of a cut in the rediscount rate of ½ to 2½, the record low since the organization of the system in 1914. Following closely was the cut of ⅛ in bankers' bills, which put the general level down to the lowest since 1924. Demand was heavy for bills of all dates, but offerings were light, sales being made out of portfolios. Lower rates were also found in term money and commercial paper, while Stock Exchange day loans were 2½ and Street funds at 2.

INCENTIVE WAGE PLAN WORKS, SURVEY SHOWS

So-called "incentive" systems of wage payments, such as piece rate wages, special bonuses and other methods of compensating employes according to output, where applicable, generally result in increased production, higher earnings for labor and lower production costs, it was stated yesterday by the National Industrial Conference Board, which has just completed a study entitled "Systems of Wage Payment."

Incentive wage systems cannot be applied indiscriminately to all types of work, the survey revealed, particularly in industrial operations, in which the worker's output cannot be definitely measured, as well as in work where quality rather than quantity is the prime consideration. Clerical and office work does not generally lend itself to compensation by incentive wage methods. The majority of workers in American industry are still paid by a fixed rate per hour or day, it was shown.

In the case of small plants, the cost of installing and maintaining the necessary records required by the incentive system would outweigh the advantages, it was said.

The advantages derived from the incentive wage methods, the conference board finds, result partly from the increased efforts which such systems stimulate the worker to put forth to increase his earnings and partly from the effect of such incentives in attracting workers of more than ordinary ability. Concerning the result of the piece-wage system, which is the type of incentive most widely used, reports from manufacturers who have adopted it indicate that output has been raised anywhere from 10 to 400 per cent, earnings of labor increased from 10 to 100 per cent and unit costs reduced from 10 to 50 per cent, showing that the workers share fully in the benefits of cost reduction.

The conference board points out that the adoption of incentive wage systems by American industry may prove advantageous in meeting foreign competition.

History proves that the investor who over a period has countered speculative opinion at critical points invariably has profited. He has bought when others were willing to sell at his price — not against the competition of a multitude of other buyers after a prolonged bull market. Large financial interests acquire stocks when uninformed speculators desire or are forced to sell.

The present offers unusual buying opportunities for those who believe in the industrial future of the United States and its major corporations — who are shrewd enough to buy outstanding common stocks at deflated levels. While it is humanly impossible to determine precisely the lows of any market movement the best financial and investment minds agree to the attractiveness of many high grade equities at current levels.

LOANS TO BROKERS DROP $211,000,000

Reflecting the sharp drop in prices of securities in the last week, a decline of $211,000,000 was shown in the total of brokers' loans as announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The loans now amount to $3,787,000,000, against $3,998,000,000 a week ago and $5,420,000,000 a year ago. The present total is the smallest since the early part of March.

The character of the reduction was not unlike that which occurred last Fall, for it was entirely embraced in the figures for loans by out-of-town banks and non-banking lenders. Local member banks actually increased their loans by $51,000,000 in the week to make good the withdrawals in the other two categories. Out-of-town banks reduced their loans by $147,000,000, and "others" cut down their loans to brokers by $115,000,000. A distinction was noted between the present withdrawals of loans by "others" and by out-of-town banks compared with that of last Fall. In October and November these withdrawals were largely the result of fear that the loans might not be secure, while in the last week the chief motive behind the withdrawals is believed to have been dissatisfaction with the low call money rate which has prevailed.

For others	1,031	1,146	2,945
Total	$3,787	$3,998	$5,420
On demand	$3,175	$3,383	$5,069

The statement of condition of the reporting member banks showed an advance of $156,000,000 in the amount of total loans and investments, of which $144,000,000 was in loans and $12,000,000 in investments. Loans on securities were up $96,000,000 and all other loans advanced $48,000,000. The increase in investments was entirely in holdings of United States Government securities, which showed an advance of $25,000,000. Holdings of other securities were down $12,000,000.

The statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York showed a decline of $4,063,000 in bills discounted, bringing the total to $24,078,000. Holdings of bills bought in the open market fell off $5,079,000 to $35,668,000, despite the reduction in the bill-buying rate which the Reserve Bank put into effect earlier in the week. The total of United States Government securities advanced $10,946,000 to $211,473,000, the advance being largely due to the remainder of the recent treasury overdraft. Principally as a result of these changes, the outstanding volume of Federal Reserve credit advanced $1,304,000 to $274,569,000.

Gold holdings of the local Federal Reserve Bank advanced $11,788,000 to $988,914,000. Federal Reserve notes in circulation dropped $4,943,000 to $177,697,000. Deposit liabilities advanced $12,604,000 to $1,035,747,000 as a result of the expansion of government deposits. The reserve ratio went up to 85.9 per cent, compared with 85.7 per cent last week.

For the twelve banks of the Federal Reserve System combined, discounts were off $3,690,000 on the week; holdings of bills fell $15,396,000 and holdings of United States Government securities advanced $18,941,000. A decline of $645,000 in the outstanding total of Federal Reserve credit was shown.

Gold holdings of the system fell $12,294,000 during the week. The amount of Federal Reserve notes in circulation dropped $27,733,000. Total deposit liabilities fell $1,433,000. As a result of these movements the reserve ratio advanced from 83 per cent to 83.3 per cent.

SUIT AGAINST DOHENY OFF.

Pan-American Stockholders Reach Settlement in California.

LOS ANGELES, June 19 (AP).—The $10,000,000 suit brought by Frank Kunkel, Cincinnati attorney, against Edward L. Doheny and the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company was dismissed in Federal Court today. Attorneys for Kunkel and other Ohio stockholders of the company said a settlement "satisfactory to all" had been reached.

The stockholders alleged they lost the $10,000,000 through Doheny's asserted fraudulent actions in obtaining leases to naval oil reserves which afterward were canceled by the courts. In the complaint they said the petroleum company expended nearly $9,000,000 in erecting oil storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, under the contracts.

The amount of the settlement was not disclosed. The money received will go into the treasury of the petroleum company for the benefit of all stockholders.

Machinery Concerns Merge.

Announcement was made yesterday of the merger of the Goslin-Birmingham Manufacturing Company of Birmingham, Ala., with the Whiting Corporation of Harvey, Ill. The Goslin-Birmingham company is a manufacturer of industrial machinery, especially sugar refining equipment, while the Whiting company is a manufacturer of foundry equipment, cranes, and special machinery.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

FRENCH STOCKS ADVANCE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—The Stock Exchange opened briskly today and when news from Wall Street came there was an upward swing which carried most stocks to a buoyant close. The 5 per cent war loan rose 1-16 to £102 9-16, but the funding loan slipped 1-16 to £88 7-16. The German reparations loan continued to drop, closing ¼ lower at 1¼ discount.

Anglo-Americans were strong, led by Radio Corporation, which advanced 2 points to $37. Columbia Graphophone gained 5-16 to £3 13-16, with His Master's Voice Gramophone improving 1-16 to £3 13-16. Hydroelectric jumped 1⅝ to $40⅝, and General Electric 6d to 48s 9d, but Associated Electric declined 1s 3d to 23s 6d. Brazilian Traction was 1¾ better at $41¼; International Nickel gained 1½ to $23⅞, and International Holding 1-16 to $5 5-16. Motors continued weak, Ford falling 3-32 to £3 3-32.

Late in the day came reports that the White Star Line would pay the interest due on its 6½ per cent cumulative preference shares and that the Elder-Dempster Line would pass the preference dividends, but neither of these announcements affected shipping shares.

Textiles and rayons were still shaky, American Celanese dipping ¼ to £3⅞. Cable and Wireless shares failed to maintain yesterday's gains and both the A and B closed 1 point lower at £37 and £16½, respectively. Rubber declined to a new low record of 5 15-16d a pound, but later rallied to 6d. Oils were encouraged by the prevailing strength elsewhere, Royal Dutch rising ⅛ to £31¼ and Shell Transport to £4 23-32. Rhodesian coppers made good recoveries, notably Bwana M'Kubwa, which jumped 10½d to 14s 1d.

Money was plentiful in Lombard Street with overnight loans available as low as 2 per cent. Discount rates were steady, three-month bills being quoted at 2 15-32 per cent. Sterling exchange was firm at $4.85 13-16.

Gains Registered in Paris.

PARIS, June 19.—The strengthening of prices on the Metal Exchange in London yesterday, particularly as regards copper and tin, stimulated the Paris Bourse at the opening today. Buying which was thus started caused a general movement toward recovery. In the latter part of the session trading subsided, but the gains were in a large measure maintained.

The Bank of France's weekly balance sheet today shows the highest gold cover on record, with the proportion of reserves to obligations, totaling 85,992,000,000 francs, given as 51.05. Gold reserves advanced by 82,000,000 to 43,899,000,000. Circulation dropped 622,000,000 to 71,936,000,000.

Rentes were steady, closing as follows: The 3 per cents, 86.80; 1918 4s, 101.45; 1920 amortizable 5s, 133.80; 1928 5s, 100.95; 1920 6s, 100.97; 1927 amortizable 6s, 104.45.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 19.—The Boerse was slightly improved today despite yesterday's decline in Wall Street and Finance Minister Moldenhauer's resignation, which complicates the Cabinet's position. The market, on the other hand, was stimulated by a rise in copper prices, the banks' intervention and covering purchases.

Reichsbank shares, beer and spirits, dyes trust, shipping stocks, the potash group, artificial silks and electricals were sought and harder, with the exception of Licht and Kraft and Bergman, which were slightly weaker, and Deutsche Telephon and Kabel of the low voltage group, which dropped 10 points. Toward the close trading slackened, but the tendency remained firm.

BANK OF ENGLAND TO AID AUSTRALIA

Sir Otto Niemeyer, Bank Aide, Will Advise Commonwealth After Study There.

TO ADJUST TRADE BALANCE

Scullin Says the Government Is Determined on Measures to Meet All Objections.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CANBERRA, June 19.—Australia has gone to the Bank of England for assistance in its financial difficulties. Premier Scullin announced today that Sir Otto Niemeyer, one of the foremost financial experts of the Bank of England, would visit Australia shortly to study the financial and economic situation and to advise the Australian Government on the best measures to cope with it.

The government and Australian banks, he added, had already taken important corrective measures for adjusting the trade balance between Australia and England.

"The Commonwealth Government," said Mr. Scullin, "is determined that all the necessary steps shall be taken to meet promptly all the Australian overhead obligations."

Few men have had such wide experience as Sir Otto Niemeyer with the particular kind of problems that now face Australia. Several years after the war he was Controller of Finance at the Treasury and since 1922, as a leading member of the financial committee of the League of Nations, he has been taking a prominent part in the schemes for the financial and economic reorganization of various European countries.

Because of his exceptional knowledge of such matters, he was invited to join the Bank of England in 1927, after twenty-one years at the British Treasury.

BONDS ARE STRONGER ON STOCK EXCHANGE

High-Grade Issues Led by Convertibles Recover Part of Recent Losses.

DECLINES ALSO NUMEROUS

Led by convertible issues, the listed bond market showed some improvement yesterday for the first time in several days. The rise in prices was by no means general, as many securities closed with substantial losses for the day, but high-grade railroad, public utility and several industrial issues recovered part of the losses of earlier in the week. Foreign loans were irregular.

Among the principal gainers for the day in the convertible group were Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron 6s, which were up 2 points, Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, up 1¼, and New Haven Railroad 6s, up 1¾ points. Numerous other convertibles scored fractional gains for the day. All of the Alleghany Corporation convertible issues, however, touched new lows for the year, with final prices up half a point to off 1½.

In the New York traction group, Interborough issues were generally strong, but Broadway & Seventh Avenue 5s closed at a new low for the year, off 2 points, and Third Avenue adjustment 5s at a new low with a net loss of ¼ of a point. Brooklyn-Manhattan 6s and Third Avenue refunding 4s closed fractionally lower.

One feature of the day was the appearance of a number of industrial issues on the tape which had not been previously traded in this week. Most of them finished substantially below their previous closing prices.

Transactions in the new German International 5½s were the heaviest not only of the foreign group but of the entire market. The bonds finished unchanged at 90. Two of the three active Bolivian issues touched new lows for the year, off 1⅝ and 3¼ points, respectively, while the third issue, the 7s of 1969, recovered 2¼ points.

United States Government obligations were lightly traded, with final prices up 2-32 to off 3-32. All of the issues are now selling just under the highs of the year.

BOND FLOTATIONS.

Boston Elevated Railway.

Offering of a new issue of $1,200,000 Boston Elevated Railway Company ten-year 5 per cent bonds will be made today at a price of 99½, to yield 5.06 per cent. The offering group will consist of Brown Brothers & Co., Tucker, Anthony & Co., F. S. Moseley & Co., and the Atlantic Corporation of Boston. Proceeds of this financing will be applied toward the payment of an issue of $1,604,000 of the West End Railway Company (a subsidiary) 4½ per cent debentures which will mature on July 1.

Pacific Gas and Electric.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company is planning to market a new issue of $50,000,000 first and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, due in thirty years, according to unofficial advices received here yesterday from San Francisco. This financing, presumably will be done to refund outstanding issues of the company bearing higher rates of interest.

Under the indenture the company has an issue of $20,000,000 6s, which are not callable, $45,000,000 series C 5½s, and $20,000,000 series D 5s, both of which are callable on sixty days' notice at 105. The last financing done by the company consisted of an issue of $20,000,000 series E 4½s in February, 1928, through a banking group headed by the National City Company. The mortgage, however, is an open one, so that the new financing could be done for other than refunding purposes.

FINDS GAIN FOR BONDS.

Bank Publication Says They Account for 70% of New Financing.

Bonds are now the vehicle of more than 70 per cent of the new financing in the investment market, whereas last year they accounted for only 30 to 35 per cent, it is reported by The Business Observer, the new mid-monthly survey of finance and business, published by the Foreman-State National Bank. The first edition of The Observer appeared on Wednesday.

The most conspicuous aspect of the money market is found in the sharp contrasts which exist between short-term and long-term interest rates, The Observer says. Short-term rates, including commercial paper, bank acceptances, call and time loans, have declined 40 to 60 per cent from the levels of last year, while seasoned bond yields are down less than 5 per cent.

"Of course, interest rates were high in 1929, so we are obliged to turn to other comparisons to see just how low they are at the present time," the publication adds. "Compared with the average short-term money rates of the last five years, those prevailing in May this year were down from 25 to 40 per cent. On the other hand, a highly regarded bond yield index shows that seasoned long-term issues are now yielding only seven-tenths of 1 per cent below the five-year average."

Branch Bank Advisers Named.

Thomas Williams, of Ichabod T. Williams & Sons, and a director of the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, has been appointed chairman of the advisory committee of the bank's branch at University Place and 9th Street which was opened on May 15. Other members of the advisory committee are Joseph Appel, Ralph Dudley, Raymond Orteig, Paul B. Scarff and Adolph Wimpfheimer.

SAYS MARKET LOANS RISE TOO RAPIDLY

WOULD NOT AID REVIVAL

It Would Be Better for Reserve Authorities to Take Up Slack Reserves, He Asserts.

Special to the New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 19.—Benjamin M. Anderson Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank of New York, warned the Minnesota Bankers' Association today against the "disquieting rapidity" with which bank funds employed in investment in securities and collateral loans on securities had grown in recent weeks.

He warned that "when business revives, when hundreds of millions of dollars must flow out of bank reserves into hand-to-hand circulation, and when commercial borrowing increases with reviving trade, we shall have to pull this money out of the securities market again, a process which will not help along the business revival."

"It is far better," he said, "that in times of slack the Federal Reserve authorities should take up the excess reserves in the money market, allowing the volume of general bank credit to contract and conserving the reserve money of the country so that it may be used at time of revival to permit bank credit to expand comfortably to meet the needs of trade."

Dr. Anderson said that he did not condemn the employment of bank funds in investment in securities or in collateral loans.

"I have no disposition," he said, "to gauge the existing expansion of bank credit from the standpoint of a doctrinaire theory of strictly commercial banking.

"When bank investments are bought at proper prices and are of proper quality and marketability, when collateral loans against securities are limited to well-margined loans against readily marketable securities, and when the growth in bank investments and in stock and bond collateral loans is moderate and kept reasonably in line with the growth of commercial loans, there is no occasion for concern about the development.

"It has happened more than once in the past that the stock market has been able to pay back what it owes to the banks more readily than have the merchants. A particularly striking case occurred in the year 1920. At the beginning of that year the New York stock market owed the banks in collateral loans $1,750,000,000, and at the end of the year this figure had been reduced to less than $700,000,000. Banks during that crisis year were able to withdraw over $1,000,000,000 from the stock market to expand loans to their commercial customers.

"Recognizing all this fully, I would still maintain that the growth during the past eight years in bank investments and in bank loans against stock and bond collateral has been altogether excessive. Between 1921 and 1928, bond holdings plus stock and bond collateral loans of the national banks increased from 42 per cent to 55 per cent of their total loans and investments, while for the 600 odd reporting member banks in the great cities the ratio rose from 46 per cent to a fraction over 60 per cent.

"In recent weeks, this tendency has been renewed, and has moved with disquieting rapidity. For these same reporting member banks, the figure stood at 59.70 per cent on Feb. 12 of 1930, while on June 4 of 1930, it stood at 63.27 per cent.

"It cannot be good policy to make bank money so abundant and so easy that it must overflow at this rapid rate into the securities market."

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Yesterday's statement of the twelve Reserve banks showed the note circulation for the system as a whole to be at the lowest point of the year to date. No other important item in the system reached a new hign or low figure.

The following table shows the highest and lowest points reached thus far in 1930 and in a series of years past. All figures except ratio of reserve are in thousands of dollars.

The men who qualify for these positions will be attracted by our liberal basis of compensation as well as intelligent house cooperation. This is an opportunity to make a permanent connection with a growing organization where application and industry will bring profitable results in a congenial atmosphere. An appointment for an interview can be made by writing or telephoning Mr. E. H. Newbery.

CURB SUSPENDS JOHNSON.

Penalty for Throckmorton Partner Due to Stock Exchange's Action.

The New York Curb Exchange yesterday suspended for one year Alexander B. Johnson of Throckmorton & Co. as an associate member. Mr. Johnson's suspension was due to his suspension a few days ago by the New York Stock Exchange for irregular practices of his firm in connection with the operation of an investment trust.

"At a special meeting of the board of governors held June 18, 1930, Alexander B. Johnson of Throckmorton & Co. was suspended from associate membership in the Exchange in accordance with Article XVII, Section 7, of the constitution until 10 A. M. June 12, 1931."

The article under which Mr. Johnson was suspended from the Curb Exchange deals with penalties for violation of "just and equitable principles of trade." The Stock Exchange announced that Mr. Johnson had been suspended in connection with irregularities in the operation by Throckmorton & Co. of Diversified Trustee Shares, a fixed investment trust. The Exchange absolved Mr. Johnson and his present partners of knowledge of these irregularities.

WHEAT MOVES FAST; NET CHANGES SMALL

CORN'S GAINS HELD AT END

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Limited speculative interest was largely responsible today for failure of the wheat market to reflect the strength in the stock market, most traders deciding to await further developments in the economic situation before taking a stand on either side. This resulted in sharp price changes in a range of 1½ cents, with the close unchanged to ⅛ cent higher for the day.

Winnipeg was up ½ cent and Liverpool 1⅛d, but the strength in Winnipeg had relatively little effect except for brief periods. The Canadian upturn was in the face of further showers in parts of Alberta, where most needed, but the actual precipitation was not heavy. Some change in sentiment was noted at Winnipeg and shorts covered on reports of further dust storms in parts of the prairie provinces, while houses with Eastern connections were sellers.

Wheat showed a much firmer undertone today. Some locals who have been operating on the bear side for some time are not pressing the selling side.

50,000 Bushels Sold as Hedge.

A local house with connections in the Southwest sold 50,000 bushels of July here as a hedge against purchases of 50,000 bushels of new No. 1 hard in Kansas, part of which was obtained at 1 cent under Kansas City July and part at 4 cents under the September. Local handlers booked 20,000 bushels to come here during the day, mainly from Illinois.

A moderate export business is reported as passing in American durums and hard Winters, part of the 700,000 bushels reported as sold at the seaboard having been American grain and the balance Manitobas. It is understood that on Wednesday about 1,000,000 bushels of durum and hard Winter were sold, while Manitobas were neglected. In some quarters the disposition is to look for much heavier hedging pressure in Winnipeg when the 1930 crop is harvested, as it is felt that the Canadian pool will not attempt to hold up the movement abroad as it did in 1929. Crop reports from the American Northwest were generally favorable.

Primary receipts were 747,000 bushels; a week ago 615,000, and a year ago 1,055,000. Shipments respectively were 992,000, 450,000 and 531,000 bushels.

Corn Is Advanced by Shorts.

Pressure on corn was lacking except from locals, and sufficient short covering development to lift prices ⅜ to ⅝ cent over the previous close, last sales being within a fraction of the top. Weather over the belt was favorable. The market acted as though it had been well liquidated. Shipping demand was fair, with sales of 90,000 bushels, and the spot basis was steady to 1 cent higher, white showing the most strength. St. Louis messages said cooperatives were buying cash corn there.

Primary receipts of corn were 451,000 bushels; a week ago 735,000, and a year ago 951,000. Shipments respectively were 499,000, 1,197,000 and 565,000 bushels.

More interest is being taken in oats, and the close was ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher, with cash and commission houses buying. Crop reports were mixed, the grain heading short over a considerable area, especially in Illinois. Bids of 28 cents a bushel were made to farmers at central Illinois points on Wednesday night, but producers show no disposition to sell at such a figure.

Short covering sent rye 1 to 1⅝ cents higher. Northwestern markets were also strong.

COUNTER STOCKS GAIN AFTER BANK RATE CUT

Most Issues Quiet and Weak, but Bank Shares Close Higher, With Insurance Group More Active.

Trading in unlisted stocks, which continues after the stock exchanges close, showed a firmer tone yesterday after the reduction in the rediscount rate was announced by the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Bank shares held most attention, others ruling quiet and weak. Most bank issues closed higher, some recovering early losses, with trading substantial. Guaranty made the greatest gain. Central Hanover, Bankers, City, America, Chase, Manhattan, Corn Exchange and Chatham Phenix closed higher. Public, New York, Continental and Irving also gained.

Insurance stocks showed more activity toward the close after a quiet day. Providence-Washington, Hanover, National Fire, Hartford Fire, Home and Aetna Life advanced. Phoenix and Westchester Fire were firm. Preferred Accident, Aetna Casualty and Surety weakened.

Industrials were quiet but showed a firmer tone toward the close. Bancroft preferred, Petroleum Derivatives and Roxy Theatre units and preferred A were among those to improve. Scovill and Dictaphone closed lower. Utility preferred issues responded generally at the close to the firmer trend, and Dayton Power and Light preferred and Kentucky Securities preferred sold fractionally higher. The common issues were quiet and easy. Chain stores and communications stocks were dull. McMarr advanced.

Tests Track for Flaws.

More than 1,600 miles of New York Central main track has been subjected to tests by a device for locating hidden flaws in the rails, it was announced yesterday. The device, which was invented by the late Dr. Elmer A. Sperry, is mounted on a car which covers five miles daily and which has living quarters for the crew. The inspection was begun at Albany on Jan. 2 and it has covered No. 1 track from New York to Chicago and is now moving on No. 2 track from Chicago eastward.

The device feeds current of low voltage into the rails. The variations of this current as it passes through the rails are reflected in a delicate coil set near the rails, transmitted to radio tubes and thence by relays to recorders that trace lines on paper strips.

COTTON PRICES RISE IN HEAVY TRADING

MILL BUYING IS INCREASED

Resistance to selling on the Cotton Exchange became more pronounced yesterday than on the two preceding days, and prices recovered more than $3 a bale from the low marks of the week. Extensive liquidation within two weeks had driven values to a point at which trade interests furnished more buying power, and with the improved stock market, professional operators assisted the upturn. Final quotations were 22 to 30 points higher than on Wednesday.

The advance of a half cent in the July delivery here in ten minutes in the closing trading on Wednesday brought in covering orders over night and the purchases sent up July contracts 35 points on the opening call. The outstanding long interest in July was reduced materially in the recent decline and with first notice day next Wednesday, contracts were taken from the market by mills with cotton still to call.

Announcement by a firm operating for cooperative associations that deliveries on July would be accepted in a manner similar to that pursued for the May position had been generally anticipated. From a premium of only 5 points early in the week, July widened almost a half cent over October as selling pressure lessened.

FREEPORT TEXAS NET OFF.

Lewis E. Pierson and John Hay Whitney Are Added to Board.

Two directors were added yesterday to the board of the Freeport Texas Company, Eugene L. Norton, president, announced. They are Lewis E. Pierson, chairman of the board of the Irving Trust Company and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and John Hay Whitney.

Earnings of the company for the six months ended on May 31 were $1,832,160 after depreciation, Federal taxes and other charges, equivalent to $2.51 a share on the 729,844 capital shares, compared with $2.56 a share on the same capitalization in the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year. Domestic sales gained, Mr. Norton said, but smaller earnings were laid to a decline in export sales, on which sulphur profits are larger.

$10,000 AWARDED FOR POWER ESSAY

HELD BEST OF 438 PAPERS

The 1930 award of the American Superpower Corporation's prize was made posthumously yesterday to Reuben B. Sleight at the National Electric Light Association's annual convention in San Francisco. The prize, $10,000 in cash, will be given to Mr. Sleight's estate. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

The prize was an outgrowth of the Bonbright prize essay contest of 1925, in which Mr. Sleight won a prize of $250, for the best essays on the history of the electric power and light industry from 1920 to 1929, inclusive. The first prize amounted to $5,000, the second prize to $1,000 and the third prize to $500, while ten prizes of $250 each and ten of $100 each also were awarded.

"After careful review of all the essays submitted," it was announced yesterday, "the board of judges have unanimously granted the American Superpower Corporation award of $10,000 for the essay entitled 'The Development of the Electric Light and Power Industry of the United States During the Period 1920-1930,' by Reuben B. Sleight.

"The board of judges takes this occasion to express its sincere regret that the author of this essay has died since the prize was offered. His essay, in the judgment of the board, is worthy of an enthusiastic tribute. The judges consider that it treats, in an adequate fashion, practically all phases of the development of the industry, that no important errors of judgment are displayed, and that the author ventured a considerable number of statistical forecasts that now exhibit remarkably small deviations from the actual data."

Mr. Sleight was born at Laingsburg, Mich., on June 30, 1889, and studied engineering for three years at the University of Michigan. He served during the war in the Army Signal Corps, advancing to First Lieutenant, Air Service, and holding the commission of Captain, Air Service Officers' Reserve Corps, until his death.

In the Fall of 1926 he left the Minnesota Tax Commission, where he was employed as an engineer, to accept an appointment on the engineering staff of the Department of Commerce. At the time of his death, on Nov. 14, 1927, he was in Vermont, having left Washington in an airplane to gather information in the areas then flooded. The injuries from which he died were suffered in the landing of the plane at Montpelier. He married Doris M. Cutter of Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 30, 1913.

The week ended June 14 brought a further reduction in the adjusted index of electric power production, which now stands at 93.0, as compared with 93.9 a week ago. The index has thus established a new low on the major cyclical decline which began last Fall. The electric power index makes the third of the components of the combined weekly index of business activity to show a decrease last week, sharp declines in automobile production and steel mill activity having already been reported.

Aside from its significance as a business indicator, the most interesting aspect of the recent major decline in the electric power index is the effect which it has had in slowing up the hitherto rapid rate of expansion in public utility earnings. Since the beginning of 1921 public utility net earnings have closely paralleled the increase in electric power production, and the effect of the current business recession has been to "flatten out" the earnings curve.

Earnings figures for April for all companies combined have only this week been reported by the Department of Commerce, and although allowing for seasonal variation, they showed considerable improvement over March (as did the electric power index), they made a rather poor showing, considering the previous rapid rate on increase, as compared with the prevailing level of most of the year 1929. If the past relationship between the electric power index and utility net earnings continues to be maintained, present prospects are that total earnings for May and June will fall below those for the corresponding months last year.

CALLS FOR WORLD CITIZENS

Those who refuse to recognize that men and women can no longer be considered merely as members of individual communities, but as citizens of the world, are out of step with the age, according to Robert E. Farley, president of the Rotary Club of New York, speaking yesterday at a luncheon in the Hotel Commodore.

Nearly five hundred Rotarians were present at the gathering which was held in honor of 150 delegates of European and British Rotary clubs who are to attend the Silver Jubilee Convention of Rotary International beginning in Chicago Monday. The foreign group are led by L. G. Sloan of the London Rotary Club, who also spoke at the luncheon yesterday.

"Every man, woman and child in the world today," Mr. Farley said, "should and must consider himself a citizen of the world. We are too close in physical and spiritual ties to be able to separate ourselves from other countries or peoples. Those who refuse to recognize it are out of step with the age, and as a group cannot long be powerful."

Better Grade Curtains Active.

Although low-end Fall curtains are moving at a slow pace at present, manufacturers of better grades are experiencing an active call for Fall merchandise, it was reported in the market yesterday. Curtains of the tailored type retailing around $3 and $5 a pair are being ordered freely for delivery in September and October. Ecru shades continue to provide 95 per cent of the business. Suntan tones and pastel shades are also wanted. Business is expected to continue active throughout the Summer, with the heaviest buying around the end of next month.

PREDICT GAIN THIS YEAR

Rising department store operation expenses, the sharp drop in the dollar value of the average transaction in recent months and problems arising from the decline in commodity prices, together with the development of more effective merchandising and sales promotion methods to overcome "profitless" sales volume, received major attention at the joint convention of the merchandise managers' and sales promotion divisions of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, which began yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

"Getting Business on a More Profitable Basis in the Face of Difficult Conditions" was the theme running through all sessions of the convention, which concludes today. Approximately 800 retail advertising and merchandising executives were in attendance, many of whom expressed the view that business in the last half of the year would show improvement over the first half. Presiding at the initial joint session were Kenneth Collins, executive vice president of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., and F. W. Aldred, secretary-treasurer of Gladding's, Inc., Providence, R. I.

Urges Cost Reduction.

In opening the convention, Philip Le Boutillier, president of the association and head of Best & Co., urged elimination of hit-or-miss merchandising policies and a sustained attack on the cost of doing business.

"Where merchandising policies," he said, "are wabbly, hit-or-miss or based on unsound business practice, or dominated by 'exhibition' complexes, the superstructure will change form, tremble and at times crash to the ground. The handicaps of too costly locations, of too imposing edifices, of unnecessary and extravagant services, of discounts and inside prices, of excessive advertising expenditure, of dull advertising copy, reveal the basic fact that business, while built from the ground up, is planned from the top down."

H. F. Twomey, publicity director of the Jordan-Marsh Company, Boston, in discussing effective sales promotion, said this year above others demanded emphasis on promotional enthusiasm, carried down from store executives to selling personnel. There must, he said, be a meeting of minds, of advertising director, merchandise manager and controller, in the planning and continual checking of programs.

"Responsibility," he said, "must be shared by all; that store with fixed lines of responsibility is courting disaster."

Avoidance of Low-Profit Items.

Avoidance of emphasis on low-profit items and condemnation of the practice of unduly featuring "leaders" were urged by L. J. Noah, vice president and general merchandise manager of Gimbel Brothers, Philadelhia.

"The constantly reducing unit of sale in practically every department of department stores," he said, "is greatly affecting both volume and profit. The cost of handling greatly increasing numbers of transactions is swelling the cost of doing business materially."

In a study of "winning departments" rather than lagging ones will be found the secret of retail profits for this year, Arthur O. Price, sales manager of the Namm Store, Brooklyn declared. Accurate determination of the best selling price lines and items, and profit trends by groups, of which few merchandise executives have little exact knowledge, he asserted, is fundamental. As illustrating the decline in commodity prices he cited figures showing that merchandise levels approximating $1 in 1926 have now gone down to 86 cents, and that the upstairs stores must meet this situation and not permit complaints from their bargain price basements to serve as a stumbling block.

Reporting on a survey of lagging retail departments, William H. McLeod, advertising manager of William Filene's Sons Company, Boston, made two recommendations: a thorough study of the department's operation by unprejudiced parties and a change in some of the methods used to merchandise, advertise or promote these departments.

Sees Fashions Replacing Price.

C. G. Anderson, director of sales and publicity of Burdine's, Miami, Fla., predicted that fashion is destined to replace price as the greatest weapon in retail sales promotion. The chief trouble with the retailing piece goods today is the high ratio of expense, according to Benjamin Weiss, divisional merchandise manager of Gimbel Brothers, New York. The services offered are not used by consumers and there are too many non-selling employes, he asserted.

The development of a color coordination program for Fall, embracing ten basic shades, was explained by A. G. Jarvis, merchandise manager of the Edward Malley Company, New Haven, Conn., who said, "elimination of color waste and bungling will add millions of dollars to annual volume and 1 or 2 per cent to net profits."

At the evening session Kenneth Collins, executive vice president of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., outlined tests for the productiveness of retail advertising. Millions of dollars, he said, were spent annually on retail publicity which never passes any test other than that of the vanity or caprice of the man delegated to pass judgment. Three "substantial tests," he asserted, were: Will the advertisement bring volume? Will it add prestige? Will it help build a price line? If there is not an affirmative answer to one of these questions, he added, the advertisement should not be published.

Selection of Customers.

Richard G. Roth, merchandise manager of William Taylor, Son & Co., Cleveland, in discussing a consistent merchandising policy, expressed the view that such a policy must be based on determination of the type of customers a store aims to serve and the place of the store in the community. Stocks must be balanced to have what the customer wants and not what the store wants to sell. "In some stores," he said, "50 per cent of the customers walk out because they cannot get what they want. Cutting down the number of such lost sales is a fundamental need."

In an address on "Eternal Vigilance, the Secret of Net Profit," Miss Tobe of the Tobe Fashion Service, urged the adoption of a store-wide fashion program.

Gray Goods Market Dull.

Trading in gray goods was very quiet yesterday and the market relapsed into dulness, with no changes in prices from the previous day's quotations. Cotton strengthened, but it had no effect on the primary market. There were a few orders for standard printcloths, but these were confined to small lots. Sales in 38½ 60-48s were made at 4¾ cents and in 38½ inch 64-60s at 5½ cents. Few inquiries appeared for 39 inch 68-72s, which changed hands at 6¼ cents. Orders for 39 inch 80 squares were filled at 8¼ cents. Little demand for sheetings appeared.

Schedule Group Buying Meetings.

Plans for initial group buying meetings on garments for Fall are being rapidly completed. Several of these meetings are scheduled to begin next week, while others will be held throughout July. Except for a tendency to limit in some instances the number of manufacturers who will be asked to display their offerings, the group plans on the whole were said to reveal no radical departure from previous seasons. Some of the difficulties between producers and the groups still exist, chiefly on the score of price concessions and terms, but the view was expressed that greater cooperation will minimize "sore spots" in the new season.

Legal Group for Textile Heads.

The formation of a committee on law and legislation, with Sylvan Gotshal of Proskauer, Rose & Paskus, representing the Silk Association, as chairman, is included in the program of the Council of Textile Association Executives, it was announced yesterday by the New York Board of Trade, Inc., which sponsored the creation of the council. The committee will consist of the counsels of the various organizations in the council and will consider all matters of legislation of interest to the textile trade. A resolution in favor of the Vestal bill has been presented and adopted by the steering committee. The Capper-Kelly bill is now under consideraiton by the legal group.

Plan 'Closed' Upholstery Seasons.

A plan for the establishment of two closed seasons each year, during which no new patterns would be produced by upholstery manufacturers, was considered yesterday at the semi-annual meeting of the National Upholstery Textile Association, Inc., at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The proposal was referred to a committee authorized to take the matter up with furniture manufacturers. The closed seasons would be of from six to eight weeks' duration, it was explained, and cover the periods in January and July when producers of furniture hold their annual seasonal openings.

Heavy reorders on all types of garden ornaments including pottery, gazing globes, sun dials and similar articles reached selling agents in the local market this week. Buyers for retail stores now in the market report that such articles are the most active of their garden goods stocks. The buying trend for ornaments did not develop its full strength until recently, they said, and sales should continue brisk until well into the Summer. Retail sales of arbors, rustic furniture and plant frames have been disappointing during the last month. Several buyers expressed the opinion that the vogue for the garden furniture and arbors has run its course.

Overcoat Prospects Not Bright.

The outlook for Fall business in men's overcoats is not bright, it was admitted yesterday. At the present time, retailers have purchased between 50 and 60 per cent of their initial requirements and are very cautious in placing orders. The double-breasted box coats in staple shades and fabrics are expected to maintain the popularity which they enjoyed last season. While there will be no appreciable decline in prices, overcoats will be better values, with improved styling and fabrics, at last year's quotations.

Trend to 3-Button Coat Seen.

Fall styles in men's clothing are expected to develop a tendency to the three-button, peaked lapel coat, which is the prevalent fashion in England, it was stated yesterday. Of course, the two-button coat will be the leading seller, but some inroads into its popularity by the first mentioned style is anticipated. Worsteds will be the most favored fabric. In colors, the blue-gray tones are expected to predominate, with some favor shown the grayish browns. This has been a long-drawn-out purchasing season, due to cautious commitments on the part of retailers, but it is expected that most buying will be completed by the early part of July. The half-belted overcoat will meet with a greater response in the Fall, it is thought.

Garterless Hose Offered.

A local hosiery manufacturer has introduced a new self-supporting hose for men and expects that by July 1 sufficient stocks will be on hand to permit wholesale deliveries, it was reported yesterday. The sock is about four inches longer than the average hose, with a flat, unribbed top, and an elastic sewed into the hem which eliminates the necessity of garters. The rubber in the elastic is specially manufactured and is guaranteed to outlast the sock. The manufacturers feel that it is a revolutionary movement in men's hosiery. The sock is made in prevailing patterns and color and will sell at the same price.

Spread Styling Based on Survey.

Style will play an important part in the merchandising of bedspreads this Fall, it is thought by Blass, Fabyan & Co., selling agents for Bates Manufacturing Co., one of a group of home furnishings makers for whom M. E. Stuart & Associates are conducting an extensive consumer survey. A preliminary report reveals that where style appeal is present, prices become secondary consideration to women. Practicality, however, is still a highly important factor, especially where color is concerned. The ever-growing popularity of the four-poster bed was demonstrated in the survey, which indicates that the Colonial type of bedspread, in favor for many years, will continue to be in strong demand.

DECLINE IN PRICES SPURS METAL SALES

TARIFF BLAMED FOR DROP

Buying of Lead Lowest in Two Years Despite Quotations, Says Trade Publication.

Reductions in the price of copper to 11½ cents a pound and that of zinc to 4.40 cents a pound brought consumers into the market for large tonnage of both metals during the past week, according to Metal and Mineral Markets. It is stated that the ten-point decline in lead, and the fact that tin and silver hit new lows aroused little interest. Discussing the reasons for the declines Metal and Mineral Markets says:

"The weakness in metal prices is attributed to several factors—considerably overestimated prospects for a satisfactory resumption of industrial activity in the last half of the year; the price decline in other commodities and the violent downward reaction in the stock market; and, lastly, the tariff.

"Copper sales below 12 cents amounted only to about 5,000 tons, and the bulk of the week's business, which totaled better than 27,000 tons, was at 12 cents, to which level the market gives some indication of returning. Most of the buyers apparently have been trying to average down, or have been willing to take a speculative chance on copper at current levels.

"Despite a drop in lead prices to 5.40 cents, ascribed solely to the inactivity of the domestic market, the volume of business in the past week was the smallest in any like period for nearly two years. The majority of bookings were for spot shipment.

"With prices at 4.40 cents, zinc sales for the week exceeded any week since the active market in January. Tin slumped to 29½ cents for prompt Straits, but later reacted to 29⅞ cents."

COPPER BECOMES FIRMER.

After a slight weakness early yesterday, copper metal prices firmed a bit, with final sales at 12 cents a pound, delivered, Connecticut Valley. Producers held their price at 12 cents all day, but some custom smelters made early sales as low as 11½ cents a pound. A bid of 11½ cents for large tonnage from a leading producing group for August and September shipment failed to tempt sellers, it was reported.

In the copper trade the opinion is that the price will now hold rather firmly around 12 cents or better.

Business executives in the United States will find Porto Rico a rich and logical field in which to recruit salesmen to carry lines into Central and South American countries, Governor Theodore Roosevelt Jr. of Porto Rico told 250 export men at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday. Governor Roosevelt was the principal speaker at a special luncheon meeting of the Export Managers' Club of New York, Inc., and addressed the members on the future possibilities of the island possession.

"Porto Ricans are capable and earnest workers," he explained, "and although they are loyal American citizens their Spanish background gives them a thorough understanding of the viewpoint of Latin-Americans. They are able to meet the South American customer on his own ground, speak his own language and present the goods they sell to the best possible advantage."

Governor Roosevelt explained in detail the many steps he has initiated to eliminate the obstacles of poverty, lack of education and disease which have proved the heaviest handicaps to the island's progress. Rural schools teaching practical farming are being established throughout the island, he said, and plans are now under way to establish health units there.

"We have also created a bureau of commerce which is trying to interest business men in the United States in establishing industries in Porto Rico," he added.

SUGAR, COFFEE, COCOA.

Sugar.

Cuban sellers stayed out of the raw sugar market yesterday, but Philippine sugar was in good supply and three sales were reported for advance positions, which carried prices to a new low. The first sale was 2,500 tons at 3.35 duty paid, for June-July shipment, equivalent to a price, after deduction of carrying charges, of about 3.26 for spot. The next sale of 22,000 tons for July shipment was at 3.29, and the last sale reported for 5,000 tons was at 3.25 for June-July shipment. At the close of the market there was Philippine and Porto Rican sugar offered at 3.25 to 3.27, but there was no Cuban sugar available at present prices. Refined sugar was unchanged, with refiners quoting 4.60 and 4.70. Sales in the futures market were 61,250 tons.

DECRIES SLUMP ONUS ON INSTALMENT SALES

TORONTO, Ont., June 19.—Instalment selling is not a major cause of business depression, Dr. Clyde W. Phelps, head of the Department of Economics of the University of Chattanooga today told the National Retail Credit Association in convention here.

Dr. Phelps cited figures to substantiate estimates that instalment sales last year comprised only 13 per cent of the retail trade total of $45,000,000,000.

Contending that instalment selling is having only a slight effect in the recession he set forth four reasons:

That there is no tremendous mass of "frozen credits" in that only $2,900,000,000 of instalment paper, or 5.5 per cent of the total retail trade, remained to be liquidated at the end of 1929.

That the relative number of unemployed at present is small and the depression is mild compared with that of 1921-1922.

That only a portion of the unemployed have instalment payments to meet as only 41 per cent of labor as a whole buys on instalments, according to a recent survey.

That the present depression developed slowly and gave credit managers opportunity to restrict the extension of credit.

TORONTO, Ont., June 19 (Canadian Press).—Officers elected at this afternoon's session of the National Retail Credit Association included president, A. D. McMullen, Oklahoma City; first vice president, Frank Batty, San Francisco; second vice president, A. P. Lovett, Kansas City; secretary, Guy H. Hulse, St. Louis.

LIVE STOCK IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Receipts of hogs today were in excess of expectations, and while early sales were at steady prices, the finish was 25 to 35 cents lower. The top was 5 cents lower at $9.95, the first time since last January that the price has dropped below $10. The day's average was down 15 cents at $9.45. Most sales were at $9.15 to $9.80, with 250 to 350 pound butchers $9.40 to $9.85, 160 to 250 pound averages $9.50 to $9.95 and packing sows $8.25 to $9. Packers bought 10,800 and shippers 3,000, with 9,000 left over. Receipts were 31,000, with 19,000 estimated for tomorrow.

The five leading Western points expect 46,000 hogs tomorrow, against 41,500 a week ago.

Demand for fresh beef remains slow, causing a limited call for cattle. Prices changed little, best steers selling at $12, and the bulk of the offerings at $9 to $10.25. Receipts were 5,000.

The country is being asked to hold back cattle as much as possible, as coolers are said to be filled, both in Western and Eastern markets.

Lambs were weak to 25 cents lower, the bulk of the natives being at $11.75 to $12.25. Sheep were steady at $2.50 to $3.50. Receipts were 10,000.

LIVE STOCK AND MEATS.

These prices were reported yesterday in the New York and New Jersey markets by the United States Department of Agriculture:

Vealers in light supply, about steady. Good to choice $10.50 to $13. Good Southerns $11. Mediums $8 to $10. Cull and common $6 to $7.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter.

Receipts, 13,232 packages. Buying support was lacking to such an extent that the price eased off ½c before much business could be accomplished. At the decline, there was fair trading, part of which was speculative. The weakness was mostly in the higher price goods which comprised the larger part of current arrivals.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REAL ESTATE

SITE SOLD FOR FLAT NEAR CENTRAL PARK

Builders Buy Corner at 84th St. for 18-Story Apartment House.

COST PUT AT $4,000,000

Another tall peak is to be added to the skyline of Central Park West as the result of a transaction yesterday in which builders purchased a corner for improvement with an eighteen-story and penthouse apartment structure. The property just acquired for the purpose is at the northwest corner of Eighty-fourth Street, where there is to be started this Summer a project representing an investment of $4,000,000, including the cost of land and building.

Rose De Semple and various other owners sold to the 65 Central Park West Corporation the site fronting 137 feet on Central Park West and 137 feet on Eighty-fourth Street. This is a plot of 17,400 square feet, now improved with private dwellings and the Semple School, which has been at it present site since 1907.

Construction work is to be started on Aug. 1. Earle & Calhoun, who have been chosen as the builders, are now completing a tall apartment house at 55 Central Park West, corner of Sixty-sixth Street, for the same interests. Earle & Calhoun and Butler & Baldwin were the brokers in the sale of the Eighty-fourth Street corner.

The Schulte Real Estate Company has sold 2,316-2,320 Amsterdam Avenue, northwest corner of 175th Street. This is a six-story store and apartment house on a plot 80 by 95 feet, and the broker was Robert Rudd. The buyer is an investor.

Ernest T. Bower sold for the estate of Frank C. Honings the five-story double tenement house at 266 West 123d Street, on a plot 25 by 100 feet. The new owner is the Interboro Property Corporation.

The Duross Company, which recently sold to the Standard Concrete and Steel Company, William C. Tobey, president, the property at 217-19-21 West Nineteenth Street, has arranged with them to erect a two-story building on the plot, 75 by 100 feet, and has leased it to the Beechnut Packing Company for its office and warehouse building for a long term of years. The building is to be completed in about sixty days.

COMMUNITY GETS $50,000.

The fund is to be turned over to the New York Community Trust, the income to be used for park maintenance or other community projects. Under certain conditions the principal may be expended. The trust now holds a deed of a three-acre park and playground valued at $125,000 which the development company laid out for Sunnyside residents in 1926.

Bing, president of the corporation. The stockholders' dividend return is limited to 6 per cent.

WAY IS CLEARED FOR HARBORS BILL

FILIBUSTER THREAT FADES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A most formidable stumbling block to disposition by the Senate of the $120,000,000 rivers and harbors authorization bill was removed today when the Senate adopted, by a vote of 45 to 21, the Blaine amendment providing that the recent decree of the Supreme Court in the lake-levels case should apply to the diversion of water from Lake Michigan for the Illinois waterway project.

Under the Supreme Court decree, the diversion of water from Lake Michigan is limited to 1,500 cubic feet of water per second after the close of the year 1938. The Blaine amendment, in addition to this feature, provides that after the Illinois waterway project is completed, the Secretary of War shall make a study of the water necessary to meet the needs of a commercially useful waterway and shall report to Congress by Jan. 31, 1938, the "minimum amount of such flow" that will be required, and yet will not "substantially injure" navigation on the Great Lakes.

Thus Congress, it is explained, would have eleven months between Jan. 31, 1938, and the close of that year, to pass on the report of the Secretary of War before the 1,500 cubic feet limitation went into effect.

The Blaine amendment was vigorously opposed by Senators Glenn and Deneen of Illinois, both speaking today in opposition to it. However, a filibuster had been threatened by Senators of Lake States against the provision written into the bill by the Senate Commerce Committee, which would have allowed the War Department to determine the amount of water to be diverted from Lake Michigan for the Illinois waterway project.

By the adoption of the Blaine amendment the possibility of a filibuster is believed to have been dissipated. Senate leaders confidently predicted passage of the bill tomorrow after two or three hours additional debate.

The vote today concluded three days of debate on the Blaine amendment in which lengthy speeches were made by Senators Blaine of Wisconsin, Vandenberg of Michigan, and McCulloch of Ohio, in favor of the amendment, met by speeches of Illinois Senators opposing it.

In his speech today, Senator Glenn said that, in recent months there had been "too much water" in the lakes. The levels of the lakes alternate in cycles between high and low, it was stated. Senator Glenn said he believed the Illinois River canal could "be so operated as not to injure other States."

Thaddeus Merriman, chief engineer of the Board of Water Supply, was on the stand virtually all day yesterday at the hearing before Referee Charles N. Burch in the suit brought by New Jersey to restrain New York City from development of the Delaware watershed for water supply purposes. The city's defense began on Monday in the chambers of the Appellate Term in the new County Court House.

Charts illustrating the day-by-day flow of the Delaware at Port Jervis, N. Y., and Trenton and Riegelsville, N. J., covering a period of twenty-five years, were explained by Mr. Merriman. He testified that while the proposed diversion of 219,000,000,000 gallons a year, or 600,000,000 a day naturally would reduce the flow of river water, the reduction would be so slight as to work no ill-effects to proposed hydroelectric projects or to navigation and sanitation along the river in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The hearing will be resumed this morning.

LAUDS VISA OFFICIALS.

Secretary Stimson Commends Four for Conviction of Baskin.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secretary Stimson has commended John Farr Simmons, chief of the State Department Visa Office; Dana G. Hodgdon, assistant chief; Hugh S. Cummings Jr., assistant, and H. M. Cochran, American Consul at Paris, for excellent work in connection with the recent visa fraud cases which made possible the conviction of Morris Baskin and others.

Baskin, a resident of Brooklyn, was the head of a ring to bring in Polish aliens and was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta prison and fined $5,000.

To the officers who were commended, Secretary Stimson wrote in part:

"The energy, loyalty and efficiency displayed by you made possible the conviction of Morris Baskin and others and is in keeping with the best traditions of the department and the Foreign Service."

REPORTS ON CITY DOCKS.

Department Surveys 1927 and 1928 —No Reference to Vause Deal.

Reports of the Dock Department for 1927 and 1928 were made public yesterday. At the time of the disclosure of the connection of former County Judge W. Bernard Vause of Brooklyn with the lease of piers 84 and 86 to the United American Lines, there was some criticism of delay in the reports. The two reports contain nothing regarding the lease except an item in the list of pier leases which shows an annual rent of $570,000 for the two piers, the highest rate paid by any lessee.

The 1928 report shows total receipts of $8,642,050, of which $7,962,739 was from pier rents and wharfage fees. The 1927 report shows total receipts of $8,399,438, of which $7,425,990 was from rents and fees.

OPPOSES PIER PROPOSAL.

Disagreeemnt with the sites for 1,000-foot piers suggested in a recent report by the Regional Plan of New York and Its Environs was expressed yesterday in a statement issued by a committee of the New York Board of Trade, headed by W. J. L. Banham, president. The committee declared against long piers for transatlantic liners on Staten Island, Brooklyn or the New Jersey shore and suggested the location north of Thirty-ninth Street, Manhattan.

"The locations recommended by the Regional Plan are identical with those studied by the committee," the statement read. "From a geographical standpoint no one will find fault, but from an economic point of view and the past growth of business in this city, which must also be considered, the recommendations of the Regional Plan do not commend themselves as a solution of our immediate problem.

"It would not be desirous from any point of view to have the passenger landings of the transatlantic companies distributed so widely over the waterfront.

"Our committee believes that the location north of Thirty-ninth Street, Manhattan, is the right one. Undoubtedly many of the freight steamers will be berthed on the New Jersey side.

"It is important that the business men of this city keep uppermost in their minds the necessity of the immediate construction of new piers to take care of the new ships now built and in operation, and those which are being built or planned."

NEW TUNNEL IS NAMED.

"Midtown Hudson" Is Designation —Other Tubes to Be Linked.

The Port of New York Authority selected yesterday the designation of "Midtown Hudson Tunnel" for the proposed vehicular tunnel beneath the Hudson River at West Thirty-eighth Street. It acted also to effect a coordination of this tunnel and another which the city proposes to build under the East River at East Thirty-eighth Street, Manhattan, and Long Island.

The Port Authority tunnel is planned to link Manhattan directly with Weehawken and North Bergen in Hudson County, N. J. John E. Ramsey, general manager, and O. H. Ammann, chief engineer, were named a committee to confer with a municipal committee on the possibility of coordinating the two tunnels.

The commissioners also announced the appointment to its legal staff of Russell E. Watson of New Brunswick, chairman of the Port Raritan District Commission for several years. It announced also the acceptance of the resignation of former Judge Robert Carey of Jersey City as New Jersey counsel for the Holland Tunnel.

OCEAN LINERS TO USE COLLEGE ORCHESTRAS

Twelve university orchestras will be employed this Summer on the ships of the United States Lines as a means of creating a favorable traveling atmosphere for the hundreds of university students, graduates and teachers who cross the Atlantic during the vacation period.

An orchestra consisting of Harvard students is now employed on the Leviathan, and an orchestra from the University of California will succeed it for two trips, starting July 16. Students of the University of Florida will be aboard when the ship sails Aug. 20, and a Columbia group on the Sept. 6 sailing.

The George Washington will employ orchestras from Franklin and Marshall College, Yale and Ohio Universities; the America will have musicians from William and Mary College, Georgia Tech and Franklin and Marshall, and the Republic has engaged organizations from Rutgers and the University of Chicago.

The United States Lines management explained that the abolition of second-class travel on the Leviathan and the improvement of these quarters for tourist class use has resulted in a great impetus in travel.

Several steamship lines report that tourist travel this Summer has reached new heights, although travel in first class has dropped 20 per cent or more.

SEIZED IN CABLE FRAUD.

Ex-Convict Is Accused of Selling Bogus Liquor by Forged Message.

Another arrest in the police campaign against bogus bootleggers, who persuade the employes here of business men who are in Europe to purchase bogus liquor through forged cablegrams, was revealed yesterday by the appearance in the criminal line-up of Irving Robin, 33 years old, a seaman, of 648 West 157th Street, charged with suspicion of grand larceny.

Robin, an ex-convict, is charged by Miss May McCabe of 92 Grove Street with inducing her to pay $805 for several cases of weak port wine and water represented as liquor.

ROOSEVELT URGES FARM AID FOR IDLE

TARIFF IS UNDER ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 19.—In an address to 3,000 delegates to the annual convention of the Dairymen's League Coöperative Association today, Governor Roosevelt made a personal plea to the farmers to aid the unemployment situation. He appealed to them to employ some man or woman, boy or girl now out of work.

"Thousands are idle in this State," the Governor said, "and if you can do anything possible to create a job, even temporarily, do it.

"Your prosperity, after all, is measured in some degree by the prosperity of the urban communities."

The Governor reached the State Armory where the convention is being conducted about noon. His automobile was driven into the big drill shed, skirted the speaker's platform, and, taking a position on one side, the Governor spoke from the running board.

Praises League's Economics.

In the course of his speech he referred to the chain store as an example of the trend of the times.

"While there may be some question of its value," said the Governor, "it does not mean that we should exterminated it and go back to the old-fashioned methods."

The Governor said that because of the chain stores' ability to buy cheaply "we have got a reduction in the cost of living."

He pointed out that other industries are beginning to work also on the theory of regional growth and regional planning.

"Your economics are sound," he declared. "The problem is to produce enough milk to prevent importation from other points and guard against overproduction, so that prices may remain stable. This the league is doing."

There was some delay at the armory owing to the difference in time, the State offices being on Daylight Saving Time and the delegates nearly all using Standard Time.

League Head Assails Tariff.

"From a national standpoint," he said, "the association has been active in its advocacy of favorable tariff rates.

"I believe that the present tariff act is not beneficial to agriculture because industrial tariff rates have been raised proportionately higher than have agricultural rates."

The $90,000,000 business of the league, he said, helped to stabilize the dairy industry when its demoralization was threatened in the general depression. He also defended the league's entry into the milk distributing business.

"The failure of the entire milk industry to recognize the association's need for a right to fluid outlets compelled the league to become an aggressive factor in distribution," he said.

The convention will come to a close tomorrow, when the board of directors will elect the officers.

LINDBERGH FLIES WIFE TO HARTFORD AND BACK

Makes Round Trip From Jersey Field in Three Hours—Has Plane Motor Tested.

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, N. J., June 19.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh flew to Hartford and back today in their Lockheed-Sirius monoplane. The Lindberghs arrived at Teterboro Airport about 11 o'clock this morning and took off a half hour later. They were gone about three hours.

At Brainard Field, Hartford, the Lindberghs were met by A. L. MacClain, chief test pilot for the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Company, builders of the engine in the Lockheed-Sirius. The Colonel chatted with MacClain while mechanics went over the motor.

Report Reichsbank Cuts Rate Today

BERLIN, June 19.—The central committee of the Reichsbank will meet tomorrow to decide upon the reduction of the official bank rate to 4 per cent, it was reliably announced tonight.

8 INDICTED IN BROOKLYN AS COUNTERFEITERS

The Federal grand jury in Brooklyn yesterday handed to Judge Inch an indictment naming eight persons in connection with the operation of a huge counterfeiting plant raided by Secret Service operatives in Bath Beach on May 27, last. The government agents found nearly $1,000,000 in spurious currency ready to be placed in circulation. The indictment contains twelve counts relating to conspiracy and counterfeiting.

Four of the men named in the indictment are in the Federal detention prison in Manhattan in lieu of $60,000 bail each. They will plead to the indictment on Monday. They are Pericle Mannerini, 1,981 Sixty-first Street; Joseph De Negris, alias Joe Ross, 215 Sullivan Street; Matteo Mattera, known as "the Doctor," 8,615 Fort Hamilton Parkway, and Joseph Piscopo, 2,120 Eighty-fourth Street, all of Brooklyn.

The full name of only one of the other four persons is known to the government. He is Vito Genovese. His present address and the addresses of the other three are not known, according to United States Attorney Ameli. The other three are known to the Secret Service men as "François," alias "Pock-Mark Frank"; "Franchino," first name not known, and "Mickey," last name not known.

Genovese, according to Mr. Ameli, has a long criminal record and is the leader of a gang on the west side of Manhattan. Genovese maintains a Summer home on Long Island and a Winter home in Manhattan, according to Mr. Ameli, and has become wealthy by reason of his gang leadership.

WISTER'S 'ROOSEVELT' HELD UP BY PROTEST

Owen Wister's new book, "Theodore Roosevelt, the Story of a Friendship," has been withheld from circulation because of an anonymous complaint received by the publishers, the Macmillan Company, about a passage in the volume.

The work was scheduled for publication last Tuesday, had been reviewed in newspapers and distributed to booksellers. Telegrams sent out by the publishers, however, postponed the sale. Reports that members of the Roosevelt family had objected to the book were denied both by the family and the publishers, who stated that the volume was heartily endorsed by relatives of the former President.

When inquiry was made yesterday at the home of Mr. Wister in Bryn Mawr, Pa., his family stated:

"Objections have been made to the publishers by an anonymous person to the book 'Roosevelt,' written by Owen Wister. Mr. Wister is abroad and publication is being held up and further comment is being withheld until the publishers are able to get in touch with him."

No information was given out here yesterday by the publishers other than that no reply had been received to a cable notifying Mr. Wister of the complaint and that the publishers themselves did not know the name of the complainant, who made objection through an attorney.
